A Second Article on Old Days in Auburndale by Mrs. Turner

In looking over King's Handbook of Newton, a very interesting book written by M. F. Sweetser, I found an engraving of the house of Willard Rice on Grove street.

Mr. Rice was formerly a resident of Newton Lower Falls, and he was brother to Gov. A. H. Rice. They had large paper mills and were well established at the Falls, but Mr. Rice told me that when he heard that the B. & A. main line was going to have a station at Auburndale he made up his mind to move here. When he came to Auburndale he could not see a light in any direction from his house.

His house stood just back of the present Mallieu house, and Grove-land street was cut through his property, after it had passed from his hands, and his house must have been built before the Seminary building, which was not opened till the autumn of 1851. If it had not been for so many trees, he might perhaps have seen the lights of the railroad, or the Town Farm just beyond.

In 1848 William Jackson laid out a plan of the streets and squares and I surmise that Mr. Rice bought at that time, for he bought a large strip running from Grove street in a wide swath across Maple street, probably over to what is now Cheswick road. This included a little brook which began beyond Grove street and became later a source of considerable trouble. It used to form a pond in the low land back of Maple street and made a fine place to skate in early spring. It flooded all the cellars in the vicinity as well, but finally the city fathers took the matter under consideration and gave the brook underground passage till it flows into the noted Chesapeake Brook, and of course everyone knows where the Chesapeake Brook is now. Another house of similar construction was the one upon the bluff on Maple street, just off from Woodland road. When I came here about 30 years ago this was called the Haunted House. It was unoccupied, and stood back from the street in a perfect bower of all kinds of rare trees and shrubs. We could not understand why it was so neglected and it was our favorite flower garden and playground. We found afterwards that it had been owned by a noted horticulturist, father of the late Albert F. Noyes, and that he had delighted in filling his grounds with these beautiful flowers. This house was very similar to the Rice house, and also to the smaller one first spoken of in the Washburn house. Mr. Noyes owned the whole block on the left hand side of Maple street probably to Central street.

After a while this house was moved to a different location and re-modelled, but occasionally I am reminded of the former resident who loved flowers and took prizes at the Horticultural Society, especially when the spring comes and brings the handsome cultivated pussy willow of which I have a number of descendants. The pears and grapes are his setting the Buere d'Anjou the Clapp's Favorite, and the sickle, and there is a fine orchard of old apple trees, enjoyed now by the young ladies of Lasell Seminary.

It was a great pity that the Rice house should have been taken down, and it might have seen many more days of usefulness, and it was very beautiful, all furnished with nice woods and it was a typical New England mansion.

Another similar house, and built about the same time was the Brown house, on Auburn street, which when I came here was very attractive. This also had many rare trees and a great deal of landscape architecture.

The row of maples and elms which marks the private road between the Church of the Messiah and the triangular strip owned by others at the corner of Auburn street and Commonwealth avenue, is of a growth of 60 years at least. These trees were set to mark a right of way to land farther in, and I can remember the beds of lilacs of the valley, the thorn bushes, and all the small fruits set out by hands long since gone. This house was also moved at the time the Bagley house was opened, and is still a handsome house.

Little Maple street has seen many changes in these recent years, where

HANDSOME WINDOW

An Attractive Addition to the Beauty of the New Church

A new stained glass window has just been finished and set in the new chapel of the Swedish Church on Highland avenue, Newtonville.

It is the work of Charles J. Connick, the Boston artist and craftsman and is one of his best works; indeed it may be said to be one of the best windows in the vicinity of Boston.

The window is in three lights with elaborate stone tracery above, and the subject treated in the glazing is the "Transfiguration." No attempt has been made to treat the subject pictorially—all landscape and other accessories have very properly been omitted—and the three principals—Moses, Elias and the Christ—are shown in rather brilliant colors on a field of "grisaille" or geometrical painted work.

The central figure stands with hands upraised in the attitude of blessing; while the others hold symbols—Moses, the Tables of the Law, and Elias a scroll.

In the smaller spaces of the tracery above are seen angels with scrolls; and crowns of various patterns form motives of decoration here and in other places.

In its craftsmanship the window is the best that can be had. The methods of painting, firing and leading are those employed by the craftsmen of the Middle Ages, who invented and developed to a point of perfection, the art of stained glass.

During the last twenty-five years we have seen a revival of this art, and it is to be hoped that soon this better type of work will entirely replace the feeble attempts at glass painting with which we are all familiar.

Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Ward T. Pease, manager of the Rudd Manufacturing Company of Boston, and a member of the Pilgrim Publicity Association gave a lecture on Salesmanship, at the Y. M. C. A. last Monday evening to a large number of young men and business men of Newton. The lecture was one of intense interest, and was the first of a series of four lectures which have been arranged by Asst. Secretary Studwell of the Y. M. C. A.

Next Monday night Mr. George R. Glendinning, advertising manager of the Banker and Tradesman, will speak on Advertising. The other lectures to follow will be on "Window Dressing" and "Store Management."

The only cost is a slight charge for supper which is served at 6.30 prior to the lecture. All men are invited to attend. This is a splendid opportunity for the local business men to get some good pointers, that should prove helpful in any line of work.

Excellent gifts in stationery, leather and brass goods may be found at Ward's on Franklin street, Boston.

Newton Free Library Makes an Interesting Announcement

"Buy the Best Books for Your Children," will be the slogan of the campaign to be inaugurated with "Good Book Week," December 4 to 9, 1916.

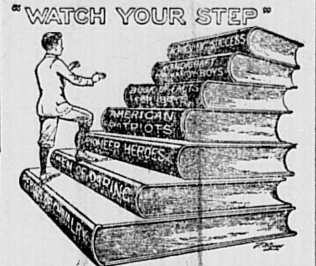

The libraries of the country, the booksellers, the publishers, and all interested in the dissemination of good books among children have joined forces during this week to demonstrate to parents, teachers, and social workers the value of good books for children.

Boys and girls are said to spend the largest percentage of their time in reading, hence it would seem as though it was necessary to influence their choice to good books. This might not seem necessary except for the fact that all books published are not of a character such as young people should read.

The day for the nickel story and the dime novel may seem to some to be of the past, yet these books are now being sold, disguised in bound form, at from 25 to 50 cents,—thus fooling many people. Authors of these stories are known to use many pen-names, and some well-known men, who have no talent for writing, employ others to write for them. One man contracted to furnish a publisher with twenty-five titles a year under his own name, another with fifty titles. It is an obvious fact that no one man could do that. This is what has been called "mile-a-minute" fiction. Franklin K. Mathews, the Boy Scout Librarian, says that "in almost all of this sort of literature the tale of improbable adventure is told. Boys move about in aeroplanes as easily as though on bicycles; criminals are 'captured' by them with a facility that matches the ability of Sherlock Holmes; and when it comes to getting on in the world, the cleverness of these hustling boys is comparable only to those captains of industry and Napoleons of finance who have made millions in a minute."

THE GREATEST WEATHER PROPHECY

Rev. Ir. R. Hicks, of St. Louis, the greatest and most successful of weather forecasters, died on Oct. 12, 1916, after a short illness. Before he took sick he had entirely completed his work on the great Hicks Almanac for 1917 and had read the proofs of all his weather forecasts for a year in advance. This noted Almanac is now ready and is a fine specimen of Almanac making. Prof. Hicks' portrait was painted by a leading artist of St. Louis in May, and this portrait printed in colors, makes the frontispiece of the 1917 Almanac. The 1917 Almanac is 35 cents by mail. Prof. Hicks' monthly Magazine, Word and Works, will also be continued by the publishers. Word and Works one year with the Hicks Almanac is one dollar. Send 5 cents for a sample copy of Word and Works. Address Word and Works Publishing Company, 3401 Franklin Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

THE COLOR LINE

Interesting Questions of the Future Discussed at Forum Meeting

Another large audience was present Sunday afternoon in Bray Hall, Newton Centre, at the regular meeting of the Newton South Community Forum. Prof. William Z. Ripley presided and the musical program included two fine solos by Mrs. S. W. Wilder of Newton Centre.

The speaker of the afternoon was Prof. W. E. B. DuBois, former professor of Economics at Atlanta University, who spoke on "The World Problem of the Color Line." Dr. DuBois said in part:

It is very easy when the world is in the midst of so great a difficulty as it is today to forget just what the cause is, and the number of lives that are being lost, the widows and orphans and the suffering that the world is going through. We are coming to a time when people are going to lose the tremendous enthusiasm and moral uplift and we are going to have the same sort of thing that happened after the Civil War. When we look around for the cause of the European War we look at the individual nations and think that something in their make up or development was the thing that caused the war.

There is a chance for democracy only when the masses of men have some voice in the kind of work they are to do and not until then are we going to realize a democracy. The laborers have been divided into two classes, the upper and the lower. There is opposition of allowing this lower class of laborers to have any voice in political democracy. The economic reconstruction was organized to divide the laboring class into two parts, one that was to have no part in democracy and the other that was to have more or less voice but there was the class that was disfranchised and could have no voice in conditions of their work or the kind of work they or their children should do. The United States has changed from a country which sent raw material to Europe into a country sending the material all manufactured. Instead of trading along the latitude we are beginning to trade along the line of longitude. When we were trading with Europe and receiving her goods we were trading with people we knew. But when we came to trade in the tropics we were trading with the darker people and we adopt the idea we are trading with outsiders, people not to be recognized as the same kind of people. We have come to stretch our hands out a little and take certain material into the United States but we have been very careful to treat them as colonies and not as we treated the territories we took in from the West. The people think the real power, politically, should be in the hands of the white people and so the darker people or outsiders have been kept in their place. We have found on the part of the masses of people tremendous interest in the trading with these darker people. This imperialism has risen throughout the world the problem of the color line. You might have thought at first, and most people did think a few years ago that however difficult that problem was, it would settle itself in time without making very much difference to the life in the United States, Germany or England. The world is smaller now and more nearly one and consequently you find the English fighting for one thing, in fact England, France and Germany are fighting today because of the chance they wish for the other parts of the world. The way people thought of this other part of the world was, here is the open door and our chance to get rich. As a matter of fact it was not the open door for the heathen or for the individual man with his small lot of goods because the goods the ordinary man would carry there would not be goods the people could use.

There should be a sort of United States of Europe which would bind these darker people into one great Government. Now until that idea that the races of the world do not belong to the world and that the races of the world are not yours or anyone else's to do what they wish with, you can have no life peace. These darker people cannot demand an eight hour law or a child labor law because they have not been allowed to have any voice in such matters. The trouble is, these darker people of Africa and India are beginning to think more or less, and that is what England is afraid of. There are a great many things these darker people are going to remember, India is going to remember that the work she used to do with loving care has been ruined by European trade.

In South Africa the darker men of the lower class have to work as servants and are not allowed to earn money to buy land and work for themselves. They might appeal to the English Parliament but the Parliament is always busy and now it is still busier. We are all fighting, as a part of the masses, the darker people of the world who want a chance to be considered as human beings. They want to have some voice in politics but the white people think they should be the only ones to have any voice. The colored people know that the only way they can take part in the ruling is to have trained leaders. So there is the question of educating trained leaders for the people who must fight their way into the world.

Take China, when the Japanese came along and used exactly the same tactics that Europe used with China. Only when Japan used them it was selfishness. The Nations were all ready to take into their hands the absolute rule of China and when Japan came along, we are at enmity with Japan.

The old theory was that some people were born to be in power and the others belonged to the lower class. There was the theory that the darker people were put here as stepping stones, they were put here for the good of the white people. And so it is you have large numbers of people who have not thought this out for themselves but have received it from others and yet out of this idea has come the European War and out of it must come other wars. And how long are these darker people going to stand this? You cannot settle this without taking in these darker races, the yellow, the black and the brown. Until you have given them a human chance and not until then are you going to have a democracy of the world.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—"His Majesty Bunker Bean," a new comedy, will be the attraction at The Majestic Theatre, Boston, beginning Monday, December 4, coming here direct from a sensational successful engagement of one year, divided between Chicago and New York, with Taylor Holmes as the star and the original company intact, in his support. The comedy is by Lee Wilson Dodd and is based on the stories of the same name by Harry Leon Wilson, which ran as a serial a short time ago in the Saturday Evening Post. Mr. Holmes, the young comedian who is being starred by Joseph Brooks, will be seen in the title role, Bunker Bean. The dramatist has preserved the characters so clearly drawn in the original work by Mr. Wilson. There is "Pops," the financial power, and his daughter, the "Flapper," who marries Bunker Willy, there is the "Demon Grand-ma," and the "Big Sister" and her lazy young brother, "The Waster," and "The Greatest Left-Handed Pitcher the World has Ever Known," also others who will be familiar to those who have read the original story, and just as interesting to those who have not.

BROOKLINE WINS

Newton was decisively beaten yesterday morning on Claffin Field in the final game of the Quadrangular League by Brookline High by the score of 16 to 7. The field was wet and slippery on account of the drizzling rain and the ball was hard to handle in consequence.

The game was hard fought, and rough in spots. Doherty, a Newton lineman, suffering a broken arm while medical aid was frequently called for injured players. In the second half Brookline was penalized for rough work.

With the exception of Johnson's field goal from the 30-yard line in the second period, all the points scored by either team were on flukes, and the visitors got the majority of the "breaks."

In the first period Wiley intercepted a Brookline forward pass and ran 90 yards for a touchdown, aided by perfect interference. In the second session Turtle duplicated this feat by running 40 yards with a Newton pass tucked under his arm.

In the last two minutes of play Wiley essayed a punt, but the soggy ball went low, struck the back of one of his own men and bounded toward the home team's goal, with Lally close behind.

He fell on it for a touchdown. The Newton coach protested to the officials on Brookline's first touchdown as three Brookline players were holding Garrity as Turtle ran, but Umpire Fraim did not see this and the points were allowed.

Henderson, a Newton sub, was the star of the game both on offense and defense. He tore big holes in Brookline's line and played like a whirlwind. Twice Newton worked the ball, on line plays, to within striking distance of their opponents' goal, but each time poor judgment in choosing plays cost a touchdown and the ball went to Brookline on downs.

Newton outstrutted Brookline and had better luck in the use of forward passes. Johnson's punting and dropkick were good and Bowditch ran back punts remarkably well. Garrity, the Newton back, played his usual brilliant game but was roughly handled.

School was dismissed for the short Thanksgiving Vacation at twelve o'clock Wednesday. There were six brief recitation periods without recess.

The English Club held its Thanksgiving Meeting in the Assembly Hall on Friday, November 24, at the close of school. A very interesting program, presented by members of the club, was enjoyed by a large number of students and friends. This was the first open meeting of the year. The program represented the November issue of an imaginary magazine, "Red Letter Days." The various departments presented were the following: Cover Design, Misses Buffum and Wright. The school football team spent the first three days of the week in final preparation for the big game with Brookline Thursday morning. Coach Dickinson gave the squad hard work both Monday and Tuesday in perfecting the plays which he intended to use in the Quadrangular League contest. Only a very light practice was held Wednesday afternoon.

The Girls' Hockey Team was beaten last Saturday by Wheaton College. The team and its friends made the trip to Wheaton College in five autos.

HIP, HIP, HOORAY

For once the preliminary announcements were right. The managers did not overstate the case, and the newspaper announcements rather understated than exaggerated the show itself. The big Hippodrome show at the Boston Opera House is undoubtedly the most elaborate, spectacular and stupendous production that has ever come to Boston. It is a circus, seven musical comedies, two burlesque shows, a band concert (Souza's), a vaudeville performance, magnificent scenery and costumes galore, all jammed into one kaleidoscopic performance.

Last Monday night this "Hip, Hip, Hooray" from the New York Hippodrome, with all its potpourri of surprises, its scenic dream of fairyland, its songs, harmony and dancing specialties, and its triumphs of skating on ice by Charlotte and her ballet, will enter upon its third week. What need is there to tell the amusement-loving public that it is "some show," so stupendously packed as to require two special trains to carry it on tour, and it contains enough material to equip a full dozen ordinary musical comedies, burlesque shows and spectacular extravaganzas.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—"Very Good Eddie," which has been the life of Boston for the past five months, will finally depart from that city on Saturday, December 3. The coming week will be the last of this popular musical comedy hit in Boston, and those who have not yet seen this extraordinary success will doubtless rush to be on hand the final week. The average run of a musical show in Boston is from two to four weeks, and the public can easily realize what a tremendous hit "Very Good Eddie" must be to have remained in that city for five months. There is something about the performance that is positively irresistible. It isn't any one feature or any one person, but every minute of the three hours' performance is rich in delightful comedy, fascinating music, dainty dances and charming novelties. And the cast is the finest ever seen in Boston with any musical show. The matinee days at the Plymouth are Thursday and Saturday.

SHUBERT THEATRE—Public interest in the presentation by Arthur Hammerstein of a musical comedy by Otto Hauerbach and Rudolf Friml, entitled "You're in Love," which opens at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, next Monday, December 4, is increasing day by day. Manager Hammerstein has surrounded the various characters in the cast with high-class artists and given to the musical renditions a soloistic symphony orchestra of thirty first class musicians under the direction of John McGhie, so that the clear, ringing voice numbers and the lofty melodic arches in the choral assemblages will be given with that ease and precision for which all of Mr. Hammerstein's offerings heretofore have been noted. Twenty odd song numbers of the whistleable, singable, delightfully tinkling kind are said to be allotted to the principals. Mr. Hammerstein promises settings of exquisite beauty, and the wings that will make royal raiment look less entrancing, and sartorial embellishments that for classic artistry will not have been equalled in any of his former productions.

Rev. Harry Beal, rector of the Church of the Messiah, delivered the sermon at the Annual Union Thanksgiving Service Thursday morning at ten o'clock. The offering was for the benefit of the Newton Welfare Bureau.

Rev. Horace Dutton has received a letter from the Sunday headquarters from which the following sentence is an extract: "Only the praying which brought the auspicious opening of the Campaign will continue its efficiency. The prayers of interested Christians may figuratively be said to bring breath to Mr. Sunday for uttering his wonderful messages and the power of the Spirit for conviction and conversion and for community cleansing."

Miss May T. McCarty of Waltham, a graduate nurse of the Boston City Hospital, was the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Richard McNeil of Orris street the past week. Miss McCarty arrived two weeks ago, from the American Ambulance Hospital, Paris, where she was on active duty for the past year, being transferred there after a year's service nursing the wounded at the American Women's Relief Hospital, Paignton, England. While abroad Miss McCarty was given a vacation and travelled through Scotland, and spent a month sojourning through Italy and Switzerland.

"thrillers" fifty cents cheaper than you can buy an approved book, but if you do you are saving fifty cents at the expense of your boy's brain and spirit. Is it worth the price? Suppose you read some of these cheap books you are buying for him, and judge for yourself. If you can't afford the extra half-dollar, buy a low-priced reprint of "Masterman Ready," "The Green Mountain Boys," "Jack, the Young Ranchman," or "The Adventures of Billy Topsail," or any of a hundred good books. You can tell very easily whether the books are the sort you desire your boys to have, simply by reading them. If the style is crude and coarse, if the plot and incidents are not conducted with due regard to sequence and probability which characterizes the work of any good author, if the adventures are not within the possible powers of the boys in the story, and are not wholesome in their suggestion, and if the manner of narration hasn't ease and charm and the sense of good breeding and clean character behind it,—throw the book into the fire and buy a copy of "Captains Courageous."

Public libraries might be called "public tasters." They know the character of the books they buy, from having their children's librarians read them, and by getting information from other reliable channels. The libraries believe in books with "pep" for boys, but with the "pep" of a "Treasure Island" rather than that of a modern "thriller" which has no real intelligence and no real moral purpose.

The Christmas season is approaching when the stores will be filled with these nickel novels in disguise, and therefore those who give books—and there is nothing better than a good book—should get information before purchasing. The Newton Free Library has a small exhibit of some recent books for children from which titles may be selected. In addition they are distributing lists of approved books. One of these "Books Boys like Best" was compiled by a number of well-known librarians the country over, and their stamp of approval is

MR. PARK BURIED

The funeral of Mr. J. Herbert Park was held in Channing Church on Saturday afternoon. There was present a large company of kindred and friends and business associates. The casket was covered and surrounded with many beautiful floral tributes of their affectionate regard and high esteem. Rev. Harry Lutz, minister of Channing Church, conducted the service. Reference was made to the faith Mr. Park professed and held in living principle, which expressed itself in affectionate devotion to kindred, genial kindness to friends, and constant faithfulness to associates. These qualities of his character bound all who knew him with the nearer ties of fraternal devotion. His generous disposition, which actuated him to so freely spend himself for others as may have shortened his years, won him honor and the "life that is life indeed," and the excellence

"That, as God lives, is permanent."

The interment was in the Newton Cemetery.

NEWTON OPERA HOUSE

It is generally the greatest ambition of every real actor and actress to assay the roles of Romeo or Juliet at least once in their career, and Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, the foremost stellar combination that ever appeared in the silent drama, are no exceptions to this rule. Indeed, the completion of the elaborate screen production of Shakespeare's immortal drama, marks the highest achievement of their picturesque and successful careers and the fulfillment of hopes they have long entertained.

Ever since Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne first came into fame, about five years ago, their admirers in legion have deluged them with letters suggesting that they appear in "Romeo and Juliet." The two artists were extremely anxious, on their own account, to give their interpretation of these roles. But they turned a deaf ear on all proposals to appear in a picturization of the drama until they were assured that it would be produced on a scale in keeping with their ideas and ideals.

It was not until a suitable scenario was found by the Metro-Quincy forces that the matter was seriously considered. Then the brainiest and most expert men in the profession were called together, and after a series of conferences, the greatest presentation of a Shakespearean production of all time was outlined. While it is true the production in the realm of the silent drama is robbed of the speaking voice, still there are many other features substituted that more than make up for this loss.

The presentation of "Romeo and Juliet" upon the screen is the dream of Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne come true.

This great picture produced in eight reels will be shown at the Newton Opera House on Wednesday and Thursday, December 6 and 7.

How many people realize that we are almost within three weeks of Xmas, and how many have seriously started in on their holiday buying? Yet this will be a year of very heavy Christmas business unless all signs fail, and the wise ones will do their buying now rather than get into the final and usually unsatisfactory rush.

The Lauriat Company suggests that buying books for the greater number of people on your list will solve many of your difficulties, and of course everyone knows that there is no place in Boston like Lauriat's to pick them out. Their holiday catalogue is ready and may be had on application.

MR. MORTON DEAD

Francis F. Morton died at his home on Vessex road, Newton Centre last Friday morning, at the age of eighty-three years. He was born at Eastport, Me., and was the son of Captain Andrew Morton and Susan Hall Field of Boston. He was a member of the firm of Morton & Chesley, contractors and builders, which constructed many prominent private and public buildings in both Boston and New York. Mr. Morton was a charter member of the Boston Master Builders' Association, and was for two years a member of the Boston City Council. He was a 32d degree Mason, a member of St. Paul's Chapter and of Beth Horan Lodge; was prominent in Baptist Church circles and formerly was a deacon of the Brookline Baptist Church, and for more than thirty-five years was treasurer of the Massachusetts Baptist Sunday School Association. He was a member of the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants and a direct descendant of Governor Bradford. He has resided in Newton Centre for about 15 years and was an active member of the Baptist Church.

Mr. Morton was married in 1858 to Elizabeth Richardson, daughter of James and Margaret Richardson of Boston, who survives him, with four children, Frank M. Morton of Newton, Mrs. Frank G. Howard of Melrose, Hawley W. Morton and Mrs. Alice M. Hinckley, both of Newton Centre.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at his late home, Rev. Dr. E. W. Hunt, pastor of the Baptist Church officiating, and the interment was at the Newton Cemetery.

THE MEN'S CLUB

The Men's Club held its largest meeting in its history on Monday evening in the parish house of the Second Congregational Church at West Newton. A supper of 125 covers was served by Paxton, after which an interesting address was given by Senator John W. Weeks, who discussed the political situation with respect to the merchant marine and spoke at length on the Railroad Question. He gave a sketch of what he thought would be the development of the Railroad Situation and outlined the difficulties in which the railroads are at the present time, treating the subject from the point of view of both capital and labor.

The annual business meeting was presided over by the retiring president George P. Bullard and the following officers were elected: W. F. Bartholomew president; Henry Whitmore vice-president; E. G. Perry secretary and treasurer.

CONGRESS FOR MOTHERS

Many persons in Newton, especially Mothers, will be interested to know that the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, is preparing to organize a child-welfare circle in their city in the very near future. Of all crafts, Mother-craft is the greatest, and the Congress of Mothers have recently established this craft in Watertown and Pittsfield, and many other circles in different parts of the state are in process of formation.

Mrs. Milton P. Higgins of Worcester, President of the Mass. branch of the N. C. M. will personally organize the circle, after the pioneer work has been done in the field by the representative Mrs. Dorothy Manning.

The movement known as the National Congress of Mothers was started at Washington, D. C. twenty years ago by Mrs. Theodore Birney, and it was financed by Mrs. Phoebe Hearst. It is a benevolent and educational movement, its avowed purposes being to "Create better conditions for children in Home, Church, School, State and Nation." It recognizes that God works through human agencies, and it seeks to co-ordinate all these agencies in order to secure to the child its inalienable rights. It seeks to bring about intelligent co-operation of parents, educators, and legislators, in order that every child may have a fair opportunity to develop under conditions favorable to its mental, moral, and spiritual growth.

The Child-Welfare circle of Newton will have unlimited opportunities for splendid work, provided the Mothers rise to their privilege, because it is formative rather than re-formative, and because the Mothers have the shaping of the human material while it is in the plastic and impressionable state.

Mothers' Rest Department Store

The Mothers' Rest Association carried on a very attractive Department Store in Bray Halls, Newton Centre, during Thursday and Friday, Nov. 23 and 24. There were all the features usual to such affairs, every department displaying beautiful and desirable wares. The Art department merits special mention for seldom, if ever, has there been in Newton so fine a collection, one of the small halls being given up to the exhibit. Pictures, both paintings and etchings, adorned the walls, while show cases were filled with beautiful arts and crafts work, produced for the most part by Newton Centre people, including jewelry, decorated glass, lustre ware and many other beautiful articles. The artists who exhibited pictures were: Miss Charlotte T. Bailey, Frank W. Benson, William Closson, Charles Copeland, Sears Gallagher, Edmund H. Garret, Abbott Graves, Miss Mary Hazelton, George A. Hibbard, Mrs. Lee Lusk, Kaula, William J. Kaula, Ernest L. Major, Mr. and Mrs. William Paxton, Arthur Spear, Leslie Thompson, Miss Margaret Wilkins. The exhibit of the Women's Municipal League showing the hygienic way to serve soda, individual paper cups being used instead of glass, attracted much attention. This method was applied to the lemonade served in the store. Luncheon was served each noon and supper each night. There was a dance under the management of Miss Elsie Harrington on Thursday evening and a vaudeville on Friday evening.

Much credit is due Mrs. Arthur C. Badger, chairman of the finance committee of the Association, who was the general manager. Others associated with her were Mrs. Charles B. Wilbar, treasurer; Mrs. Edward Ray Spear, printing; Mrs. Summer Clement, ticket agent; Mr. H. H. Kendall, superintendent of decorations. The heads of the various departments are as follows: Art, Mrs. Robert E. Anderson; baskets and bags, Mrs. E. Ray Spear; bargains, Mrs. Theodore A. Plimpton; bundles, Miss Dorothy Kendall; candy and nuts, Mrs. Dwight S. Brigham; cake, Mrs. C. E. Kelsey; cards, Mrs. E. B. Bowen; dolls, Mrs. Albert H. McAdams; flowers, Mrs. William B. Merrill; gift shop, Mrs. Frank A. Mason; groceries, Mrs. Edward C. Sands; household goods, Mrs. S. F. Brewer and Mrs. W. W. Webber; infants, Mrs. Arthur C. Walworth; millinery, in charge of Conant-Brown, Boston; neckwear and ribbons, Mrs. Charles S. Wing; preserves, Mrs. Harry L. Bradford; room, Mrs. George W. Crampton; cafe, Mrs. Charles T. Bartlett and Mrs. Frank E. Anderson; entertainment, Mrs. Howard H. Tucker; Women's Municipal League exhibit, Mrs. Frederic Elliot; newspaper, Stafford Johnson.

Conference at Technical School

Ex-Senator George H. Ellis presided over a conference of representatives from different parts of Middlesex county on Friday, Nov. 24, held at the Technical high school hall in the interests of establishing a Farm Bureau in this county. Mr. Ellis stated that this is the only agricultural county in the State not having such a bureau and that these bureaus are doing a great work in the State. The conference was called in the special interest of the home economics phase of the work for the women of the rural communities. Miss Price of the Hampden County League told of the work which she is doing. Miss Laura Comstock of the Massachusetts Agricultural College and Mrs. James J. Storror were the other speakers. All three emphasized the value of this home economics work and pointed out the duty on the part of Newton in assisting the rural communities to have it. If this work is done in connection with a Farm Bureau a Federal grant can be secured for one half the expense, a further grant will come from the Agricultural College which leaves about $3500 to be raised by the county. Difference of opinion was evidenced in the discussion as to the real need of a Farm Bureau, but every one was agreed as to the value of this special side of the work. Luncheon was served the speakers at the close by the girls of the Vocational school.

New Club

All women of Newton Highlands who are interested in the forming of a Newton Highlands Woman's Club are invited to meet at the Congregational church parlors on Tuesday, December 5th, at 3 o'clock. (Signed) Mrs. S. L. Eaton, Mrs. F. S. Keith, Mrs. W. E. Moore, Mrs. E. G. Swift, Mrs. C. H. Keeler.

Local Happenings

A most successful sale was held in Auburndale on Friday, Nov. 24, by the Newton Ladies' Home Circle, an unusually good sum being realized for the fund. Every table was well supplied with articles and the cafeteria luncheon was especially well patronized. The Home Circle members as usual are alert in all good work.

There was a good attendance of members at the meeting of the Newton Highlands C. L. S. C. on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Leonard Boyd. Mrs. E. G. Swift presented an extremely interesting and enlightening paper on "The Duties of Citizenship." In her researches Mrs. Swift found even among men the idea that the only duty of citizenship was the casting of the ballot.

The Monday Club of Newton Highlands met November 27 in the home of Mrs. C. A. Salmon. The afternoon was devoted to opera. Mrs. Charlton Miller read a paper, written by Mrs. Salmon, on the worth and appreciation of French and Italian works. This was interspersed with Arias and Duets delightfully rendered by Miss Bessie Talbot Salmon, soprano, and Miss Marjorie Thompson, contralto, with Mr. J. Angus Winter at the piano. Miss Emily Meracer added much pleasure with violin selections, and through the courtesy of the Hume Music Co. we were enabled to hear Victrola selections from the operas.

On the evening of Thursday, November 23rd, the Education Committee of the Auburndale Woman's Club held an informal reception in Burr School Hall, to which every member of the community was cordially invited.

In the receiving line were Mrs. Robert P. Gilman, chairman of the Education Committee, Mrs. Henry A. Wentworth, vice-president of the Club, Mrs. William Leighton and Mr. Leighton, the new Principal of the Auburndale schools. Parents of school children welcomed the opportunity of meeting Mr. and Mrs. Leighton, also the teachers of their children. Everyone found a hearty welcome and a friendly atmosphere. During the evening piano solos were rendered by Master Wendell Burbank, and stories were told by Miss Mabel Bragg, assistant superintendent of the Newton Schools. There was aesthetic dancing by Miss Ruth Allen and two of her small pupils, Miss Dorothy Paine and Miss Muriel Conn, while songs by Mr. W. J. Spaulding completed a delightful program, with intervals for general sociability. Dainty refreshments were served by school girls in white. The attendance was large in spite of the rainy evening, and the affair seemed both an indication and promise of a fine community spirit for Auburndale.

The regular meeting of the Auburndale Review Club was held in the Congregational chapel on Tuesday morning when Miss Ruth Evans of Lynn lectured on "The Modern History of Russia." The music was in charge of Mrs. May Sleeper Ruggles, who sang several Bulgarian songs, including the Bulgarian national anthem.

COX-MILLS

The wedding of Miss Frances Hungerford Mills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Silas Reed Mills of Newton Highlands, and Mr. Rogers Milton Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cox of Cincinnati, Ohio, took place Thanksgiving Day at the residence of the bride's parents on Fisher avenue.

The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. Carlton P. Mills, uncle of the bride, of Winchester. The bride party stood beneath a canopy of asparagus fern, with background of palms and a charming arrangement of pink and white chrysanthemums, laurel and ferns, completed the decorations which were extremely attractive. The wedding march was played by a Trio, as the wedding party entered. The bride wore a wedding gown of white satin worn by her grandmother in 1859. Her veil was old point lace, which was worn by her great-grandmother. She was attended by Miss Charlotte H. Mills, her sister as maid of honor, who was gowned in white net over white satin, a dress worn by the bride's great great aunt in 1826.

The flower girls were Miss Barbara Foster of Newton Highlands and Miss Elizabeth Reid of Cincinnati. Mr. Thomas Melish of Cincinnati was the groomsmen. A reception was held immediately after the ceremony. The bride and bridegroom received from 8.30 until 10 and were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Silas Reid Mills and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cox.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox left on a wedding trip and will be at home after January 1st at Michigan City, Indiana.

"SWEETHEARTS" COMING

Rehearsals for the annual production of the Newton Amateur Opera Association are now in full swing and the performance bids fair to surpass anything which has been done by the association in former years.

The opera for this season is Victor Herbert's "Sweethearts," one of the brightest and most tuneful operas which has been given to the stage in recent years. The opera will be produced on Tuesday, December 12th, Thursday, December 14th, and Friday, December 15th.

The Association has been fortunate in being able to provide an exceptionally good cast and every effort will be made to make this production the best which has ever been put on in this City. The members of the cast and chorus are working hard and are deserving of the support of every music lover in the City of Newton.

Information regarding membership in the Association may be obtained from Joseph B. Ross, First National Bank, West Newton.

THE BRAE BURN CLUB

The first in a series of Dinner dances, which proved so popular during the past season at Brae Burn was held this week on Tuesday evening. Dinner was served from 6.30 until 8 o'clock, in the glassed in dining hall. A color scheme of yellow was carried out in the decorations with chrysanthemums, the glowing blossoms being arranged effectively on the tables, with yellow shaded candles.

Following the dinner, dancing was enjoyed in the Garden Tea Room and Russell's Orchestra was present with a program of up-to-date music, which contained many special features and additional accompaniments of banjo and mandolin.

The next Club Dinner Dance is scheduled for Saturday evening, December 16th.

Mrs. William H. Lucas of Newtonville is registered at Brae Burn for several months.

More than one hundred extra guests were served at dinner on Thanksgiving day at the Club. Russell's orchestra furnished music during the dinner and for the informal dancing which followed.

Miss Morrill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Morrill of Brookline is giving a large dance this evening at Brae Burn.

Mrs. H. C. Jealous and Mrs. Plummer have issued cards for a large Bridge party on Monday afternoon in the Garden Tea Room.

WILBUR THEATRE—"The Cinderella Man," a comedy in four acts from the pen of Edward Childs Carpenter, will be seen at Ye Wilbur Theatre, Boston, for its fourth week, beginning next Monday, December 4th, under the management of Oliver Morosco. The author describes his theme as "the essence of romance." He does not refer to the sentimental romance of books, but to the romance the hardest and most cynical meet in their lives, though often they will not admit it. Beauty of thought, beauty of ideas, beauty of expression, are, to his way of thinking, the requisites of romance. An attractive cast has been selected by Mr. Morosco for the interpretation of the play. The usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees are given.

being made as far as the white people are concerned. The white people of the North have not thought much about the colored problem and received their view from their grandfathers. A week ago I was in North Carolina and a colored minister took me for a thirty mile ride and scarcely a mile was not owned by colored people. There was one colored man who owned five hundred acres of land and when he came into town to sell his cotton seed he had a discussion with a man about the price and he was lynched. The white people do not want the negroes to buy land in North Carolina. You have in the North a great many people who are thinking about the colored people and are trying to do something for the colored people but they are taking their opinions from the General Education Board or from somebody else who hands a ready made opinion to them. The situation is extremely difficult and a cause for thought on the part of people like you.

Question. How many of the States in the South today give the colored men the right to vote, or in how many States does he enjoy franchise? Answer. In the northern states the negro is allowed to vote to some extent, but not so much so in the southern states. I lived in Atlanta, Georgia, for about thirty years and I had absolutely no voice in the affairs of Government. Out of 100,000 people about 700 vote. Georgia has revised her constitution so it is like the laws of most of the States. In Alabama if a man is known to have an occupation and can judge the right and wrong of a party he can be admitted by the registrar. In Louisiana about six years ago 1700 colored men had registered.

Question. If the Japanese were allowed in the United States would we not repeat the problem we have in the South? Answer. I have no doubt that the darker people of the world would be willing to enter into a compact. If the white people will keep out of China, Africa, etc., and leave them alone, they would be willing to stay there. The harm to certain classes of white people do when they go into these darker countries is more than the Japanese would do if they came into California. But on the other hand you have an open country. Of course you can be selfish with it if you want to. Australia absolutely refuses to let any of the darker people go there.

Question. What is your opinion of Booker Washington's theory? Answer. I do not agree with Mr. Washington. It seems to me that the greatest need of the colored people is trained leaders to see that the people develop according to their ability, and if they do not have trained leaders, like Mr. Washington for instance, then they are going to have a large number of scabs. That is, you cannot train a race simply in industry. You cannot train them simply in manual work; if you are going to retain a race you must pick out their leaders to see that the race is normally developed. As a matter of fact Mr. Washington put a lot of stress on the industrial side but the cause that was popular and you can raise more money that way. On the other hand if they did not have colleges they could not teach them the manual work because you need normal schools and colleges to furnish teachers.

Question. Are the conditions in the South getting better or worse? Answer. Both. In some respects they are getting worse and in some respects they are improving. The feeling between the white and black laborers is getting worse. On the other hand the recognition of what the colored man is accomplishing in spite of difficulties is becoming very great in the South. I was in North Carolina a short time ago and a young Southern man spoke from the platform. He said he was the only white man in the South that was the head of a Southern College. Now I knew the other part of the story. The man who tried the job before this young fellow was a minister in a fashionable church and when he told his congregation he was going to give up his work there and go and teach negroes, his congregation got up and went out doors. He tried the job for a while but the attitude of the white people, was such that he had to give up.

Question. What is the attitude of the negro in accepting services as an artisan? Is the negro reluctant to leave the soil and become an artisan? Answer. The negro is anxious to become an artisan. Last year there was difficulty when the moulders went on strike and the negro moulders went in and took the place of the strikers but when the company had made terms with the strikers the negro moulders had to give up. One reason the negro moulders cannot get very far because of the moulders' unions. It is only lately that there have been established a few factories where they employ colored labor. There is a hosiery mill and two or three silk mills in North Carolina and in various other places there are being established mills. The negroes take up lines where there is no opposition from the white people such as carpentry. They are also taking up shoe making, not as you make shoes in the United States but to mend them when they are worn out. The white people are willing that they should take up these lines.

Question. What is being done in the line of cooperation in the life of the negro? Answer. Almost nothing is being done. Some negro starts in the grocery business and another starts in the dry-goods trade and they make a wonderful success and then others try to establish a grocery business and fail. The trouble is they have not been taught these trades and have to experiment.

E. L. Pickard had his first house (which was moved to Maple terrace) now stands Carpenter Hall of Lasell Seminary. On the opposite corner where a similar house stood, and which was also moved back to Maple terrace is the handsome residence of Mrs. A. Van Wagenen. Only the oaks and chestnuts and a handsome beech tree remain to speak of the former home which occupied the spot.

From this north corner of Maple street down the hill to Central street, was the land of J. W. Rice with no houses and with a fine apple orchard, but now all built up with handsome dwellings. It is interesting to note that when the Church of the Messiah was hunting for a place to build its home one of the spots considered was at the corner of Central and Maple street. This would have made quite a difference in this locality, but as it is, the growth has been slow but steady, a gradual filling of vacant lots each house as it comes telling its story, and giving its date by its style of architecture. The little road which I discovered so lately is now levelled away, a block of new stores is being built upon its site, and so the story goes—

If Maple street has seen changes in the last thirty years, Central street has also changed in many ways. When we came here next door to us was the Methodist parsonage with its frequently changing occupants, and we had very interesting neighbors. The Watsons were there, Mr. Watson and his German wife and her mother from Heidelberg. With the mother I had my first instruction in "der, die, das." "Du bist wie ein Blume." They went from here to California leaving with me the pleasantest remembrances.

Mr. and Mrs. Talmadge were here. Mrs. Talmadge, a sister of Alice Freeman Palmer, and herself in every way as charming. Dr. Bashford and his dear wife, were here a long time, and are now in China where he is a Bishop of the M. E. Church.

One sad character I remember, who walked slowly past in a long brown fur cloak of handsome sable. She was never alone, and her way was always the same. She was the wife of E. D. Winslow, can I write it, The Forger, and at that time was only living for her son, who was in college, and soon she passed away.

The second house from us was Captain Baker's, a retired sea captain with a remarkable record. He was a brother of Lorenzo Dow Baker, who founded the banana industry in Jamaica and had himself been much concerned with it. He had been everywhere and his grounds and house were full of rare plants and curios and it was an education to be with him.

Farther down the street lived Daniel S. Emery, also interested in the sea, and founder of the large merchant ships company in Boston. He also had curious shells and objects of art, and was very generous with perfectly good foreign postage stamps, a man really enjoyed cultivating for this cause that was popular and you can raise more money that way. On the other hand if they did not have colleges they could not teach them the manual work because you need normal schools and colleges to furnish teachers.

One of amusing occupations on Sunday afternoons would be to watch the people drive down that way thinking they were going somewhere and to observe their anxiety when they came back. Of course we couldn't rush out and wave a flag and say "Stop! Hold! You can't do it!" So we would just grumble to ourselves, and when the road was opened to meet the Boulevard we were relieved from responsibility. A little beyond the end of Central street rose Indian Rock, the prettiest place in the whole village of Auburndale. It was a natural wild ravine, a beautiful place for picnics, full of wild flowers and ferns, and large trees, and with a splendid spring of very nice water. It is useless to regret things which are gone, but if this could have been saved as a Park, it would have been so valuable. But with the electric road pushing to enter the village and with so many of the inhabitants begging for a chance to develop their homeslots, and above all, with the whole of Indian Rock one mass of blue slate, just what the city needed for its blue gravel walks, Indian Rock had not a chance for existence. It has been blasted and hacked down till very little remains, and only the height beyond Cheswick road shows where its level used to be.

Progress has been slow as I have said, but once in a while things would move with a bound. This was the case when the Boulevard was planned. We knew little about it until one day came the news that the line was laid out from Washington street direct to the Auburn street bridge and would pass directly through Mr. Cordingley's house. I don't know what the Cordingleys thought about it, but we began to look for a new home. This was in the meantime protesting as much as possible and finally wiser counsels prevailed, or was it the pull of undeveloped land over the other side of the track? Whatever it was we were glad. About this time, one of our neighbors bought a good strip of open land next to his lot. When we inquired what he bought it for, it was said "For grass for the horse." At the price of land at that time the grass would be quite dear, but the horse was valuable anyway, for every morning of his life he carried his master's son to Newton Lower Falls, in order that the bell might be rung to call the mill operatives to their work. So without the ground to raise the grass to feed the horse to give him strength to carry the man to ring the bell to start the mill how could the paper be made?

We have been quite a sociable community, but not too much so. One instance comes to my mind. Our neighbor, Mr. Thorpe was moving away. He had lived here many years, 25 to 30 surely, and his house was one of the first ones built on Maple street, perhaps the first one. My husband thought it would be a suitable thing to make Mr. Thorpe a present of a gold headed cane, and accordingly it was done, and we made a little party of the occasion inviting the friends in town, and it went very well. We were surprised to find that one neighbor of Mr. Thorpe's whose land adjoined his, had no acquaintance with him whatever. He had lived there even longer than the Thorpes, and he said he should be very glad to come and make his acquaintance. This seems curious but it is going on all the time even now, right in our own neighborhood, so as I say, we are not any too sociable. At one time about fifteen years ago, there was a circle of intimate spirits who added very much to the life of the neighborhood. They met at each other's houses for Sunday night suppers and had regular whist and theatre parties, the Embertons, the Hacketts, the Marbles, the Spragues, the Shepards, the Hinmans, the Priests, the Chandlers, and the Benedicts, and sometimes the Turners were all in league to "while dull care away," and frequently succeeded in doing so. One evening quite late, some of these roysterers were going home, as I suppose, they looked in our windows and saw my husband asleep in his chair, and they shouted "What's the matter with Turner? He's all right!" What happened after that I can't say.

Soon after I came here I was invited to help form a Reading Club, and I am inclined to think that this was the first club of women in Auburndale. We met at each other's houses afternoons, and of the number, about a dozen I only remember a few:—Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. Loring, Mrs. Marble, Miss Willis, Mrs. George Bourne, Mrs. Willner. I think we read Shakespeare, and had tea, but am not quite sure, but I remember it was very sunny days, and we had nice times.

A while after this I was invited to help form another reading club at Mrs. Dr. Bellows' house, Mrs. Davidson went and Mrs. Burr and Mrs. Luquens and Mrs. Hardy, and here I think we read Shakespeare. From this beginning it may be that the Review Club was formed, and I think Mrs. Blodgett was a member of this early club.

Twenty-five years ago this month I received a message from Mrs. Blodgett that a new woman's club was to be formed and that she wanted me to be in it. I had been very ill, and was on crutches, but I managed to get across the street to Mrs. Sawyer's, to attend the second meeting of the Review Club. It was one of the happiest occasions of my life, and the beginning of another story like the other a story without an end.

FACTS ABOUT INDIA

Told at Meeting of Newton South Community Forum last Sunday

There was a large audience present Sunday afternoon in Lincoln Hall, Newton Highlands at the fourth meeting of the Newton South Community Forum to hear Lajpat Rai of Lahore, India speak on the subject of "Young India and her aspirations." Mr. Fred I. Brown presided. Mr. Rai spoke in part as follows:

I presume that India in your minds is associated with the stories that were told which have a certain amount of coloring. There is also a serious side of which I am going to speak. Because as the world is today a very small world and the different countries and nations are so interrelated that what happens in one usually follows in another. All of you realize what this war is for, this desire for world domination. Looking at it from that point you cannot help thinking that perhaps it will be the remaking of the world and therefore it is of interest to you, at such a distance from India, a distance of about 15,000 miles, to grasp the problem that affects us at home. My title today is "Young India and Her Aspirations." By Young India we mean Old India, an India that was dead and has been re-born and is therefore Young. There are two kinds of deaths of a country and nation, intellectual and political. In that sense India has never been dead. It was intellectually alive before either Greece or Rome came into the world before Egypt or Babylon. It was alive for nearly six or seven centuries. Then came the period about which we have read, from 300 B. C. to 800 A. D. which it was said was the period of India's greatest glory. Indian poets are classed among the greatest poets in the world and you might have heard of its schools of philosophy. You will find Indians invented the decimals and numbers. Indians invented geometry and trigonometry. Historians say that long before 300 B. C. the civilization of India must have been several centuries old. So you find that in 300 B. C. India was politically great as well as intellectually great and continued so until about one thousand A. D. and during all these centuries India was not governed from without by anyone. India has never been governed by foreigners.

Of course difficulties arose but when you compare the conditions of India in those centuries with the conditions of Europe and you will see very little difference. Some people think that they were governed from without but India was always self governed. No one ever interfered with the domestic arrangement of the village or towns, they were always self governed. India was not even politically dead before the British got their hold in 1780 and it took them over a century to conquer India. What I want to give you is the idea that politics in India have only been dead for less than 65 years, before that she was always governed from within. What I want to point out to you is that when you compare the position of the East with the position of the West and sit on judgment you should remember your history. You compare the old standards with the new standard and therefore pass unfair judgment on them. When you consider conditions of old times all over the world a nation that loses her independence and is governed from without is dead and it is one of the greatest misfortunes that can happen to a nation, however kind or however good the nation that governs them may be. For one nation to be governed by another is wrong, because as it is unnatural for one human being to possess another human being, it is much more unnatural for a nation or democracy to rise above its human weakness. As it is unnatural for a human being to possess another for the interest of the person it is also unnatural for a nation to possess another in the interest of the other. It must affect the growth of that nation and it must affect the life of that nation. A parent always wants his or her child to be more than him but not so with a nation. If I were to tell you of conditions in India you would be surprised. The average income of a Hindu is ten dollars a year. That is not that everyone earns ten dollars a year but that is the average income and so you can see for yourselves under those conditions what the masses or the great bulk of the people can be. England would not have been human if they had not made their gains from their possession of India. The fact is human nature.

In India there is a movement for self government, as usual there are two parties, one that want complete independence, entire breaking away from the British Empire, the other party would be content to get home rule or self government, they consider that is the least they can try for. They do not want the assistance of any foreign power, what they want is to be in their own home, and have freedom in their own country, freedom to develop as they want to. They are convinced that they have something to give to the world in return for what they receive from the world.

QUESTIONS.—Is India doing anything at the present time to advance and if so what? Answer. India has political organizations and educational organizations for political and educational work all over the world so in the different phases of nationalism the Indians are doing their very best.

Question. Does the speaker think the United States is making a mistake to govern the Philippines? Answer. If the United States want to keep the Philippines in order to prevent it from being grasped by someone else it is a very good thing, but if the United States were to keep it for its own good it would be committing a sin.

Question. How large a measure of self government does England give to the Indian province? Answer. The Government of India has no powers. Everything is decided at Whitehall. There ten members in the council for India and only two of them are Indians.

Q. We are told that the Princes of India and the Indian soldiers have gone to the aid of England in the present conflict. I would be interested to know if that is so? Answer. The British protect the Princes of India and if they did not perhaps the people would not like the way their Prince was governing them and would kill him but under the British protection the Princes are safe, and so they are entirely dependent on the British. The Indians might

MISS DUNCKLEE DEAD

Former Treasurer of Newton Savings Bank Passes Away

Miss Susanna Miller Duncklee died last Friday at The Mt. Pleasant Home, Elm Hill avenue, Roxbury, Mass., in her 89th year. Her health had been slowly failing for some time and the end came rather suddenly as the result of a cerebral hemorrhage.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon in the vestry of Eliot Church, Newton, Mass. of which Miss Duncklee was a member. Dr. Wolcott Calkins, D.D., former pastor of the church, conducted the services. After a prayer he read a very beautiful collection of God's promises from the Bible giving hope of the glorious eternal life to come. He then appropriately took exception to the usual strictly devotional funeral service and spoke of Miss Duncklee's exceptionally good and great life in terms of highest praise.

Appropriate music was beautifully rendered by Rev. and Mrs. H. Grant Person and Mr. E. L. Bacon. The burial was in the Duncklee lot at Newton Cemetery where her mother, Esther F. Duncklee was buried in 1888.

The flowers sent by many friends were very beautiful and were a profound expression of the love and esteem felt for her by the large circle of devoted friends which she had won by her kindness and help.

Miss Duncklee was the first woman to hold the position of treasurer of a bank. In 1879 she was appointed treasurer of the Newton Savings Bank after having served them as assistant treasurer for five years. When she entered the bank in 1874 the deposits were about $320,000.00 and when she resigned Dec. 31, 1891, the deposits were $1,927,181.33 with assets of $2,051,381.79. Under her management the deposits increased steadily each quarter. The increase July first 1891 being $38,000.00 which shows the confidence the people of Newton and vicinity placed in her. Her success has been an inspiration to those who believe in the capability of women for positions of trust and responsibility. She was one of the few women who have had the opportunity to make a brilliant financial success.

Miss Duncklee came from Framingham, N. H. to Brighton, Mass., in 1848 where she lived with her uncle and taught school at the Harvard street in what is now Allston. About 1856 her mother moved from Framingham, N. H. and they both went to live at 8 N. H. street in Newton. Miss Duncklee promptly became a teacher in the Newton public schools and by her sterling character and able teaching won the highest respect and honor of both pupils and parents who were fortunate enough to know her. After she became treasurer of the Newton Savings Bank she would find time to search out boys and girls working their way through school and encourage them with sound advice and often times give them books with money tactfully placed between the leaves in cases where such help was most needed. Such quiet deeds of helpful kindness can never die and will ever shine as jewels in her crown of glory.

DR. BELL TO SPEAK

For the next meeting of the Boston Scientific Society, on Tuesday evening of next week (Dec. 12) a citizen of West Newton, with a national reputation as an expert in affairs of lighting, Dr. Louis Bell, is to be the speaker. Dr. Bell is to speak about illumination with direct current and alternating current of electricity and with gas, and the demand of such a showing are beyond those of the hall where the Society usually gathers. For the evening, therefore, the large auditorium at the M. I. T. in Cambridge has been taken, and the seating capacity enables the society to extend a cordial invitation to all who are interested.

Excellent gifts in stationery, leather and brass goods may be found at Ward's on Franklin street, Boston.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

Newton Lodge of Elks Hold Impressive Service at Opera House

Newton Lodge of Elks held its annual Memorial Service last Sunday afternoon in the Newton Opera House and the excellent program announced last week in the Graphic attracted an audience that completely filled the building. Nearly a hundred members of the lodge marched from their lodge rooms in the Eliot Block to the Opera House under the direction of the Esquire, Oswald J. McCourt.

The stage was attractively decorated with the American flag and a handsome floral emblem.

The program was under the direction of Exalted Ruler Bancroft L. Goodwin and included excellent music by a string quartet from the Boston Symphony Orchestra and singing by a male quartet. Rev. Dr. Laurens MacLure of Grace Church offered the invocation and pronounced the benediction. Mayor Edwin O. Childs read Bryant's Thanatopsis in his usual impressive manner and the oration of the afternoon was given by Mr. John F. Crosby of Cambridge Lodge. Mr. Crosby spoke on the age-long mystery of Life and Death and the feeling that Death was not the end of Life, with strong arguments for a future life along the lines of the logic of the mind and the instincts of the human heart. He paid a touching tribute to the power of mother love and his entire address was eloquent with feeling and made a great impression on the audience which listened with rapt attention to every word.

MR. WYMAN DIES SUDDENLY

Mr. Charles A. Wyman died suddenly early Monday morning at his home on Temple street, West Newton, from heart trouble. He had been for many years clerk of The Second Church in West Newton, and had attended on Sunday evening the meeting of the Church Committee in the new church, in which he showed himself in his usual vigorous health and good spirits. Later in the evening he showed a company of friends around the new church, in which he took a great deal of pride. But on reaching home, he was suddenly taken sick and died only a few minutes after the doctor arrived.

He had been confidential secretary to various members of the firm of Kidder, Peabody & Company, with which firm he had been connected for 35 years. He was born in Boston 57 years ago and received his education at the English High School. He was interested in several military organizations, but his great interest in West Newton was in the church of which he was a member for 26 years.

Mr. Wyman is survived by a widow, formerly Miss Sarah Sanders of Norwood, whom he married 29 years ago, and one daughter, Miss Gladys Wyman.

The funeral service was conducted on Wednesday afternoon by Rev. J. Edgar Park, and was very largely attended. Chandler & Company of Boston, of which firm Mr. Wyman was a director, closed their house of business during the time of the funeral in honor of his memory. Few men in West Newton had such a host of friends. He stood four-square for all the noble issues of life and his heart was one of the tenderest that ever beat. It is another blank in the fellowship of those who have lived together here in West Newton, but no man ever left a more respected memory among his neighbors behind him.

BOYS AND GIRLS TO HEAR SUNDAY, SATURDAY

On Saturday afternoon there will be recitations at the Sunday Tabernacle for the boys and girls of Greater Boston. The young people of the Immanuel Baptist Church will leave Newton Corner at 12.15. It is hoped that a large delegation will be present at the Tabernacle meeting.

"SWEETHEARTS"

Newton Amateur Opera Association Begins its Third Season

On Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, December 12, 14 and 15, the Newton Amateur Opera Assn. will give its third series of performances in Players Hall, West Newton. This is an organization of the city's musical people, whose object is to develop local musical and dramatic talent, and at the same time present the latest and best of the light operas of the day.

The piece chosen for presentation this year is Victor Herbert's "Sweethearts," the most tuneful and popular of his latest compositions.

This is a very ambitious work for amateurs to attempt but the previous successes scored by the organization in the Mikado, Florodora and the Serenade warrants the undertaking, and the rehearsals point to the best performances yet given by these young people.

Hon. Chas. E. Hatfield is the President of the organization and Joseph B. Ross, Cashier First National Bank, West Newton, is the Treasurer, to whom application should be made at once by those desiring to see the forthcoming performances, as there is no public or door sale of seats, only by subscription.

The company has a chorus of 40 voices and a cast of 15 principals, the production being under the direction of Mr. W. G. Hambleton, organist of Grace Episcopal Church. Mr. Hubert W. Pierce is the Acting Manager.

Judging from past performances the Newton Amateur Opera Association meets the general demand of the public for a high class playing and singing company. It is not only as a singing company that they win popular favor, but their work in this line is equal to some of the best organizations in the field, and in the music nothing is lacking to fully meet the expectations of the average entertainment patrons and lovers of good music.

D. R. LUNCHEON

Th Sarah Hull Chapter, D. R., met at Brae Burn Club, West Newton, Dec. 6th, to celebrate the 20th birthday of the Chapter. The company assembled sat at long tables in form of an X decorated with the colors buff and blue with beautiful yellow chrysanthemums in the center. In addition to a delicious menu there was a birthday cake with blue and buff icing and twenty candles. The Regent, Mrs. Franklin W. Ganse, spoke a few words of the First Regent, Mrs. Alexander Ferris, and love of the Chapter for her. Mrs. Ferris responded in a few words. Mrs. Stephen Wiswell, the toast mistress, spoke a few words of greeting and introduced the speakers and toasts.

"Here's the Stars and Stripes—To the Land that we love—and the American Woman."

Mrs. Ferris—"Our Mother," responded to by Mrs. Ferris. "God made the World and rested; God made Man and rested; God made Woman and never rested since." Mrs. Franklin Smith, State Regent of Massachusetts responded. Mrs. Wiswell then spoke about the Future of the Chapter. There was music by a Trio who played "The Voice of Love" and "The Rosary," a solo solo. Mrs. Ganse said a few words before parting and "America" was sung by the Chapter.

SHORT AND BUSY SESSION

Aldermen Hear Nonantum Protest over Junk Licences and Appoints Committee on New City Hall

While the meeting of the aldermen on Monday evening lasted about an hour, it was full of interest from start to finish. Nonantum is much exercised over the action of the board a few weeks ago in transferring the junk license of Abram Shrier from Bridge to Chapel street.

A largely signed protest was filed Monday night by residents of Chapel street and vicinity and an informal hearing was granted by the board on the matter. Miss Mary Blake stated this action opened up a new section of the city for the rag and junk business and it would greatly depreciate her property. Peter W. Ryan thought it was an outrage on his rights and asked why we should be made a dump for the rest of Newton. James E. Collins did not believe it was a proper business to conduct in that locality as it would be an eyesore and a fire risk. Walter J. Buckley was certain it would increase insurance rates. John Muse said that there would be hammering all day Sunday as these people did not work on Saturday. Elizabeth G. Blake said that the places of the junk men on West street were far from creditable to the city and Elizabeth J. Ryan said the place was nothing but a fire trap and we would wake up some night just like Chelsea. Remarks in a similar vein were made by Mrs. John Delaney, Joseph L. Sullivan, Katherine M. Nolan, John A. Delaney and Catherine Kearney. James J. Cannon, attorney for Mr. Shrier, stated that his client had been ordered out of the premises he had occupied on Bridge street for many years and was now the owner of the property on Chapel street for which he had paid $5350. Mr. Shrier had been a resident for 17 years and was a good citizen. The Chapel street place was purchased from Mr. DeLuca who had used it for his express business and before that it had been occupied by Max Canter, a junk dealer. There was a double house, store, a large stable and three separate outbuildings. Mr. Shrier would keep all his junk under cover and the premises would always be kept clean and properly conducted and the board could revoke the license at any time.

To deprive Mr. Shrier of this license at this time would work an untold hardship on him. Only three abutments are on the protest and only a short distance away are other junk dealers. Mr. Cannon said that the adjacent of the Italian and Hebrew in Nonantum had actually improved real estate conditions as they were willing to pay more for property than other nationalities.

Mr. C. Peter Clark appeared in favor of Edison light poles on Pleasant street. There were also hearings on Telephone conduits in Washington St. and Brooks avenue and on petition L. K. Liggett to keep 172 gallons of gasoline on Hammond street.

Mayor Childs sent in recommendations for various additional appropriations and urged legislation to pay widow of Wm. E. Young the salary which would have been paid him as a member of the Newton Fire department had he lived.

Petitions were received from J. T. Burns for auctioneer license, Charles T. Donahue for intelligence office license, Seaver et al for a bicycle shed at Technical High School, the Edison Co. for poles on Berkeley street and to remove poles from Walnut street, George E. Nichols for bowling alleys on Washington street, Joseph M. Towle for Soldiers' Relief, and W. M. Thompson for special grade to sewer on Avalon road. Various permits to use private garages were granted.

City Treasurer Newhall asked for $3100 for interest on temporary loans and reported the income of the Kendrick fund as $168.73. Street Commissioner Stuart reported completion of Beaumont avenue work at cost of $3423.67.

On recommendations of committees leave to withdraw was given on petitions of R. W. Hazeltin for garbage on Pelham street, the U. S. Oil Co. for gasoline permit on Commonwealth avenue, Guiseppe Cavallo for pool table licenses on Elm street and on abatement of sewer assessment on Fannie W. Fogg. Harold A. McLeod was granted a license for an auto truck, Masten & Wells to manufacture fireworks on Needham street. $75.44 sewer assessment of Mary J. O'Donnell was abated, water mains ordered in Bonad road, Elliot avenue, Wamest and Dorset roads, Norwood avenue laid out under the betterment act at a cost of $1078 and additional money given Sewer House Connections, Maintenance of Automobiles, Care of Library building and Laborers' Pensions.

The mayor was requested to invite a conference of Cambridge, Watertown, Waltham, Weston and Wellesley authorities over boulevard construction and public health measures in the Charles river valley.

The committee on Legislation reported no action necessary on resolutions of the city of Lawrence for concerted action on the high price of common necessities and on petition C. A. Chadwick for an embargo on coal.

The select committee on military drill at the High Schools reported that more information was needed and they had arranged for a public meeting on the matter at Players hall on Thursday evening, Dec. 21.

The select committee on city manager plan made a long report favoring the general plan but recommending that the matter be referred to the next city government for further investigation and for education of the people. The committee favors a city manager elected by a board of aldermen of 21 members, and responsible to that body who may remove him by majority vote. The city manager to have control of all city departments except finance, assessing, city clerk (Continued on page 8.)

The city election next Tuesday will attract little attention except in three wards where there are local contests for ward aldermen. The candidacy of Michael J. Moore against the re-election of Alderman Forknall as alderman-at-large from ward 1 is the only contest throughout the city and will prove a farce as Alderman Forknall is a sure winner. In ward 2 there is some danger of the election of Daniel O'Connell, chairman of the Democratic city committee over Mr. Hubert L. Carter, alderman at large, who will elect Mr. Carter by a large margin. The withdrawal of Mr. Leland Powers last week as a third candidate for ward alderman in this ward eliminated the only opportunity at this election to show the real operation of the preferential voting plan which has just been adopted. In one sense this is unfortunate for the preferential voting plan is the ideal method of defeating such candidates as Mr. O'Connell. In fact, the more good candidates on the ticket, the larger vote is apt to come out as each man will have his own group of friends and their second choice votes will aid all other good candidates. With Mr. Carter's friends voting for Mr. Powers for their second choice and Mr. Powers' friends voting for Mr. Carter as their second choice, there would be slight danger of Mr. O'Connell's election. In ward 3 there is no doubt whatever that the re-election of Alderman McCarthy who has the endorsement of most of the leading Republicans as well as the support of the majority of the Democratic party. Mr. Bucknam's candidacy in this ward is a great mistake. In ward 7 there is an interesting contest between two equally good candidates, Mr. Bancroft L. Goodwin, a successful business man, and Mr. Philip Nichols, a lawyer. Mr. Goodwin is probably a better known of the two and the chances favor his election.

In addition to the election of aldermen and school committee the voters will also decide the annual question as to liquor licenses in which every one is strongly urged to vote NO and they will also vote on the question of authorizing the city government to pension firemen. This matter is in two parts, one pension for disability on account of injury and the other on account of disability on account of age. Both of these questions should receive favorable action. If this is done, the fire department will then be on an equal footing with present conditions in the police department.

The abolition of party designations at the city election will be the only new feature of the change which has been made in the method of voting in this city, as it requires at least three candidates for office to give the preferential feature an opportunity to be used. Incidentally the city has saved $1000 by the abolition of the useless city primary.

VOTERS TAKE NOTICE!

Do the voters of Newton realize that the Liquor Interests in Boston and the suburbs are making the most desperate fight ever known to retain the territory now in the wet column, and secure a majority vote in the cities and towns which have been in the dry column? Do you know that last year Melrose, Somerville and Medford cast a higher per cent No vote than Newton? Do you know that 2362 registered voters failed to vote in Newton at the last City Election, and that 438 of those who did vote neglected to vote on the license question? For obvious reasons the Liquor Interests are to make a determined effort to secure every wet vote in the coming election. It is of the utmost importance that the drys get busy and see that the full No vote is polled. Every voter who has the best interest of the community at heart should consider it his duty to vote on this important question. Let's show the representatives to the General Court that they have a strong public sentiment back of them when bills relative to the Liquor Traffic are to be considered. This can be done in no other way than by our ballot.

THE CITY ELECTION

To the Editor of The Graphic:
It seems to me that it is really unfortunate that we have so few contests at our city elections. I do not mean by that that we do not select good men for service in the city government. The fact is they are so good that there is no disposition to contest their election. The uncontested election, however prevents that public interest in the selection of candidates that otherwise would be evident, and the small vote which the candidates receive in an uncontested election must necessarily be more or less discouraging. My feeling is that it is the duty of every citizen to vote, whether there be a contest or not. The candidates for reelection this year to the Board of Aldermen are really exceptionally good men, and have given unselfish and efficient service to the city in years gone by. It is but right that our citizens should turn out at the election and give them a cordial support as an endorsement of what they have already done. Men like Aldermen Early and Harriman, and in fact all who are candidates for reelection are entitled to a strong and cordial endorsement on the part of our citizens at the coming election, and should receive the votes of all men who believe in retaining efficient men in office.

MINSTREL ENTERTAINMENT

The Choirs of Grace Church in the Minstrel Entertainment last evening at the Hunnewell Club, Newton, duplicated their previous success and entertained an unusually large audience. The show was full of good wholesome fun, and the laughs came fast and furious.

Mr. Geoffrey Baker demonstrated his ability as interlocutor, and the opening chorus by the "waiters" and "club members" went over fine.

The minstrel medley arranged by Frederick B. Munro and sung by the entire chorus, was a pleasing number.

The end song, "I'm On My Way to New Orleans," by Albert Edwards, was one of the best in the show and Mr. Edwards showed that he can act and sing and can do both well.

Miss Metelene Maxim in the soprano solo, "Rackety Coo," provided a most entertaining musical offering, and Miss Florence White in the end song, "They Call It Dixie Land," came in for a good share of applause.

Howard Haywood made a great hit in the song, "I Met Her On The Beach at Honolulu," William Fawcett, in the end song, "Yacki Hacki, Whacki Woo," certainly made good in an uproarious manner, and won a lot of laughs.

Pay Roope more insouciant than ever, pulled off a lot of his usual "nut stuff" in monologue and recitation, and had the audience convulsed. Mr. Roope is an old-time favorite and a clever entertainer would not seem quite complete without him.

Miss Edna Banks, a sweet-voiced singer, scored a triumph in the end song, "You're a Dog Gone Dangerous Boy."

Miss Marie Sladen, sang two solos, "The Poppies Have Come," and "Rose of My Heart," in her artistic and thoroughly high class manner and it is a delight to see and hear her. Miss Sladen was accompanied by Miss Florence Carter.

Willard Meakin and William Hansen, two popular favorites, in the end songs, "If the Can-Canny Cannibals Capture New York," and "I'm Going Back to Iowa," pulled down the laughing bit of the evening and their funny stunts and kept the audience in a continual state of merriment.

The show closed with a novel chorus, "For Dixie and Uncle Sam," with solo, which was sung beautifully by Clark Hodder, a talented boy soprano.

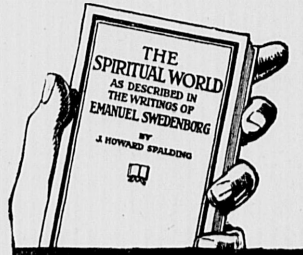

Among the best things in the performance were the settings and stage management. It was under the personal direction of Mr. Frederick B. Munro, and Mr. William F. Banks was stage manager.

Miss Helen Parker Munro was the pianist and the music was all that could be desired.

The "ends" were William Fawcett, Edna Banks, William Hansen, Albert Edwards, Florence White, and Willard Meakin.

Recently the deportation of natives, the seizure of the Sivas compound and the driving out of all Americans except Miss Fowle and her co-worker, Miss Mary L. Graham, made the position unusually difficult.

Miss Fowle was thirty-five years old, was born in Turkey, and lived there all her life. When the European war broke out she was engaged in teaching Armenians in the schools of Sivas. Her parents last heard from her in September. At that time she was nursing Turkish soldiers who were ill with typhoid fever.

NEWTON CLUB NOTES

The formal dance on Thanksgiving Eve was attended by nearly one hundred couples. The matrons were Mesdames Charles E. Riley, George F. Schraff and Frank L. Nagle, their husbands serving as ushers during the evening. The assembly room was crowded throughout the evening, although the serving of supper in the club dining room while the dancing continued upstairs attracted a large number during the supper period. It was pronounced one of the most successful of the many notable assemblies given in the club house.

The ladies' bowling tournament is progressing and the winning team can be seen emerging from Monday afternoon contests. The alleys are kept busy, a larger number of strings having been rolled so far in 1916 than in the previous year.

The ladies' afternoon bridge party last week was attended by seventy-six ladies; and the formal evening bridge on Wednesday of this week brought out enough card players to fill thirteen tables. The matrons were Mrs. Fred Schipper, Mrs. Kenneth Holbrook and Mrs. Wm. Dana Follett. Souvenirs were awarded to the following gentlemen, 1st Fred E. Mann, 2d Albert M. Lyon; ladies 1st, Mrs. C. E. Conant, 2d, Mrs. Horton S. Allen.

The Saturday lunch club is growing larger and is becoming quite a feature of the club activities. The Entertainment committee announces the Christmas Dance for Wednesday, December 27, and the usual neighborhood nights on Wednesdays, as well as open house on Christmas and New Year's.

DEATH OF MRS. GOODWIN

Mrs. Mary Lyman Goodwin passed away at her home on Church street Sunday evening. She had been ill but two days with pneumonia, her death being caused by a weak heart. The sad news came as a great shock to her many friends, some of whom had worshipped with her at the Immanuel Baptist Church, of which she was a most active and loyal member, only last Friday night. For some time she had made her home with her daughter Mrs. Henry Collins and prior to her coming to Newton had resided in Watertown and Wakefield.

Funeral services were held from her late residence, 223 Church street, yesterday noon, Rev. Harrie R. Chamberlain, officiating, and vocal solos being beautifully rendered by Bertha Carter Flinn. The interment was at Knollwood Cemetery, Sharon, Mass. Besides her daughter, Mrs. Henry Collins, she is survived by a son, Mr. Louis I. Goodwin of Cohasset, Mass.

CITY HALL

Mayor Edwin O. Childs was the orator last Sunday evening at the annual memorial services of the Waltham Lodge of Elks.

The select committee to consider a new city hall consists of Aldermen Early, Angier, Cole, Fitts and Price.

The Board of Appeals held a lengthy hearing Wednesday night on the appeal of the Waban Neighborhood Club from the refusal of the Building Commissioner to allow them to erect a wooden club house on Beacon street. The Club was represented by Mr. C. C. Blaney, Alderman Angier and the builder, Samuel Alcock. The Board sustained Mr. Forbush's action and the Club must now build of brick or other fire resisting material.

THE MOTHERS' REST

The management of the Department Store Fair held in Bray Hall, Newton Centre, for the benefit of the Mothers' Rest Association, wishes to express their gratitude for the kind and cordial co-operation given them by all the people of Newton.

To all those whose labors made the venture a success we are deeply grateful and for their cheerful and willing gifts of time and strength we can adequately express our appreciation. Although no accurate figures can be given at present, we have reason to believe that a round sum of $2500 has been netted for the work of the Association.

ANNIE B. KENDALL, Secretary.

have thought that if they went to fight for the British it would prepare them for the time when they would need to fight for India. The Indians do not know how to use fire arms as no Indian is allowed to carry a firearm for any purpose without a special permit and very few are granted permission.

Question. What is it costing India in order to be governed by Great Britain? Answer. Great Britain doesn't give one cent. They manage their affairs as well as it doesn't cost them one cent. India sends twenty million pounds to England in order to be governed by them. Of course this pays for the Secretary of State and other expenses.

Question. What has England done in India to improve the industrial situation or to furnish education to the people, are they making progress since their control? Up to 1757 India was a manufacturing country and the whole of English trade started of exports from India of the finished goods as silk, cotton, woolen goods and other cloths, and England sent money to pay India for these goods which were sold in England. After 1757 England tried to destroy our industries and they were completely destroyed up until 1830. In 1830 we tried to build some new mills and when these mills began to grow Lancashire grew uneasy. India is improving as much as England will let it.

TOWN MEETING

The Newton Highlands Improvement Society held an interesting meeting in Lincoln hall, Saturday evening to discuss the questions of a municipal bath house at Crystal Lake and a proposed High School on the South side of the city. The bath house question proved so popular that no action was taken on the second item.

Mr. Howard Whitmore, president of the Society was the moderator and Mr. Charles F. Johnson of the Playground Commission gave the facts of the case in regard to the bath house. Opposition to the bath house was expressed by Representative J. Weston Allen, John A. Gardner and Mr. Edward H. Ruby. The general sentiment of the meeting seemed to favor

GENERAL BARTLETT DEAD

General Charles W. Bartlett, a noted criminal lawyer of Boston and also well known in Democratic political circles, died Wednesday at his home on Mill street, Newtonville, after several years of failing health.

Though Gen. Bartlett was of New Hampshire lineage, an ancestor having been Gen. Thomas Bartlett of the Revolution, he was born in Boston, in 1845. His parents were Joseph C. and Katherine A. Bartlett. The family removed to Cambridge while Charles was still a child and he gained some schooling there.

After a few years there was another removal to Lee, N. H., where Charles became a farm boy with little opportunity for education.

Another move was made to Durham, N. H., and there the boy undertook to earn enough money to pay his way through college. In the meantime the Civil War broke out. He wanted to enlist, but his parents withheld consent till he was 20 years old, in 1864, when he enlisted in the 5th Massachusetts Regiment, serving for a year.

He began the study of law with Jeremiah Smith before entering college. He took two terms at an academy at Hanover, N. H., and graduated at Dartmouth in 1869, being in college with Gov. McCall and Hon. Samuel L. Powers. Like them, Gen. Bartlett taught school at times during his course.

He later spent one year at Albany, N. Y. Law School and practiced law at Dover, N. H., for two years after admission to the bar. He then came to Boston and entered the office of Napoleon Bonaparte Bryant. On the latter's retirement, 12 years later, Mr. Bartlett entered a partnership with Elbridge R. Anderson.

He was for a time somewhat prominent in politics. He presided at the Democratic State Convention in 1903 and was judge advocate general on the staff of Gov. Douglas, whom he attempted to succeed in office the same year, 1903. He was defeated by Curtis Guild Jr.

Mr. Bartlett was a past commander of John A. Andrew Post 115, G. A. R., and was never met without his Grand Army button. He was a 22d degree Mason, and a member of Mt. Taber Lodge, St. John's Chapter and De Molay Commandery.

General Bartlett took deep interest in the welfare of his alma mater, and had been president of the educational association of Dartmouth College and an active member of the various alumni associations. He belonged to the New Hampshire Club, Exchange Club of Boston, the Curtis Club, to many fraternal organizations and was a member of the Boston Bar Association, Middlesex Bar Association and American Bar Association.

Gen. Bartlett was married twice, first to Mary L. Morrison of Franklin, N. H., who died in 1882, and in 1897 to Miss Annie M. White of Acushnet, who survives. Two children by the first wife are Joseph W. Bartlett and Mrs. James R. Chandler, both of Waban.

The funeral services held this noon at Mt. Auburn chapel were attended by a host of friends and associates and were in charge of Prof. Benjamin T. Marshall of Dartmouth College. The honorary pall bearers were Hon. Melvin O. Adams, Thomas W. Proctor, Chas. T. Gallagher, Fred H. Williams, Justice H. C. Braley of the Supreme Court, Justice John Brown of the Superior Court, Attorney General H. C. Atwell, and Hon. T. J. Boynton. The active pall bearers were Messrs. Frederick E. Jennings and Arthur T. Smith of Mr. Bartlett's office, Daniel P. O'Connell, Jeremiah Sullivan, Frederick C. Allen, John W. Decrow, Damon Hall and Ralph N. Smith. The ushers were Major H. B. Perkins and Mr. Wallace Egerton. The body was taken to Newton Cemetery for burial, where "Taps" were sounded over the grave.

Quite a large number of Newton society folk are interested in the dance to be given tomorrow night at the Copley Plaza by Mrs. Helen W. Bowser, Mrs. Arthur W. Safford and Mrs. R. H. Gross of West Newton are among the patronesses.

Local Announcements

The program committee of the Auburndale Woman's Club regrets exceedingly the necessity for announcing that, owing to conditions over which they have no control, it has been found advisable to postpone the date of the Annual Guest Night of the club which was scheduled for December 9th at the Woodland Park Hotel.

The Newton Highlands Monday Club will meet on December 11 with Mrs. C. S. Luitweiler of Duncklee street, the subject being "New Books."

Miss Adelaide R. Webster, 10 Chester street, will entertain the Newton Highlands C. L. S. C. on Monday afternoon.

On Monday, Dec. 11, the Christian Era Study Club will meet with Mrs. J. W. Messenger of Aspen avenue.

The Home Economics class of the West Newton Women's Educational Club meets with Mrs. Olin Dickerman of Rossmore road, Newtonville, on December 11.

Mrs. Harriet L. B. Darling will speak on "Food Values and Planning of Meals" before the Brightelmston Club on December 11 under the direction of the Home department.

On Tuesday morning at 10.15 the Newton Parliamentary Law Club will meet in the Newton Public Library.

Mrs. Waldo W. Cole will be the hostess for the meeting of the Auburndale Review Club on Tuesday, Dec. 12, at her home on Vista avenue.

Mrs. Elsie K. Chamberlain will speak on "Spending Money for House Furnishings" at the meeting of the Home Economics department of the Newtonville Woman's Guild on Dec. 12.

Local Happenings

The regular meeting of the Progress Club occurred on Friday, Dec. 1, at the home of Mrs. Thomas Hayden, West Newton. After a business meeting an instructive and interesting study of "China and Her Millions" was presented by Mrs. J. F. Whitney. Numerous pictures were shown in illustration. The last period of the afternoon was devoted to a general discussion of "Home Economics," after which the club adjourned to meet with Mrs. Billings Dec. 15.

Mrs. W. J. Bicknell entertained the Newton Highlands Shakespeare Club on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 2. The first two acts of Henry IV, Part I, were read and studied under the guidance of Mrs. Smith. She showed how Shakespeare brought out the development of the political situation at the same time putting stress on the clever delineation of character.

Mrs. Robert M. Clark was in charge of the afternoon's study at the meeting of the Newton Highlands C. L. S. C. on Dec. 4th, her topic being "Woman and Citizenship." Mrs. Clark showed how gradually women have more and more become engaged in the larger housekeeping of the community in which they live, through the charitable and philanthropic organizations, through women's clubs, playgrounds and in ways familiar and too numerous to mention. The work done by women civic leaders who have become eminent the world over was referred to at some length.

The Newton Mothers' Club held its regular meeting on Monday, Dec. 4, at the home of Mrs. Albert C. Blunt, Jr. The topic of the afternoon was "Civics," Miss Taylor of the Stearns School Centre and Miss Rich of the Welfare Bureau telling of their work within our own city. A social hour closed the afternoon's program. The club will hold its annual luncheon-bridge at the Brae Burn Country Club on January 2nd instead of New Year's Day, since that has become a holiday.

The Waban Woman's Club listened to a most helpful talk by Joel Goldthwait, M. D., on "Proper Habits of Posture as a Basis of Health." Dr. Goldthwait forcefully brought home the serious truth that we have all too long regarded too lightly. By example he showed the correct and incorrect postures of standing and sitting and explained the good and bad results bound to follow, saying that the effect is not alone physical, but mental and spiritual as well. With the wrong posture all things being more or less internally disorganized, irritability follows, and often in an exaggerated form. Thus one becomes unbalanced and at no time can be at his or her best either mentally or spiritually. To use his words, "Is luxury going to dominate us? We are in a state that is either going ahead or backward, very fast. The Creator put into our hands, the power of decision, and the development of the races depends upon us." No one can drive an automobile, six days a week wrongly, and expect good results to follow the seventh day, nor can we continue to stand and sit wrongly, without paying for it seriously. He said it was amazing to observe, how many people break down, because they do not know how to control the body, and that even death resulted, with nothing more the matter than that for an instant, something became disorganized and like a flash, life ceased.

He urged the proper costuming of our children, proper chairs in our homes, and that we begin at kindergarten age, to teach the children the catechism of good posture: weight on balls of feet, waist in, chest up and chin in, and as a result, we shall have a splendid, healthy lot of children. He spoke of the change in character of the race during the last fifty years, from a practical type, to the weaker, slender type and that statistics show, that fifty years ago, ONE in every 602 were insane, and that in 1916 one in every 196 are insane, or sixty per cent, and in fifteen years more there will be seventy-five per cent unless we are trained to remember our bodies and the important part proper posture plays in life.

About 175 women of Newton Highlands responded to the invitation to meet at the Congregational Church on Tuesday afternoon of this week to consider the advisability of forming a large woman's club in that village. Mrs. Irving O. Palmer, president of the Newton Federation, consented to serve as temporary chairman and Mrs. George W. Barker of Newton Highlands, corresponding secretary of the Federation, was appointed temporary secretary. Those who are most vitally interested in the project pointed out that there is no desire on the part of anyone to interfere with the work or success of any of the five existing literary clubs. They feel, however, that there are many women in the village who have not the time nor the inclination to devote to strictly study clubs, who would be glad to have a share in community service and that such a club as is proposed would give opportunity for broader and more united work among them. It was voted to form such a club and 154 women signified their desire to join. A committee to draft a constitution and by-laws was appointed consisting of Mrs. C. G. 2. Wherever, chairman, together with the presidents of the five literary clubs, Mrs. Emory W. Clarke, Mrs. George Hill, Mrs. Louis H. Marshall, Mrs. Virginia Hutchinson and Mrs. Shute were elected as the nominating committee.

At the meeting of the Newtonville Woman's Guild on Dec. 5, Mr. Edward K. Hall gave most interesting and enlightening talk upon "Telephone Service." Mr. Hall told something of the mechanics of the service, the immense mileage of wire and the wonderful facilities offered by the company. He also mentioned ways in which the public can help the service, among them being the speaking of the cheery word to the operator instead of the fault-finding one. They are not allowed to be cross. What about the public? Mr. Hall said that a good class of girls is employed and that they receive good wages and are well looked after, that their men are good mechanics and the company is doing everything in its power to give satisfactory service. Several illustrations of the pains taken by operators in case of emergencies were related, one being the case of a Chinaman who was ill unto death in a hospital. He could tell the name of only one man in Boston whom he wished to have come to him and receive instructions as to setting up his affairs and sending word back to China. With no further information than that name the right man was located and he reached the hospital in time to relieve the mind of the sick man with the promise to carry out his wishes. This was accomplished by the persistent calling up of restaurants, Chinamen are employed. In the absence of Mrs. W. S. Higgins, the president, Mrs. W. S. Smythe was in the chair.

At the meeting of the Social Science Club on Wednesday morning after the completion of the business the time was devoted to reports of various Federation meetings and to that of the Garden committee of the club, Mrs. Irving U. Townsend, chairman. Mrs. F. E. Stanley and Mrs. Harry N. Miliken spoke of the annual meeting of the State Federation held at Lynn last June, bringing to the club in a delightful way the spirit of that convention. Mrs. Harry Lutz told of the annual meeting held at Franklin in October and Mrs. L. D. Gibbs of that of the Newton Federation in November. In describing the garden work, Mrs. Townsend said that 88 children bought seeds in the spring, but the long season of wet weather seriously hampered their success, so that when the committee made its round of visits it found only 46 gardens in a more or less prosperous condition. Mrs. Townsend spoke most appreciatively of the forestry work being done in the grade schools at the present time under Mr. McDonald. The teachers are seeing results along unexpected lines, particularly in the English work, this new information which the children are gaining furnishing them with material about which to write. The Committee is planning to co-operate with Mr. McDonald in the bulb work in the primary grades and has contributed the sum of $15. This new instructor has been employed on part time up to now, but it is hoped that he will be engaged for full time after the first of the year.

The Pierian Club of Upper Falls is pursuing a miscellaneous program for the present season. Some of the topics already considered have been, The New Note in Fiction, The New Note in Drama, Woman under the Law in Massachusetts, and Mothers' Pensions. At the meeting held at the home of Mrs. Willard on Wednesday of this week, Mrs. H. E. Locke presented a paper on "The Home and its Purpose," in which the subject was particularly well handled. A social hour with refreshments followed the reading of the paper.

A meeting to complete organization of the new club in Newton Highlands will be held on Tuesday, Dec. 12, at 3 o'clock in Odd Fellows' Hall.

Mrs. Francis B. Hornbrook will present the paper on "Holland in the East Indies" before the Social Science Club on Wednesday morning.

The Pierian Club will meet with Mrs. C. A. Chadwick on Dec. 13th.

"Practical Interior Decoration" is the subject to be considered at the meeting of the Newton Centre Woman's Club on Thursday at 10 A. M., being presented by Mrs. Elsie K. Chamberlain.

On Dec. 16 the study of Henry IV, Part I, will be continued by the Newton Highlands Shakespeare Club at the home of Miss Newhall, 62 Hartford street.

At Newton Centre Woman's Club yesterday Mrs. W. C. Crawford lectured on Current Events.

BILLY SUNDAY IN NEWTON

Mrs. William T. Rich sent out 300 cards to the ladies of Brookline and the Newtons to meet Rev. William A. Sunday on Thursday morning at her residence on Sargent street, and there was a very happy response to the invitation, for a large and representative gathering assembled at ten o'clock and the noted preacher gave a most earnest, sweet and helpful address on "Van Dyke's Lost Word." This was the first in a series of meetings at which Mr. Sunday will speak. The next one will be held at the residence of Mrs. Fred McQuesten, Beacon street, Brookline, next Thursday. The music was a feature of the program. Mr. Rodeheaver sang and with accompaniment by Mr. Brewster.

CLASSICAL HIGH SCHOOL

At a recent meeting of the Sophomore Class, the report of the Class Pin Committee was made. A choice between the two selected pins will be made by ballot.

The English Club is planning its annual Christmas Meeting, which will take place in about two weeks.

The two school debating clubs are holding regular sessions in the Assembly Hall on alternate Monday and Tuesday mornings. Mr. Epstein has recently been engaged as coach of the Boys' Debating Club.

Regular basketball practice began Monday afternoon in the gymnasium. The boys' teams will hold practice on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons, while the girls will occupy the gymnasium on Tuesdays and Thursdays. At the first practice there was a discouragingly small number of candidates for the boys' teams.

The Newton High School girls' hockey team ended its season last Friday morning by defeating the Alumnæ on Cabot Park by a score of 4 to 3. The winners were not represented by all their regular players, but showed superiority over their opponents in team-play. The work of Miss Fisher, Miss Perkins, and Miss Schermerhorn was conspicuous.

In its decisive defeat Thanksgiving morning, the school football team ended a season which has been very disappointing in many ways. Hampered at the start by scarcity of material, Coach Dickinson found great difficulty in developing an eleven capable of maintaining Newton's usual high standing. The team played eleven games, winning six, losing four, and playing one tie. Three of the four defeats were sustained at the first of the season, before the players had been rounded into shape. All victories were won by decisive scores, while the three first defeats were by very close margins. There was another keen disappointment at Waltham, where the repeated fumbling of the backfield players prevented a Newton victory.

The Newton boys, however, won second place in the Quadrangular League and also defeated several other strong elevens. Although beaten by the undefeated Brookline eleven in the final game, the Newton team played in a creditable manner. It was only the superior kicking game displayed by Johnson and Lally which enabled the visitors to capture the championship. Brookline proved itself a well-developed, fighting eleven, and is deserving of its honors.

Captain Henry Garrity has been given a place in the first eleven of the All Scholastic eleven by the Boston papers, the Globe giving him the captaincy of the team.

TECHICAL HIGH SCHOOL

The three upper classes assembled in the hall Wednesday morning, and were addressed by Rev. Edward T. Sullivan of Newton Centre. Dr. Sullivan gave a very inspiring talk on the subject of the necessity of building character. In a clear and forceful manner, he pointed out that the mental attitude in life is of highest importance, that scarcely secondary to this is the art of successfully dealing with other people, and that character is, after all, that which is really worth living for.

Owing to still another unavoidable delay, the first issue of the "Dynamo" has not yet appeared. For several weeks this issue has been awaited by the pupils with great eagerness.

The musical work in this school is progressing very rapidly under Mr. Harrington. The Girls' Glee Club, the Boys' Glee Club, and the School Orchestra are now all under way, and are being enthusiastically supported by the students.

FITZGERALD—CONSIDINE

The marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Considine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Considine, to Mr. Thomas Clement Fitzgerald, was solemnized on Thanksgiving Eve at the Church of Our Lady, Newton, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Fr. Kelly. Miss Considine was attended by Miss Anna Regan, and the best man, Mr. John Considine, a brother of the bride.

The bride wore white crepe de chine with pearl trimmings, and a necklace of pearls, the gift of the groom. Her bridesmaid wore blue crepe de chine. The bride carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley; the bridesmaid carried pinks.

The wedding march was played by Miss Annie Melkie, of Brighton, a close friend of the bride.

Many guests from out of town attended the reception which followed the ceremony, at the home of the bride's parents, 8 Pearl street, Newton. The young couple were assisted in receiving the party by the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Considine and by Miss Anna and Kathryn Fitzgerald, sisters of the groom.

THE UNITY CLUB

The Unity Club held a meeting Tuesday afternoon at the residence of Miss Marjorie Holmes on Gramere street, Newton.

The Club, which is an interesting organization, composed of the young ladies of Channing Church, has a membership of about twenty. Meetings are held the first and third Tuesdays of each month at the homes of the various members. Arrangements are being made for a Shakespeare meeting to be held shortly after Christmas, in the parlors of Channing Church. Rev. Mr. Lutz will give readings from Shakespeare, and music will be furnished by members of the Channing Alliance. At the annual meeting of the Club, which was held recently, the following officers were elected for the year 1916-17: Miss Eva Bailey, president; Miss Dorothy Emmons, vice-president; Miss Margaret Ball, secretary and Miss Edith Fisher, treasurer.

LODGES

Gethsemane Commandery, Knights Templars of Newtonville, were the guests last Monday night of Joseph Warren Commandery of Roxbury, about 75 members of the local lodge making the trip. The escort of Gethsemane Commandery under direction of Adj. Albert E. Mullings, gave an exhibition drill.

THE MELTING POT

Fifty years ago when a melting pot was mentioned we thought of a real pot, the homely one, and the actual flame, producing metal for the needs of mankind.

In recent years it meant to us a process by which the crude additions to our numbers were molded into good citizens of our glorious Republic.

Now, at the Allied Bazaar, we will see a reciprocal combination of these processes, where at Booth No. 41, the ladies of Newton South Allied Relief Association with the aid of the metal pot and the good citizens will add to the provision for molding back to health and usefulness some of the poor soiled broken chips hewn in agony out of the human rocks standing firmly in the path of the avalanche of German Kultur.

Where metals are not available the committee will convert into money anything given to them.

The committee in charge are Mrs. Guilford M. Stuart, chairman; Mrs. G. Duthie-Strachan, vice-chairman; Mrs. James Liddell, secretary with the assistance among others of Mrs. Elbert G. Allen, Mrs. A. E. Alvord, Mrs. R. D. Dana, Mrs. Wallace B. Donham, Mrs. J. Guiler, Mrs. Warren R. Holt, Mrs. H. J. Ide, Miss Ingram, Mrs. Seward W. Jones, Mrs. Daniel T. Kidd, Mrs. S. Hardy Mitchell, Mrs. Noonan, Mrs. Geo. A. Pierce, Miss Porter, Mrs. Randall, Mrs. William G. Snow, Mrs. Hiram Tuttle, Mrs. H. E. Williams.

The wifely who will attend the Melting Pot are The Misses Sylvia and Elizabeth Burdette, Harriet Sweeney, Jessie Stuart, Grace and Ruth Bentley, Esther Pratt, Eleanor Wildger, Miss Brown, Ethel Gardner, Frances Burr, Louise Plympton, Virginia Parker, Elizabeth Osgood and Katherine Jones.

HIPPODROME SHOW

That big and wondrous New York Hippodrome spectacle, "Hip, Hip, Hooryay," will not leave town this week but will be continued at the Boston Opera House until Saturday evening, December 16. The conclusion was reached on Saturday as the result of the tremendous impetus in the business for the past week and the extraordinary demand upon the box office for tickets.

The audience yesterday afternoon and last night were such as to tax the capacity of the Boston Opera House and the programme arranged by Charles Dillingham was one of exceptional merit as well as novelty. Charlotte, the "queen of the runners," was the bright particular feature, and her entrance was made memorable by her performance of the celebrated Candle Dance. This dance serves particularly to illustrate the marvelous muscular control of Charlotte. It also evinces her charming sense of beauty in form. The applause which punctuated the amazing exhibition of the little artist bore testimony to the perfection of her performance.

This Candle Dance will be repeated at every performance during the week. Needless to say the other special features of the great show, including Sousa and his Band and the constant succession of surprises kept the audience forever on the alert for a new sensation.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—Messrs. Shubert will present at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, next week, beginning Monday evening, December 11th, a new farcical comedy by Mark Swan, entitled "Somebody's Luggage." The star of the piece will be James T. Powers, associated for so many years with successful comedies. He goes to the Plymouth Theatre direct from a successful run at the 48th Street Theatre, New York. His starring company will include Beatrice Terry, Percy Waram, George Manning, Charles Peyton, George Renevan, Homer Granville, Ronald Byram, Beryl Mercer, Lionel Belmore, Clifford Brooke, Betty Bellairs, Tom Rogers and Robert Ayrton. Mr. Powers has counted many funny lines into the already humorous story, and advance accounts may be relied upon that the play is possibly the funniest in which Mr. Powers has ever been cast.

WILBUR THEATRE—It is no exaggeration to say that "The Cinderella Man," which enters on the 2nd month at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston (the house of long runs), next Monday evening, December 11th, is one of the prettiest plays of the season, one of the two or three that will be remembered when the century, now in its teens, has grown old and gray at the half-century mark. The comedy is one of those refreshing, wholesome plays that are a continual joy. Its humor is natural, with no vestige of strain or artificiality; every line is clean, in short, "The Cinderella Man" is a play to be enjoyed and remembered.

MR. BURRILL DEAD

Mr. Charles Burrill, for many years connected with the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, died suddenly on last week Thursday of heart failure at his home at 3 Davis avenue, West Newton. On Wednesday he was in his business office and appeared to be in his usual health. Mr. Davis was born in Boston in 1838 and attended school there. He engaged in the wholesale millinery trade, up to about the time of the Boston fire. In later years he had been active in insurance interests. He belonged to the Masons and several other fraternal organizations. Mr. Burrill was a widower and is survived by a daughter, Miss Ella M. Burrill, who lives at the family home in West Newton.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at his late home on Davis avenue and were largely attended. Rev. Julian C. Jaynes of the Unitarian Church officiated and the body was cremated at Mt. Auburn.

An order was passed directing the City Clerk to send copies of the dockets of the board to all past members of the city government in order to keep them interested in city affairs.

An order was also passed for a select committee to consider the matter of a new City Hall on the Claffin estate. President Blanchard explaining that the possibility of enlarging the High Schools made it advisable to also consider the possibility of a new City Hall.

The members absent were Aldermen Allen, Bentley, and Malcolm.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—Taylor Holmes, one of the most resourceful and volatile farceurs on the American stage, will be seen at the Majestic Theatre, Boston, for the second week, beginning next Monday, December 11th, in that great comedy success, "His Majesty Bunker Bean." Its success in Boston has been instantaneous, and crowded houses prevail at every performance. Readers of the "Saturday Evening Post" will recall the genuine pleasure derived from the Bunker Bean stories of Harry Leon Wilson. Lee Wilson Dodd, the author, has closely followed the Wilson book and carefully preserved the amusing characters. The comedy is surcharged with good wholesome fun, at times hilarious, but always provoking hearty laughter. Joseph Brooks, the producer of "His Majesty Bunker Bean," has surrounded the star with an unusually clever company.

SHUBERT THEATRE—"You're in Love," a new musical play by Otto Hammerbach and Rudolph Friml, presented by Arthur Hammerstein at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, met with immediate success last Thursday evening, when it had its metropolitan premier, and will start on its second week next Monday evening, December 11th. This is the fourth work of these noted composers and librettists that Mr. Hammerstein has given to the stage—the charming "The Firefly," the melodious "High Jinks" and the tinkling "Katinka." Twenty odd song numbers, whistleable, singable, delightfully tinkling kind, are allotted to the principals. Mr. Hammerstein has furnished settings of exquisite beauty and sartorial embellishments that for classic artistry have been equalled by any of his former productions.

OUR PRISON PROBLEM

Miss Kate Barnard Addresses South Community Forum

The meeting of the Newton South Community Forum held last Sunday afternoon at Bray Hall, Newton Centre, again attracted a large and interested audience. In the absence of Prof. W. Z. Ripley, Representative J. Weston Allen, presided.

The speaker of the afternoon was Miss Kate Barnard who gave an interesting talk on the subject "Wrestling with Prison Problems."

Miss Barnard said in part:—This crime problem is costing us $3,500,000 a day, and $1,000,000,000 a year, and we are not getting anything for our money. The prisoners are an army of human beings caged like wild animals. In one of these institutions there are about 7000 men who do not know how to do anything. In one of these penitentiaries near Oklahoma we board some of our prisoners as we have no place for them.

I was going to Arkansas one day and two men came and sat near me. One man said he had built railroads all over the world but he never saw such conditions as the men were working under in those swamps. He said one of the prisoners looked as if he were going to faint and he asked him why he didn't ask for rest, and the young man said it would be worse for him if he did.

The Jefferson prisons are always being burnt down by the prisoners and don't wonder either, they are always complaining that they are being starved. After studying this criminal problem for twelve years I believe that crime lies in ignorance. The men are not educated and have found it difficult to get work and they find that crime is more inviting than to fit into the Nation's work. We ought to do something about it, we have enough of them. What I believe we should do is to get hold of the children.

I hope to put through a child labor law in Oklahoma and a compulsory education law on top of that. Possibly ten to twenty men out of a hundred who won't educate their children because they say their children are no better than they are, and as they had no education it is not necessary for their children to. Another side to this is poverty. If a mother says it is necessary for her to have her child's

SMALL VOTE AT CITY ELECTION

Forknall, Carter, McCarthy and Goodwin Elected Under New Preferential Voting Plan

The city election held on Tuesday was a dull and spiritless affair with only aldermen and school committee to be chosen and referendums on the liquor question and on pensions to firemen.

In ward two, Mr. Hubert L. Carter was elected over Daniel O'Connell by a margin of 59 first choice votes. In ward three Alderman Justin A. McCarthy easily defeated Mr. Charles I. Bucknam by 299 first choice votes and in ward seven, Mr. Bancroft L. Goodwin won by 14 votes over Mr. Philip Nichols. The only city wide contest was made by Charles J. Moore against Alderman Reuben Forknall of Ward 1. Mr. Forknall winning by 1635 to 669.

The city continued in the No license column by a vote of 2401 No to 806 Yes. Both features of the firemen's pension referendum were favorably acted upon, that for disability having a vote of 2169 Yes to 444 No and that for retirement at 65 years of age for disability being Yes 2002 and No 593.

The interesting feature of the election was the use for the first time in the state of the preferential voting plan. There was more or less confusion in its use, chiefly because of the lack of candidates. With only one or two candidates for office there can be no real "preferential" voting. This resulted in a number of voters marking their ballots in the second choice and other choice columns, instead of in the first choice column and thereby losing their vote, for only first choices can be counted where less than three candidates are on the ticket.

This was particularly noticeable in precinct 3 of ward 2 where Mr. O'Connell received 151 first choice votes, 4 second choice votes and 40 third choice votes. There is no question but what all of the second and third choice votes were intended to assist Mr. O'Connell. In all fairness, however, it should be stated that the result in ward 2 would still have favored Mr. Carter if all the first, second and third choice votes had been counted for each candidate. Mr. Carter's total would have been 400 and Mr. O'Connell, 390.

In the entire city about 160 voters used the second and third choice columns in indicating their choice for aldermen at large, about 150 being marked in the third or outside column on the ballot. This was entirely due to carelessness and, in case of any serious contest, would probably have been obviated. Indeed, in the ward contests in ward 3, this possibility was foreseen and special instructions sent out in advance, urging voters to mark their ballots in the square nearest the name, with the result that out of 839 votes cast, there were 57 third choice and only 27 second choice votes, and some of these may have been used in connection with a first choice vote for either candidate.

The vote for alderman at large in ward 1 and on the liquor question will be found elsewhere, that for other candidates being as follows.

40 women cast their votes for school committee and all exercised a first choice, thereby giving the men a lesson in carefulness in voting.

Boston Bank President Dies Suddenly at Newton Home

Mr. Charles R. Batt, president of the National Security Bank of Boston, died suddenly at his home on Washington street, Newton, Saturday, Mr. Batt had not been ill and attended to his daily business affairs up to the time of his death.

Mr. Batt was one of the best-known men in the banking business in Boston. He stood high among his associates and was considered one of the ablest of Boston's bankers. His word was as good as his bond and his friendships were many.

The National Security grew fast under the directing eye of Mr. Batt. One of the banks of a small capital, it could boast of one of the largest surpluses compared with its capital in the city. Mr. Batt had the respect and esteem of all his business associates.

Mr. Batt was a member of the Algonquin Club of Boston, the old Temple Club of that city, the Hunnewell Club of Newton, and had been an active member of the New Old South Church, Boston.

He is survived by a widow and two daughters, Mrs. Frank M. Ferrin and Mrs. Loring L. Marshall, both of Newton.

Lucy Jackson Chapter Holds an Interesting Meeting

The December Meeting of the Lucy Jackson Chapter D. A. R. of Newton was held at the residence of Mrs. Francis E. Stanley, Centre street, Newton on Monday afternoon, December 11th. There was a large attendance. The hostesses were Mrs. F. E. Stanley, Mrs. George H. Talbot, Mrs. Stanley, Mrs. Thayer and Miss Florence E. Tower.

The meeting was called to order at 3 o'clock, the Regent, Mrs. Fessenden presiding. The report of the Secretary was read and approved. It was reported that as a result of the Colonial Tea and Loan Exhibition held in October, Mrs. Holmes, Chairman, was enabled to pass over to our Treasurer, the sum of $143.47.

Mrs. Osgood gave a report of the Patriotic Religious Meeting held at King's Chapel in November. Mrs. Osgood spoke of it as patriotic, dignified and inspiring.

Mrs. Pulsifer spoke to the ladies in regard to an all day meeting for relief work to be held at her home on the fourth of January. A silver offering was taken at the meeting at Mrs. Stanley's to cover the expense of materials for this work.

Mrs. Howe, chairman of the Patriotic Educational Committee told of the need of funds to carry on educational work in the mountain section in the western part of our own State, where the need is far greater than we realize.

After the singing of "America" Mrs. Fessenden introduced Mrs. William de Y. Field, ex-Regent of the Paul Revere Chapter, also our own vice-regent, Mrs. Francis Newhall, both of whom read papers concerning the Battle of Bunker Hill. Mrs. Field's was a most interesting and humorous letter written by a young man of seventeen to his cousin, describing the events that took place at the laying of the cornerstone of Bunker Hill Monument. Mrs. Newhall followed. Mrs. Field read an article entitled "Gunpowder for Bunker Hill" by Ballard Smith, that was both interesting and instructive.

At the close of the meeting the ladies were entertained by some delightful piano and violin selections played by two of Mrs. Stanley's grandchildren, Stanley and Merrihew Hallett.

The usual social hour followed and refreshments were served by the hostesses.

NEWTON OPERA HOUSE

The story of the screen version of Robert W. Chambers' widely read novel, "The Common Law," in which Clara Kimball Young will appear at the Newton Opera House on Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 20 and 21, is one that will appeal to every patron of motion pictures.

The characters in the story are distant metropolitan types of unusual interest, and as produced by Director General Albert Capellani, the picture promises to be the sensation of the coming season.

EDITORIAL

The operation of the preferential system of voting on Tuesday can be neither praised nor blamed, for the lack of candidates practically eliminated all the good features of the plan and the additional spaces in which to vote confused quite a number of voters. A careful study of the figures indicates that about 150 voters or between 4 and 5 per cent carefully marked their ballots in the third column instead of in the space nearest the name of the candidate.

The new plan did not affect the result in any way for all the successful candidates on first choices, were also the leaders in the combined vote of all choices.

It should also be noted that the absence of party designation did not affect the election in the slightest degree, even in ward 2 where considerable fear had been expressed on these lines.

The statement in the Boston papers that many voters had been practically disenfranchised by the new plan because of the large number of blank votes recorded will not bear analysis, for it is the usual experience where there are so many uncontested offices that voters neglect to mark the entire ballot, indeed many hundred voters simply vote on the liquor question. Two years ago the blanks cast for aldermen at large ran from 1400 to 1500 and this year is practically the same, and cannot be attributed to preferential voting.

A summary of the preferential voting plan as operated under adverse conditions last Tuesday shows that the net result as to election of candidates was not affected, the abolition of party designation was without effect, 4 to 5 per cent of the voters marked their ballots carelessly and the city saved the bother and $1000 expense of a useless city primary.

The overwhelming adoption of the plan of holding a constitutional convention next June, should be a call to every man interested in good government to begin work at once to make sure that Newton will be represented at that convention with its best citizens. This city will take part in the election of the 16 delegates to be elected from the state at large, in the four delegates to represent this Congressional district and in the election of the three men who will directly represent this city. These delegates will be chosen May 1st and there is a possibility, if many candidates are placed in the field, that a knockout primary will be held April 3rd. If active work is begun at once to induce our best citizens to undertake this task, it may be possible for us to keep the number down to practically those to be elected. In this connection, the editor would like to suggest names of a few men, who are fitted by experience, ability and training to adequately represent this city. These suggestions are made without previous consultation and are made regardless of party bias. We present the names of Hon. George S. Smith, Hon. George Hutchinson, Hon. Henry E. Bothfield, and Messrs. Joseph W. Bartlett, Albert M. Lyon, D. Fletcher Barber and Richard M. Saltonstall.

While the present holiday season is a most inappropriate time to agitate the matter of military drill in the High Schools, the opportunity to give some expression to what is thought to be a general feeling of the community at the public meeting to be held next Thursday night at Players' Hall, West Newton, should not be neglected by those who believe that the best interests of the country in the future will be thereby conserved.

The action of the school committee on this subject has been most disappointing. Its report of last winter while apparently favoring something of the sort, merely blocks any progress until the city furnishes a large sum of money for a school gymnasium. In other words the school committee is using the sentiment for military drill as a club to get an expensive gymnasium. The merit of this plan can be better judged when we learn that 2500 boys are given military drill in Boston on a floor space said to be but a trifle larger than the present drill shed at the High School at Newtonville. There seems to be no good reason why military drill could not be established at once in the High Schools on an appropriation for the salary of the instructor and for the initial cost of equipment.

While there are some strong arguments in favor of a city manager form of government for Newton, political conditions in this city are in such shape that it will be impossible to have the matter seriously considered for some years to come. We again call attention to the provision of our city charter which authorizes the appointment of an assistant mayor and suggest that this plan, if properly worked out would give all the advantages of a city manager form of government, at least for experimental purposes.

The favorable vote on authorizing pensions to firemen on account of disability is most gratifying. There was no adequate reason why members of this department should not have the same treatment as members of the police department.

The editor extends a warm welcome from "Salt River" to Messrs. O'Connell, Bucknam and Nichols. There are many things for which even defeated candidates can be grateful.

The city cast its usual satisfactory majority for No license.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETS

Dr. John F. Fitzgerald, former Mayor of Boston, was the guest of the evening at the monthly meeting of the Newton Board of Trade, held at Newtonville last Monday evening. The meeting was one of the best of the year and was extremely well attended.

Prior to introducing Dr. Fitzgerald, President Cozens conducted the business session, which was marked by the report of the Nominating Committee for officers for 1917. The report which was read by Chairman M. P. McKinnon, named the following: For President, Horace W. Orr; vice-presidents, 1st, Sidney R. Porter; 2nd, Henry W. Crowell; 3rd, R. H. Evans; 4th, John H. Gordon; 5th, S. T. Emery; 6th, John W. Byers; secretary, Harold Moore; treasurer, W. L. Sampson; directors, ward 1, John T. Burns; ward 2, Thos. L. Driscoll; ward 3, Ernest F. Dow; ward 4, Arthur W. Hollis; ward 5, Gordon H. Rhodes; ward 6, Wm. J. Cozens; ward 7, Burt M. Rich.

President Cozens introduced Dr. Fitzgerald as the Mayor who had made Boston bigger and busier, but who had left it to Billy Sunday to make it better. The Ex-Mayor's address was devoted in great part to an answer to a statement of President Franklin W. Hobbs of Arlington Mills, made last week, in which he said that Boston depends in great part upon outside business for its commerce without which it would be no larger than Gloucester or Salem.

SWEETHEARTS

The Newton Amateur Opera Association opened its third season on Tuesday evening in Players' Hall, West Newton, before a large audience representing the society and business life of the city.

Victor Herbert's opera, "Sweethearts," written by Harry B. Smith and Fred De Gressac, lyrics by Robert B. Smith, was presented under the direction of Mr. William G. Hamblen, organist of Grace Church, Newton.

In staging the opera no time nor expense was spared to give the picture the desired realism, and its success was not due to the fact that the music itself is of unusual merit, but because of the splendid cast that was selected to portray the various characters, most important of which are: "Sylvia," Katherine Sewall; "Dame Paula," Eleanor M. Morton; "Lizette," Florence Hoar; "Clairette," Marguerite Kellen; "Babbette," Bertha Plummer; "Jeanette," Hazel Carley; "Toinette," Edith Jacobs; "Nanette," Rosa Allen; "Mikel Mikeloviz," W. V. V. DANCING PARTY

Among the many delightful social events of the holiday season, was the informal dancing party given by Mrs. Clarence C. Smith and Mrs. William F. Plant on Thursday evening at the Hunnewell Club, Newton.

Stanley Hall was decorated most elaborately by Galvin, in chrysanthemum yellow and green. Poinsettias of southern smilax were twined artistically along the side walls of the hall and around the electric lights which were shaded with yellow. Palms, ferns and potted plants were arranged on the platform and large bunches of the glowing blossoms were placed at each corner of the alcove at the lower end of the hall, which formed a perfect floral bower thru which the electric lights gleamed.

The decorative scheme of yellow and green was carried out in the dining hall. The mantle was centered with chrysanthemums, and palms and greenery were arranged about the open fireplace and the chandeliers.

The table decorations were most effective; asparagus fern edged the entire circumference of the table, and in the centre was a large basket of Ward and Ophelia roses, surrounded by yellow shaded candles in silver candlesticks.

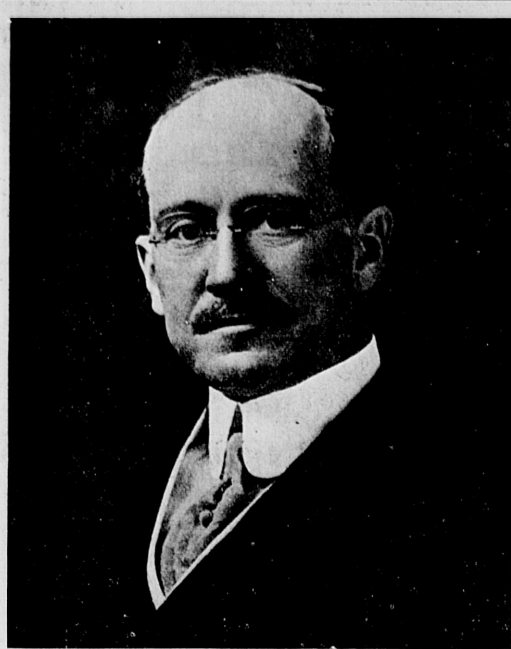

The ladies who poured were Mrs. F. E. Stanley, Mrs. Schrafft, Mrs. Charles Whittemore and Mrs. J. Q. A. Whittemore.

Mr. Hugh Payne furnished the music, which consisted of an orchestra of five pieces, and a very fine program was given.

The ushers were Messrs. Ralph W. Angier, Calkins, Dana, Defren, Emery, Gruener, Harriman, Hodgson, Parker, Scofield and J. R. Sampson.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Channing H. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ratschky, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ratschky, and Mr. R. B. Stanley of Boston, and Mr. and Mrs. Snyder and Mr. and Mrs. Van Tassel of Winchester.

There was much interest in the work of the Allies' relief at the Union Church Vestry on Tuesday and as a result the following articles were forwarded by Mrs. Angier: 32 Bed Pads, 1 pair Knitted Socks, 7 Eye Bandages, 6 Pillows, 60 Tampons, 1460 Surgical Sponges, old linen gloves, etc.

SAFETY FIRST IN PASTEURIZED MILK

ANY FATHER'S ACCOUNT OF HIS VISIT TO ONE OF OUR BEST DAIRIES

Diseases carried by milk have always frightened me, especially as I am a married man with a youngster at home whose diet consists almost entirely of dairy products. Frankly I was worried by the epidemics traced to the barnyard.

Then I read about pasteurized milk to which no disease has ever been milk in constant motion. This obviated any possibility of the cream rising to the top and assured a uniform percentage of butter-fat to the entire milk supply.

From here the milk passed to the next room, where the actual process of pasteurization took place.

Upon the wall was an automatic chart, which my guide informed me, kept a written record of the degree of heat reached in the heating machine located in the next room.

make the milk safe. "You see," my guide went on, "when the milk leaves these compartments it is hot, and the next operation is calculated to cool it in the quickest possible time."

"This cooler is made in three sections of copper tubing. Through the top section is running constantly a stream of water; through the second section below it, ice water, and into the third section is pumped brine at a very low temperature. The result is that the milk running over these three the milk was packed, were absolutely dry. "Why is this?" I asked my guide. "Why is it that this room is not damp like other refrigerating rooms I have been in?"

Dangers of "Raw Milk"

One is naturally curious to learn directly from headquarters some of the details of pasteurization, and to have the rare opportunity of confronting the man who knows, with questions that seem difficult, if not impossible to answer. We were fortunate in finding Mr. C. H. Hood, the president of the company, at the West Lynn plant.

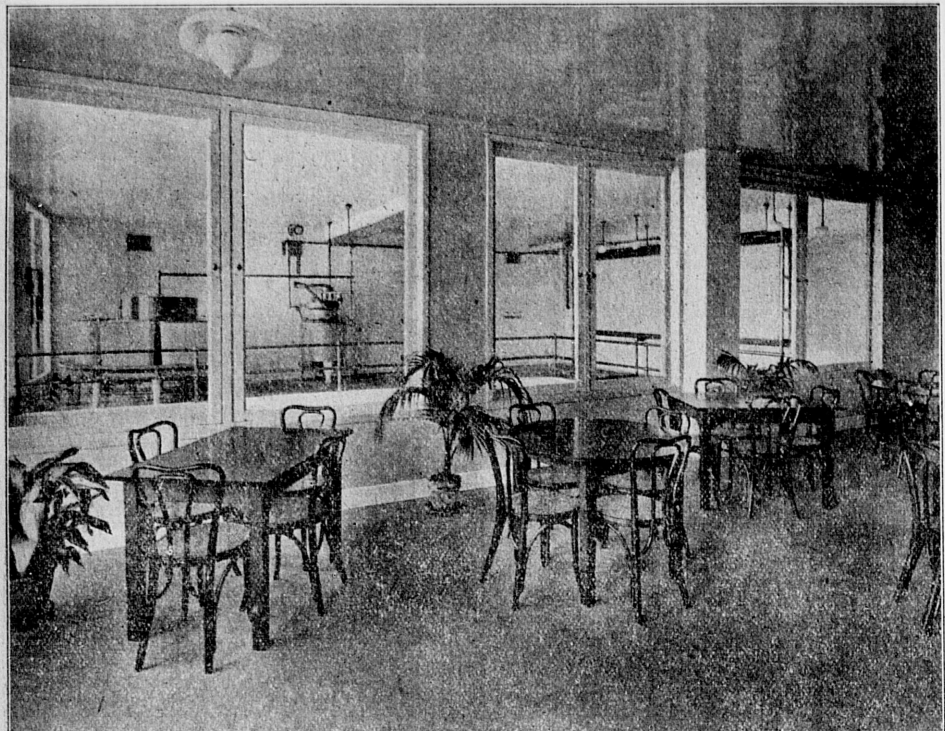

Assuming a sceptical air, we said, glancing about at the complicated machinery, "Our grandmother and her neighbors in the old days got their milk in pails from an old colored man, who never seemed extravagantly clean; there was none of this talk in those days about the dangers of raw milk and people seemed as healthy as they are now. Why, Mr. Hood, do we need all this complicated machinery?" A genial smile came over the gentleman's face as he answered our question with another: "Why do you need life insurance?" he said.

"As a matter of fact, in Boston, in 1882, for every 1000 babies born, 174 died before they reached the age of one year; whereas, during 1914, there were only 100 deaths per 1000 births, and all this reduction in spite of the fact that there are more babies being fed on cow's milk, a more densely populated community and a growing birth rate. If this is not a tribute to a better milk supply, then what is? As dairy experts, we believe we are entitled to some credit for this improvement. Why, do you know, we put milk in a glass bottle before the Health Department passed a regulation requiring it. You will find that some day

"While investigations on the subject are not complete, it is absolutely known that typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria, tonsillitis and tuberculosis are caused by raw milk. The method of ascertaining these facts is to feed guinea-pigs the milk and observe the results. For example: in an epidemic that occurred in Watertown there were several deaths from typhoid fever. The health officers learned that all the patients, or at least 90 per cent of them, used milk from one dealer. Thereupon the health officers made blood tests of the men working in this dealer's dairy and discovered that an Italian dairyman, who milked the cows, was infected with the disease and had what is known as walking typhoid. This is but one of many cases by which experts have been able to discover the variety of diseases, or rather of disease germs, that are transmitted in milk."

"But taking this case you mentioned, Mr. Hood, did not the dairyman know of the precautions necessary to public health? Are there not Government publications for the guidance of farmers in these matters?"

"There are, indeed, numerous publications," answered Mr. Hood, "and very good ones, too, if the farmer would only read and heed them. Business has enabled me to know the New England farmer. He is very conservative, and feels reluctant to be told how his business should be run. In many cases he has learned his methods from his father, who had learned them from his grandfather, and they have come to be family traditions, that are more or less sacred to him. While these methods were undoubtedly the best in the days of his grandfather, the science of food production has increased very rapidly in the last few years. It is to the scientists, and the work they have done, that I attribute the great success of the Hood Company. We were the first milk-distributing organization in the country to employ our own bacteriologists, as traced. Naturally interested, I made several inquiries, and as a result I was asked to examine for myself the entire process of pasteurization at the new Hood milk plant near Lynn. I accepted this kind invitation and very shortly arrived. Just on the outskirts of Lynn, at a large building of the most modern construction. Not a particle of wood in the entire structure—and not a level floor. Every floor, in every room, sloped to a drain, so that with the aid of a hose they were easily and quickly washed down and cleaned.

Then we entered the building. Here was a stairway, spotlessly clean. The walls were tiled—shiny white tiles. At the head of these stairs—the office. A large, airy, roomy office, immaculately clean, the walls and ceiling all painted that fresh, clean white.

There was not a spot that I could see where dust or dirt could collect. That this might be particularly so, the desks were set on legs. Sanitary cleanliness seemed to be the watchword. Even where the walls joined the ceiling the joints were rounded to facilitate cleansing.

But what I wished to see more than anything else was the actual process of pasteurization. This, however, was reserved till the last. First we went through the stables, the receiving rooms, where there was always the same absolute cleanliness I noticed on first entering the building.

We finally came to a room where a number of white-clad attendants were busy working. At one side were two large glass-lined receptacles. It was to these that the milk was carried from the receiving room. These were for receiving the milk, and connected with a motor, attached to the end of each one, was a rod with propeller-like blades at the end, which kept the

Mr. Hood's Great Process

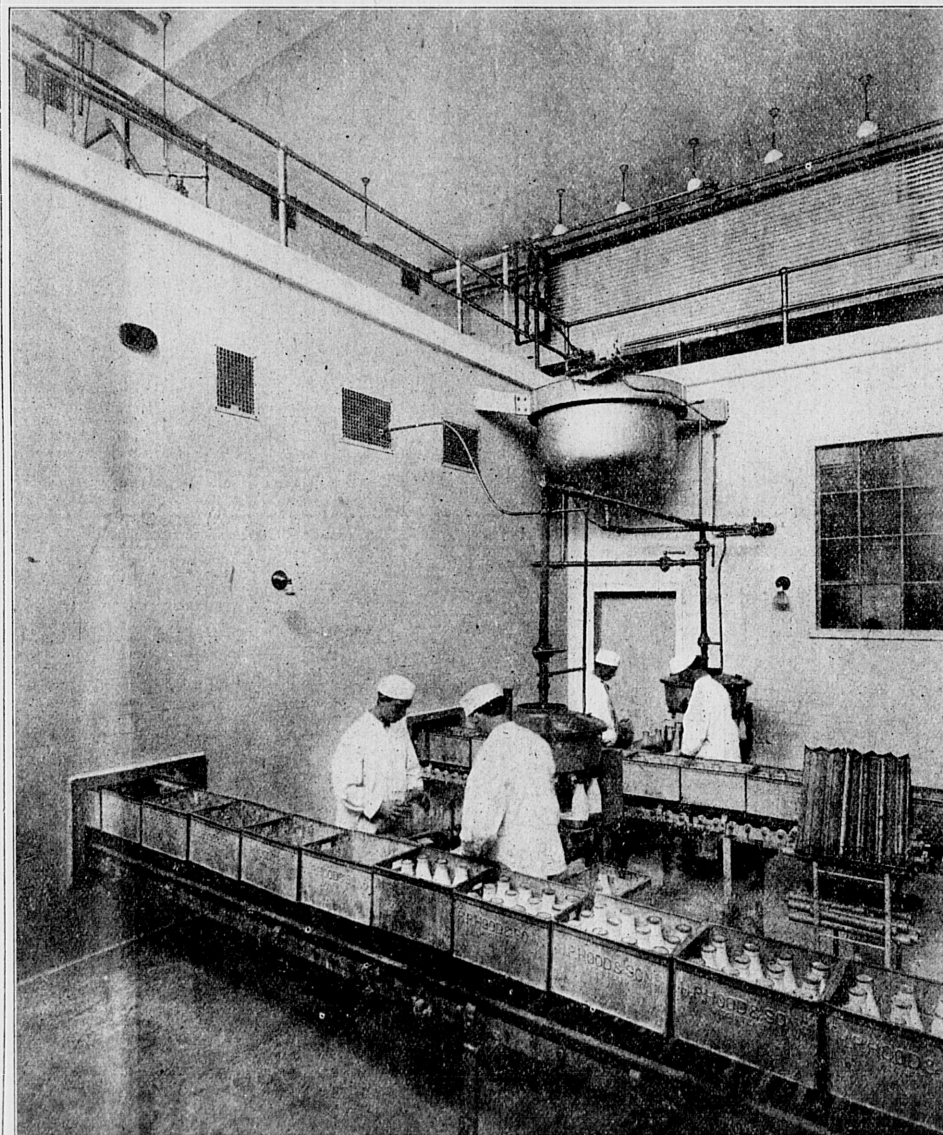

In pasteurization the milk should be heated to 145 degrees and held there for 30 minutes. This chart was connected with an electrical contrivance which, should the temperature reach 145 1-2 degrees, would automatically shut off the steam. When the temperature cooled to 145 degrees, the steam was automatically turned on again. Regulated through this appliance, at no time can the heat vary more than one-half of one degree.

"We allow no one to enter the room where pasteurization is done except the employees stationed there," said my guide, "so we will return to the demonstration room, where, by looking down through the glass windows, I will be able to point out to you the various steps in perfect pasteurization." On two sides of this room was a balcony with walk and ceiling of cream colored tile. On the further side was a door leading from the receiving room, which we had left only a few minutes before. Located on this balcony was the heating device. The milk entering was instantly heated to a temperature of 145 degrees and was carried to a second device where eight porcelain compartments were slowly rotating. It was in these that the milk was held for 30 minutes at this same temperature of 145 degrees. It takes just 30 minutes for one revolution, and at the end of each revolution, each compartment is automatically opened, allowing the milk to flow to the cooler, which appeared on the extreme right. As my guide explained, "the holding of this milk for 30 minutes at a temperature of 145 degrees kills all the dangerous bacteria that might be in the milk, and cause sickness. It does not alter the milk chemically, it does not change its food value, digestibility or flavor. All that it does is to sections is cooled from 145 degrees to 35 degrees in ten seconds." Passing from the cooling machine, the milk flows into an aluminum receptacle with an agitator set on the edge, similar to the ones which I had seen in the receiving room. The milk is thoroughly mixed by the agitator and continues to the filling machines below. There were two of them, and at each machine two operators. These filling machines are most wonderful—doing their work in a way that made them seem human. The capping devices never miss placing the caps on the jars and during the filling of the jars are slowly revolving before me. Next to each machine was a runway extending across the room and passing through the wall on either side. Through one opening came the empty bottles, clean, dry and sterile; packed in metal cases, that no foreign substances might drop in them. The first operator took the empty bottles from the cases and before putting them into the machine, inspected them carefully. He then placed them in an automatic feeder which carried the bottles to the filler to be automatically filled, and capped, untouched by human hands. The filled bottles were removed by the second operator and packed into the cases, which were pushed forward to him by the first operator as fast as he emptied them.

These cases then passed along the run-way to the storage-room, and it was to the storage-room that my guide next ushered me.

This room was cold. A thermometer on the wall showed me that the temperature was 34 degrees, and I was given to understand that this was the normal temperature of this room at all times, but with an entire absence of dampness. The walls, ceilings and floors, and the metal cases in which they will also require the pasteurization of milk, but in the meantime we will be ahead of them.

"Of all food products, milk is the most susceptible to the absorption of impurities in the way of germs, odors or flavors, and anyone who uses it without pasteurization does so at the risk of contracting disease. All this apparatus that you see is in the form of a life insurance to protect the health of the people of our great cities."

Well-Known Milk Epidemics

"We have been talking a great deal about epidemics and the diseases contracted from raw milk. As a matter of fact, Mr. Hood, how serious have these epidemics been?"

"That was rather a general question, my friend, but I can give you a few specific cases: In 1910, Professor Winslow of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a member of the Brookline Board of Health investigated an epidemic of tonsillitis that occurred in Brookline, Cambridge and Back Bay district. There were 2000 cases and 65 deaths, all traced directly to the use of raw milk. Had perfectly pasteurized milk been in common use at that time the lives of 65 men and women would not have been sacrificed. That supply is now pasteurized."

"It seems, then, Mr. Hood, that there are other diseases than infantile diseases traceable to raw milk."

well as our chemists, and every step of the company's progress has been taken with the assistance and guidance of scientific men. I am sorry I cannot give you more of my time this morning but, as you can easily understand, a business of this size requires the best effort I can put into it."

DEATH OF MR. GARRISON

Francis Jackson Garrison of Newtonville, the youngest son of the late William Lloyd Garrison, died Monday at his home on Page road. Mr. Garrison, who was an author and publisher, was born in Boston on October 29, 1848. His mother was Helen E. (Benson) Garrison. He was graduated from the Boston Latin School in 1865 and afterward entered the publishing business and in his career he has been connected with the Riverside Press and its allied publishing house, Houghton, Mifflin Company. As a writer Mr. Garrison was the author of "Ann Phillips, Wife of Wendell Phillips," and he was joint author of "William Lloyd Garrison: His Life Told by His Children." Mr. Garrison was married in 1879 to Mary Pratt, who died in 1882, and by a second marriage, in 1891, Theresa Holmes became his wife.

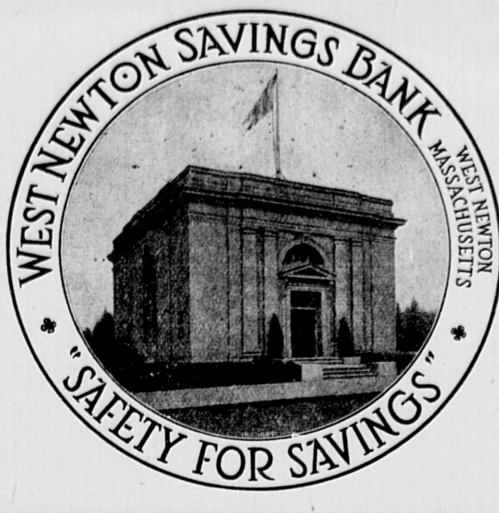

The body was taken Wednesday to Mount Auburn Cemetery, where it was cremated. There was no religious service, following the custom of the Friends or Quakers. Later there will be a memorial service for the family and friends.

Francis Jackson Garrison, son of the Liberator, who died yesterday, belonged to the epoch of abolitionism and the storm and stress that went with it, more by blood and memory, and by a sort of stern, uncompromisingness of conscience and personal integrity and invariable principle, than by action or habit. Born in 1848, his earliest recollections were connected with the universal acceptance of anti-slavery doctrines in this part of the country, and with their triumph in the world at large, and not with the period of their rejection and struggle. His temperament, moreover, was averse to aggression and shunned prominence. He led what may be called the life of a literary business man. His hand was closely associated with the development and the fine influence of the great publishing house with which he was connected throughout his entire active life. A man of admirable literary taste, his own part in constructive authorship was confined to biographical work in connection with the great life and record of William Lloyd Garrison. The son never forgot the people to whose emancipation his father devoted his life, and in his death they will lose a true friend.—Boston Transcript.

NEWTON FREE LIBRARY

The Library is exhibiting, in its entrance hall, some forty thumbbox sketches, in oil, by one of Newton's younger artists, Miss Dorothy S. Emmons, of 21 Bennington street.

Miss Emmons, prior to her graduation from Wellesley in 1914, where she specialized in the art course, studied at the summer school of Charles H. Woodbury at Ogunquit, Maine, while she spent the summer of 1916 under the guidance of George Elmer Browne at Provincetown. Her sketches were made at Kingsfield among the hills of Franklin Co., Maine. They show a like sympathy with the charms of the seashore and inland country. Two small pen drawings are examples of

MISS GRACE M. BURT, Editor.

One does not need to be a "Pollyanna" in order to find reasons for being glad that one lives in Newton nor is there anything of the spirit of the Pharisee when one rejoices that Newton is different from other places. Civic pride is a laudable thing, just as is self-respect, so long as it is not carried too far. Perhaps at this Thanksgiving time one may be pardoned for having a full measure of pride and feeling grateful for the many things which make Newton so desirable a place in which to live; for the great number of public-spirited men and women who make up its citizens, for the fine system of schools which are fitting the children for future usefulness, for the long line of well conducted institutions which serve the needs of the less fortunate,—the hospital, the Welfare Bureau, the Stearns School Centre, etc., etc., a list too long to be included at this time and too well known to need of being enumerated here. There is, however, one organization of women which has probably never been mentioned in this column, but which deserves more than a passing notice, the Mothers' Rest Association. Started in Newton Centre some sixteen years ago by the enthusiasm of the late Rev. Everett D. Burr soon after he came to that village as pastor of the First Baptist Church, the Mothers' Rest has provided a vacation for many a tired woman from Boston, who has never been able to enjoy such a luxury. All sorts and kinds, neither race, color nor creed making any difference, are received. Here they come from the city, bringing with them all their babies under five years, and there have been known to be three at least in one instance,—for a two weeks' rest. A nurse is in attendance at the home, to look after the babies, so the mothers themselves have no care beyond the making of their own beds and can live in the open and gain all that is to be had from such an outing. Three hundred and eight women had this unusual privilege between June and October this past summer, the largest number they have ever received. The Rest is located in Needham Heights and the plant includes a house and barn and ten acres of land. All this has been provided through the generosity of the women of the Newtons, first a small circle within the Baptist Church of Newton Centre, then extending to those of other churches in that place, later the membership has broadened until now there are members from all the Newtons and even from the surrounding towns. One of the beauties of this charity is the fact that there has been so much of the intimate personal service given. The women have not been content to pay their money and let the work be done by others, but they have themselves given of their time and strength to do the things often regarded as menial. The membership of the Association has reached 500 and the directors are aiming to make it 1000. The management has been so careful that never has the association been confronted at the end of the year with a deficit. Already generous friends have promised improvements for next year. The carriage house has been fitted up as a recreation room for the women, in fact it is the only sitting room they have, a hardwood floor has been promised for this room as well as electric lights for the whole place, and one more thing would add greatly to the pleasure and comfort, and that is a chimney and fireplace for the room of early and late summer. The time to put it in is before the new floor is laid and it is the hope that some kind friend will appear as a fairy godmother and make this possible too.

Local Happenings

Most successful, socially, artistically and financially was the Bazaar given by the Auburndale Woman's Club on the afternoon and evening of December 6th. Norumbega Hall presented a most attractive appearance in the afternoon. Facing the entrance was an exhibit of oils and water colors by Miss Ella M. Robinson, tastefully arranged by Miss Laura Frost. On the right the Bazaar tables vied with each other in offering alluring articles both for home consumption, and for the timely Christmas shopping. These tables were in charge of the following ladies: Fancy table, Mrs. J. W. Bucknam; household, Miss Lyman W. Gore; grab box, Mrs. J. W. Messenger; cake, Mrs. H. Lewis Hardy; candy, Mrs. Edward J. Frost. There was also a table where the Ross glove polish manufactured by Mrs. Harry B. Ross, was for sale.

The other side of the Hall had been turned into a dainty tea room, where at small flower trimmed tables, nearly a hundred guests were served by daughters of the club. The tea was in charge of Miss Gertrude E. Nightman, assisted by Mrs. Charles E. Kennedy, Mrs. George W. McNear, and Mrs. Henry W. Sprague. Violin selections by Miss Miriam Herron, with Mrs. Chapin at the piano, added to the charm of the occasion.

Much interest centered around Miss Louise Peloubet's table, where the photographs and sketches were shown which are to illustrate the history of Auburndale. This book, which will be published by the club, and sold for the benefit of the Club House Fund, will be ready about Easter time. Many orders were taken at the bazaar. In the evening, after a number of delightful readings by Miss Florence King of Cambridge, and a group of fine violin numbers by Miss Julia Pickard of Auburndale, an amusing original play was presented by club members. "The Happy Day," which seems to be most unhappy, is one shortly before the wedding of Mrs. Marlowe's daughter. After every detail of preparation has gone wrong, and affairs seem hopelessly tangled, all comes to a happy solution by the sudden and unceremonious marriage of the heroine. The parts were well assigned, and well executed.

The play was coached by Mrs. Mary E. Herron, and the stage arranged by Mrs. Chauncey Conn. The cast was as follows: Mrs. Marlowe, Mrs. C. E. Fogg; Annie Loring, Miss Marion Knowlton; Sybil Marlowe, Mrs. Austin Fisher; Kitty Fern, Mrs. W. D. Gilpatrick; Opal Ness, Mrs. C. M. Robbins; Mrs. Tatlock, Mrs. Herman Goldberger; Polly Tatlock, Mrs. G. P. Moody.

After the play, dancing to the persuasive strains of Bowers' orchestra completed an enjoyable evening.

The Club House Fund is actually started, and the Committee, Mrs. W. A. Stiles, Mrs. H. W. Godfrey and Mrs. D. Becker, can point with pride to a real bank account. It was a practical generation, and one qualified to speak of beginnings, who used to say, "Well begun is half done."

The regular meeting of the West Newton Women's Educational Club held on Friday last was in charge of the Education committee, Mrs. George W. St. Amant, chairman, and was largely attended. Mrs. Irving O. Palmer, president of the Newton Federation, always a welcome guest, made a short address regarding federation work, emphasizing the federation's desire to know well and be a help to our own community. "Snap-shots" from the Biennial,—of the Shakespearean dinner, the outdoor production of the beautiful Masque written by Percy Mackaye, were given by Mrs. Eaton; and of the Home Economics dinner and conference, and their distinguished speakers, by Mrs. McDonald.

The speaker of the afternoon was Mr. J. Bailey Ellis, of the Modern School of Sculpture, Boston, who brought with him an armature on which he modelled a small statue before the eyes of the club, giving meanwhile a most enlightening talk on the art of modelling, marble carving, and the different methods of casting. Miss Ruth Allen of Auburndale gave a charming interpretation of "The spirit of Spring" in her dance, in which she was assisted by two of her pupils, Miss Dorothy Paine as "The Fairy" and tiny Miss Muriel Conn as "The Sunbeam." Contributions of jellies, preserves, etc., for the Newton Hospital, where brought by many of the members. A social hour in the tea-room ended a very happy afternoon.

The Travel Class met on Monday with Mrs. Olin Diekmann of Newtonville, when Mrs. Emma Diamond read her interesting paper—"Women who have had a large influence on our history." She found that women of all times, from Eve's day until now, have had a very large influence in all man's greatest achievements. An animated discussion on current events brought the afternoon to a close.

The Monday Club of Newton Highlands met with Mrs. C. S. Luitweller on Dec. 11 with the president in the chair. After the business of the month, the subject of "New Books" was considered by Mrs. W. M. Mick, Mrs. S. A. Thompson and Mrs. L. H. Marshall. Excerpts both prose and poetry were read from some of those considered as best literature, though not always the best sellers.

The Christian Era Study Club met on Monday, Dec. 11, with Mrs. J. W. Messenger, 115 Aspen avenue. The second part of Mrs. Grant's paper, which had been omitted the previous meeting, was read, in which the probable authorship of the books of the New Testament was given. Descriptions of three Spanish Cathedrals, Burgos, Leon and Toledo, were read by Mrs. Henry L. Goodman, showing how closely connected were ecclesiastical and civic conditions during the Middle Ages. The chivalry, patriotism and fanatic superstition of the Spanish people appeared in Miss Susie Johnson's paper on that man whose name is most prominent in Spanish literature, the Cid, in whom legend has embodied all the virtues of the Spanish race. Owing to the date of the next meeting falling on New Year's Day, the club will meet instead on Jan. 8, at the home of Mrs. Celia J. Allen, 147 Hancock street.

At the meeting of the Newton Highlands C. L. S. C. on Monday held at the home of Miss Adelaide R. Webster, Mrs. S. A. Wiswell presented a carefully prepared paper upon Robert Grant's novel, "The High Priestess." After outlining the story Mrs. Wiswell considered the underlying principles involved and expressed her own views regarding them. A lively discussion was participated in by many of the members, who agreed that primarily the heroine was very selfish. They felt that a woman has a right to a business career when it is line with that of her husband's and she is working with him, but ordinarily an independent business career is not compatible with the career of home making.

In spite of the severe storm on Tuesday afternoon a large number of women attended the meeting for the organization of the Woman's Club of Newton Highlands. Mrs. Irving O. Palmer was again in the chair and carried on the business until the regular officers were elected. A constitution and by-laws were adopted. These officers were elected to serve for the first season: President, Mrs. C. G. Wetherill; first vice-president, Mrs. Arthur Williams; second vice-president, Dr. Caroline Y. Wentworth; recording secretary, Mrs. Donald D. McKay; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. C. B. Robbins; treasurer, Mrs. Arthur Logan; auditor, Miss Mabel Singleton; directors, Mrs. E. G. Swift, Mrs. C. H. Keeler, Mrs. W. E. Moore, Mrs. S. L. Eaton. The first meeting will be held on Jan. 9th and the meetings will continue on the second and fourth Tuesdays during the season. The Episcopal parish house will be the meeting place for this year.

The Review Club met on Tuesday, Dec. 12th, at the home of Mrs. Waldo W. Cole, 15 Vista avenue. Mrs. Blood read a paper on the Jews in Russia, after which Mrs. Freeman and Mrs. Valentine played a duet, a Prelude by Rachmaninoff. Mrs. Rider's topic was "Subject Nations," of which she told of two, Finland and Poland. Finland adopted suffrage in 1905 and more women than men are now voting.

A piano solo, "By the Seashore," Orensky, was played by Mrs. Freeman. Mrs. St. Amant spoke on Siberia and The Exile System and read extracts from several books. Probably many are not aware of the size of Siberia, which has room for the whole United States, all Europe except Russia and some room to spare.

The third in the series of papers upon "Colonization" before the Social Science Club was given on Wednesday morning by Mrs. Francis B. Hornbrooke, her topic being, "Holland in the East Indies." Mrs. Hornbrooke took up in turn Borneo, Celebes, Spice Islands, Sumatra and Java, telling of their physical characteristics, their climate and their inhabitants, who are for a large part still in a stage of savagery. Java was spoken of as the "garden spot of the earth" and is the most highly civilized of any of the islands. The Dutch government treats its officials generously, they are given good houses in which to live and bear the appearance of dignity and opulence, while their subjects are exceedingly well cared for, so well that it amounts to taking away any free will on their part. The Governor General and Dutch residents have great and immediate power. The revenue for the mother country from the exports of coffee, rice and spices is enormous. Mrs. H. H. Powers, who has made a brief visit to Java, spoke of the wealth of vegetation and the wonderful beauty of the country and described a visit to the famous botanical garden of Buitenzorg, the foremost in the world.

On Wednesday afternoon the Pierian Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Chadwick of Oak street. Mrs. Easterbrook presented a fine paper on "Sociology and Immigration," which was followed by the usual social hour.

Mrs. Elsie K. Chamberlain lectured at the Newton Centre Woman's Club on "Practical Interior Decoration" on Thursday, December 14th. The lecture proved to be so interesting and practical that everybody left with their heads teeming with new ideas for the reconstruction of old rooms, or with fascinating schemes for the decoration of new homes.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING ON A SMALL ALLOWANCE

December 25th approached, Boston eight miles away teeming with wonderful gifts, and me with $900.75,000 in my penny bank; six people in the family and about ten friends to give presents to. What luck. Allowance stopped, I suppose because of the embargo on the freight cars that bring the mint to me.

Things looked blue and worse than blue when I put on the smoked glasses I wore to protect my bloodshot eyes at the beach.

I dreamed of picking up a pocket book with a million dollars in it and rushing to the rich man who dropped it, and for a reward he said "Honest boy, I will give thee $999,999.99 9-10 for this."

"Oh yes, 'twas all very plausible." People say, that if you look down you only find pennies, but if you look up you'll find dollars.

I looked up vainly trying to see the dollars flying about in the sky but alas, I saw only the "white fleecy clouds" sailing past about 90 miles per hour.

I slipped on something, fell and skinned my nose finely. "Curses on the luck," I ground out between my teeth. "I will see this obstructer of traffic!"

I looked around, and there was—Ah dear reader my pen trembles—the idol of my dreams—an pocketbook: I opened it—and looked in—it was—oh 'twas a terrible blow. Empty. I looked again, there was a little pocket on one side, and there was a nice new crisp 5-dollar bill, not the kind you have to pay, but one of Uncle Sam's pieces of currency.

I spent most of the $500.75,000 advertising. But then there was $5.00 left for the 25th.

All's well that ends well.
EUGENE W. HAYDEN,
C. G. S. VIII '16.

FRANCOIS' MISTAKE

A cold dreary rain set in after the guns had ceased firing. Francois, who was on sentry duty marched back and forth at his post in the gloom.

Suddenly he saw a man in German uniform in the distance. His step was weary and he walked slowly.

Francois thought, "Oh, a boche who has strayed out of his lines." Hidden behind a tree he waited till the man approached. When he was a few feet away Francois sprang from his hiding place, aiming his gun at the German he ordered him to halt.

"For God's sake, don't shoot, I'm father of a family." The Frenchman lowered his gun and he began to talk to his prisoner in a friendly way.

Suddenly the German made a quick motion and reached his hand behind him. In an instant Francois, who thought the German was reaching for his pistol, shot him through the heart.

As he fell Francois saw in his hand a piece of white cardboard. When Francois turned it over he saw a picture of a beautiful woman and three babies smiled up at him.

THE RUNAWAYS

The "Runaways" was presented by the Amateurs on Friday evening in the parlors of the Church of the New Jerusalem, before a large and appreciative audience. It was a three-act comedy by Walter Ben Hare, and the action of the play took place in the living room of the Tau Cross Ranch.

The characters were excellently portrayed by the following: Miss Margaret Wheaton, "Texana," the maid; Miss Rosamond Clark, "Mrs. Juniper"; Mr. Guyas Williams, "Max Juniper"; Miss Hazel Stevens, "Jean MacLean"; Mr. Chester E. Howe, "Alonzo Willing"; Miss Rosalind Kempton "Victoria"; Mr. Bradford L. Howe, "Ted Keegan"; Rev. E. M. Lawrence Gould, "Sheriff Jim Larabee."

The play was well staged under the direction of Clark Hayden.

WILBUR THEATRE—Oliver Morosco's success, "The Cinderella Man," from the pen of Edward Childs Carpenter, will start on its 6th, popular week at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston, next Monday evening, December 18th, with every indication its continuing to fill at every performance this ideal little playhouse.

The author describes his theme as "the essence of romance," and the play is a worthy successor to "Peg O' My Heart" which was also one of Mr. Morosco's successes.

Local Little Theatre SHR SH LL Being an American play "The Cinderella Man," Oliver Morosco, who has given the theatrical world such brilliant successes as "Peg O' My Heart" and "The Bird of Paradise," has, to a marked degree, the two great national characteristics—imagination and humor. The story tells of Marjorie Caner, who has lost her mother. She does not know of her father; her parents having been separated and she living abroad through the years of her girlhood delicately reared by the love of her mother.

AUBURDALE REAL ESTATE

The same broker has sold for Sarah E. Baker the estate 52 Central street. There are 8399 square feet of land and an eight-room house. The purchaser Donald D. Williams, will occupy after extensive improvements.

The Lauriat Co. announce in another column a remarkable list of books that appeal as sensible gifts, at prices that make them particularly tempting in the last busy days of Christmas shopping. Most of them are importations, and the present prices represent about half the ordinary cost to import. It would pay you to cut the list out and take it with you on your next shopping tour. It may save time and money to do so.

SHUBERT THEATRE—At the Shubert Theatre for the coming week, Arthur Hammerstein's "You're In Love" musical comedy will continue for its third and last week, beginning Monday, December 18th, with all the charm and daintiness that pleased so mightily during its week-end rendition.

The piece, with its beautiful stage settings, its well-balanced cast, its fresh-to-look-upon novelty in which the prima donna is discovered sitting on the end of a boom on ship-board, swinging clear over the heads of the audience, is a play to continue the furor that it created on its premier here. Marie Flynn in the leading prima donna role, and May Thompson in sweetly pretty song and dance numbers, are pleasing to behold, particularly in the "You're In Love" song: "He Will Understand" ballet, and the "Love-lullaby." The feature hit of the play, above spoken of, is one of the most novel stage picturings ever devised.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—Napoleon or Ram-Tah? The course born of thought that his ancestor was either the great warrior or Egypt's greatest mythological character, gave Bunker Bean the fighting ability, the personal egotism to go ahead and win out in a work-a-day world, to howl from the sordid, romance, financial success and the girl of his heart.

This story under the title of "His Majesty Bunker Bean" is from the pen of Harry Leon Wilson, and had a great vogue sometime ago when it ran serially in the Saturday Evening Post. Lee Wilson Dodd, a clever young playwright, made a most clever dramatization of the stories, which was seized upon by Joseph Brooks as a starring vehicle for Taylor Holmes, the brilliant young farceur, who now reigns supreme at the Majestic Theatre, Boston.

The comedy is rip-roaring in its laughter-provoking incidents and situations and simply reeks with wholesome fun, and exudes youth of the modern day slant at satire.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—Beginning next Monday evening, December 18th, the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, will have for its attraction in its second and last week a new farcical comedy, "Somebody's Luggage," in which Messrs. Shubert will present the inevitable James T. Powers. The play is by Mark Swan, who wrote "The Little Party" and other successful comedies. This will mark Mr. Powers' return to the legitimate stage after an absence of two years. He has always been a popular favorite here as a musical comedy star.

wages to keep them in bread, and they would starve unless they had it, I think the State should pay the mother the amount the child earns. Not as charity, but as a scholarship for letting her child go to school and learn and grow up a good American citizen. If we don't do something of this kind soon I am afraid we won't have any educated men. You cannot make these men to order. We should begin that way to reduce crime. I want to get after you business men, you are the men that can do something. I have a reliable report that there are 3000 unemployed men in America. Something over fifty percent of the crime problem is caused by lack of employment. The trouble is the men do not know where to look for work.

If a man does not know how to fit into our industries it is because he is not properly prepared. In Filene's, the store is divided into different sections and the freight, etc., of that section is charged to that section and when they make above a certain percent it is divided among the people of that section and the whole store runs automatically. But there are a large number of industries that are not run like Filene's but I take it for granted that all of you have your business organized like Filene's. If a man doesn't get a square deal he loses his feeling of patriotism.

When I was a little girl out West we had a few cobblers, and they knew how to plan and save leather and they did different kinds of work during the day and did not get weary. Now days men do nothing but feed soles into a machine. This ruins their eye sight. Why do we leave a man in prison when he is insane. It is lack of nourishment and you simply leave them there to die and have the problem of their wives and children on your hands.

The big business men can light on his feet again if anything happens to crush him; he can do a dozen different things, but the average American man only knows how to do one thing and if he is crushed he cannot do anything.

On the treatment of prisoners. They take a man if he doesn't get out a certain amount of work a day—they take him and strap him up against the wall and turn a stream of sixty pounds pressure in his mouth; a physician stands and feels the prisoner's pulse to see just how long he can stand it, and when he can stand it no longer they take and pump the water out of him and put him back to work. Another way they punish the prisoners, is, to put steel clamps on the wrists and ankles, a chain through the clamp and tie it in a knot in back. Then they put the prisoner in a crib, which is a box which looks very much like a coffin and close the lid as much as the prisoner can stand, and if they go out in agony they gag them. Then we wonder why they do not come out better men. Another way they punish prisoners, is to put them to sleep and then smear their faces with molasses and let the flies and bugs crawl over their faces. And then we wonder why the Governor out there pardoned 350 prisoners; he said he did not want God to think he was a party to any such treatment. He didn't have any place to put them, so he pardoned them.

What can we do about these things. If you put a physician over a hospital you should put one over the prisons. We ought to have surgeons in our prisons to examine the prisoners when they come there to see if there is anything the matter with them. We should have employment agencies connected with our prisons so the men will know that they will have employment when they come out of the prisons. We have nothing to do with a man that has been in prison and that is no way to make them better. There is land out West to be cultivated, why not send some of these men out there. There are about two hundred miles of border to protect, and if it was built up and roads put through it would be easier to protect it. The way we are handling the unemployed problem is all right for a nation that hasn't any colleges, but for a college bred nation like this, we have the most foolish methods for handling our labor problem.

QUESTIONS

Question. What lands are there which could be used? Answer. In eight or nine of the Western States there are vast tracks of desert. The Government could probably get it for very little and it would not cost much to offer it for homes. In my own State there are thousands of miles that could be irrigated, also in Colorado, and many other places, and miles and miles that cannot be settled unless they are irrigated.

Question. From what places did the men come from that have been sent to the Western Wheat Fields? Answer. They came from all over the United States—New York, San Francisco, New Orleans. The trouble is this, they only can work a certain season.

Question. What is the idea of the labor unions towards the proposition you make. Answer. I cannot see how the labor unions could be opposed to employing the unemployed men, and I don't think they would be.

Question. In contested sections would not a great many people object to going out West unless they had agricultural training? Answer. Years ago it was advertised that the Government would open up a certain number of acres of land and that it would be opened up at noon, April, 1867, and weeks before that day the border was crowded with people for miles. I think you would find it would relieve the strain in the cities. And the strain must be relieved in some way, and I think it will be in some way.

Prof. Geo. H. Blakeslee of Yale will speak on "The New Pan-Americanism" at Lincoln Hall, Newton Highlands, Sunday, December 17th, at 4 P. M. He takes the place of Mr. Ivy Lee who is ill, but will speak later in the season.

A public meeting will be held next Thursday evening at Players Hall, West Newton by a committee of the city government to learn the sentiment of the community in regard to military drill at the High School. A large attendance is desired.

CLASSICAL HIGH SCHOOL

The Senior Classes of the Classical, Technical, and Vocational High Schools held a special meeting in the Assembly Hall of the Classical School Wednesday morning, December 13. The object of this meeting was a discussion of plans for engaging Mr. Marshall Darach of New York to give three Shakespearean recitals in the Classical School Hall at a later date. Last year Mr. Darach gave three similar presentations in this hall, and such great interest was manifested by the students of the three schools that it was found impossible to meet the demand for tickets. Restrictions which have recently been made by the fire commissioners of the city will necessitate an increase in the price of admission to the recitals this year. At the meeting Wednesday morning, Mr. Thomas of the Classical School and Mr. Thurbur of the Technical School spoke in behalf of the presentation. Mr. Thomas remarked upon the very great success which Mr. Darach enjoyed here last year, and announced that the three plays to be given this winter will probably be "Hamlet," "Julius Caesar," and "The Tempest." Mr. Thurbur spoke of the great benefit which could be derived from this presentation, and solicited the support of the students from all three schools. It is probable that these recitals will be given on three successive Tuesdays in January.

The annual Christmas Meeting of the English Club will be held in the hall today at the close of school. Each member of the club has been requested to bring a gift costing not more than five cents.

A special meeting of the Senior Class was held at the beginning of the fourth recitation period Monday morning. Measures were taken to provide for sending a suitable token to the home of the late Miss Eleanor Frail, a member of the class who died last Friday evening after an illness of three days.

The final game of the interclass field hockey series was played last Friday afternoon at Cabot Park. The Senior team won the championship by defeating the Sophomores, 3 to 2 in a poorly played contest. The playing of the Senior team was not up to its usual standard, although Miss Fisher, Miss Perkins, and Miss Gruener did credit to the team.

Both the boys' and the girls' interclass basketball games will be played next week. The boys' Junior team is a very strong combination, and expects to capture the interclass championship. The football picture was taken last Friday afternoon at Hastings' Studio in Newtonville. A special meeting of the football "N" men last week, Henry Garrity was unanimously re-elected captain of the Newton High School football team for 1917. This is the first unanimous election of a football captain that has ever been held in the school for many years. Garrity has been the mainstay of the Newton team throughout the past season, and has won great commendation from many followers of school football. He was chosen by all the Boston newspapers for a position in the backfield of the first All-Inter-scholastic eleven. The Boston Globe gave him the captaincy of the first team. He has undoubtedly been worth more to his team than any other one player in Greater Boston schools. Coach Dickinson declares that Garrity is the best all-around back that he ever coached at Newton, and also states that without Garrity the strength of his eleven would have been decreased by at least thirty percent. Under Garrity's leadership, Newton has every reason to hope for a more successful season in 1917. Manager Gerald Henderson of the Newton track team has practically completed his schedule, which he intends to announce next week. Besides the Interclass Meet and the B. A. A. schedule includes a dual meet with Huntington School, and a triangular meet between Newton, Brookline, and Cambridge. The track candidates will be called out at the beginning of the Christmas Vacation. The prospects for a strong team are not as bright as in past years, but Coach Dickinson expects to develop new material to take the place of the many stars lost through graduation.

DEATH OF MR. ARMINGTON

Mr. Asa Watson Armington, a resident of this city for many years, died Monday evening at his home on Parker street, Newton Centre. He was born in Providence, R. I., on Nov. 13, 1845. On his 21st birthday he entered the employ of Shreve, Stanwood & Co., jewellers, which later became Shreve, Crump & Low Co. In 1890 he was admitted to membership in this company. He made 22 trips abroad to purchase the diamonds and precious stones in which he was an expert. On Nov. 13th last he celebrated the 50th Anniversary of his connection with the company.

He was an active member of the First Baptist Church of Newton serving for ten years as Superintendent of the Sunday School and for fourteen years as deacon. He was a member of the Baptist Social Union and of a number of fraternal organizations.

On June 1st, 1869, he was married to Roxanna M. Warren of Brookline who, with a son and daughter, survives him. Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at his late home on Parker street and there was a large attendance of friends and business associates, the store being closed during that time. Rev. Dr. E. W. Hunt, pastor of the First Baptist Church, of which Mr. Armington was an active member, was in charge, assisted by Prof. J. M. English, who gave the eulogy.

The bearers were Messrs. William Claxton Gray and Sidney D. Paine, both of Newton Centre, William A. Armington, a brother, of New York City, and Hervey Armington, a nephew, of Brookline. The burial, which was private, was in the Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

Not Likely to Be Done.

To remove the water of the Pacific ocean it would require the filling of a tank a mile wide, a mile deep and a mile long every day for 440 years.

OPPOSE GARAGE AT NEWTON CENTRE

Aldermen Hear Remonstrants at Last Meeting of The Year

The last meeting of the city government of 1916 last Monday evening was full of interest and adjournment was not reached until nearly midnight. Newton Centre people were up in arms against a proposed public garage on Irving street, petitioned for by John Barkas. A dozen or more residents of that locality were present and stood while their attorney, Mr. E. A. Thompson voiced their objections. Mr. E. L. Ovington and Mr. F. H. Jackson also spoke in opposition, the latter stating that he helped to place $44,000 in mortgages in this locality and knew of $9,000 more. Mr. Ovington said that by actual count 34 children passed this street daily on their way to school. Mr. Barkas was represented by Mr. Howard L. Perrin. The petition was subsequently refused.

The following persons were drawn for jury service at Cambridge Superior Court: Frederick A. Ward, Ward street; Charles F. Kendall, Institution avenue; James R. Dayton, Woodland road; Francis H. Williams, Glenwood avenue; Frederick W. Young, Windmere road and Arthur J. Wellington, Church street.

Mayor Childs sent in requests for additional money for the Charity Department $200, City Clerk $200, Water Department $200, $1350 for automatic control of heating apparatus at Claffin school, $348 for new furnace at Adams school, $1500 for care of snow and ice, $800 for collection of ashes, $100 for Police automobile and to grant a pension to Frank E. Judkins, engineer of the Fire Department, all of which were subsequently approved.

The Assessors called attention to a large abatement of tax required by decision of the Attorney General and $1000 was authorized to be used for overlay purposes.

Notices were received of the action of the Newton Highlands Improvement Association opposing a bath house on Crystal Lake, of a hearing on matter of commission to apportion cost of Brookline avenue bridge, and of appointment of certain street railway police.

Petitions of George F. James for auctioneer license, for various private garages, for Telephone attachments on Elliot street, Webster street, Hawthorne avenue and Jackson road, and of Joseph Corsi for a wagon license were granted. A petition was also received from M. Barry claiming damages on account of street defect.

$250 was allowed to settle claim of A. C. Gould for damages to automobile, ordinances were passed to allow the payment of certain small claims and to allow an advance of money for certain city expenses. W. M. Thompson was allowed to enter sewer on Avalon road at special grade, $400 was voted for purchase of land to widen Crafts and Washington street, $3600 was voted in bonds for land adjoining the Horace Mann school, betterment assessments were levied on Waban hill road and Beaumont avenue. G. E. Nichols was granted howling alley license at 865 Washington street, L. K. Liggett was permitted to keep gasoline on Hammond street, Mrs. N. B. H. Wolcott was given permit to use a private garage on Hunnewell avenue. The Mayor was authorized to petition to Legislature for permission to pay salary of W. E. Young to his widow, the income of the Kendrick Fund was ordered distributed, conduit locations granted the Telephone Co. on Washington street and Brooks avenue and pole locations given the Edison Co. on Pleasant street. The Mayor was authorized to sell the Towle pit on Homer street for $2500 and to co-operate with Wellesley in matter of new bridge over the Charles river at Wales street. The Claims Committee reported that the board had no power to act on abatement of personal tax of Mrs. A. B. Turner, and that it was inexpedient to change the rules of the board on certain matters. The Public Works committee reported adversely on offer of Mr. L. D. Towle to buy the Edmonds park property. The City Buildings committee recommended next city government on request for bicycle shed at Technical High School.

The special committee on a new city hall reported next city government as the time was too short for careful consideration at present.

The special committee on additional accommodations at the High Schools reported that there was plenty of room for the Classical and Technical schools but that the Vocational school was crowded, but as this school had 13 per cent of non-residents, the committee suggested that no more non-residents be admitted. The city must plan for more room in the future but in view of the high cost of building at present, actual work should be delayed until the last possible moment. Plans submitted by the school authorities called for an expenditure of between $300,000-$400,000 including a large gymnasium and swimming pool. The committee thought the pool unwise at present and believed the matter of a gymnasium should be deferred until the school committee had made some decision regarding military drill. The committee had considered a new building for the Vocational school of mill construction, separate from the other buildings. They also thought that a new gymnasium, when built, should be a separate structure. They also recommended that the whole matter be referred to the next city government for further investigation.

The protestants against transfer of junk license of Abram Shreir to Chapel street were given leave to withdraw. Quite a sensation was sprung during

FIREMAN PENSIONED

Mr. Frank E. Judkins Retired after Long and Faithful Service

Mr. Frank E. Judkins, who was pensioned Monday night by the city government, has given long and faithful service to the city as engineer of Company 1 of the Fire Department. He was appointed to this position on March 17, 1874 and has served since that date in this one company and in the same engine house.

Engineer Judkins was born in Manchester, N. H., Sept. 2, 1849. After graduating from the public school, he commenced a three years' apprenticeship as a machinist with Ameskeag Manufacturing Company of that city, which had commenced the manufacture of the Ameskeag steam fire engines in 1859, under the supervision of N. S. Bean its inventor. For some years, Mr. Judkins was one of the delivering engineers of the engines made by that company. He went to the Boston conflagration Nov. 9-10, 1872 with the self-propelling engine of the Ameskeag company, the first self-propeller.

Mr. Judkins was for a number of years a member and assistant engineer of Engine No. 4, of Manchester, N. H.

On Jan. 14, 1874, Cole's block, at Newton, one of the largest business blocks in the city, was destroyed by fire. A relief engine borrowed of Boston, used by Engine No. 1 company, became disabled at the commencement of the fire. The present Engine 3 of Newton was then at the Ameskeag works, awaiting shipment as soon as the station then being erected was ready to receive it. While the fire was burning Engine 3 was telegraphed for to temporarily take the place of Engine 1. It arrived the next day. Mr. Judkins came with the engine and he has remained in Newton as engineer of Engine 1.

Mr. Judkins has been in poor health for some months and will spend the remainder of the winter in Bermuda.

TO DEDICATE ORGAN

New Church Society Will Have Interesting Service Next Sunday

On Sunday, December 24th, at 10.40 A. M., the Newtonville New Church Society will dedicate its remodeled church edifice and its new organ. Two beautiful new stained glass windows have been installed; the chancel has been enlarged; new furnishings and chancel fixtures have been added. The window at the east end of the church, at the rear of the chancel, is the work of Charles J. Connick, the well-known Boston artist and craftsman. The general tone of the chancel-window is a rich blue; the figures represent the "Transfiguration." The new carpets are blue and harmonize with the general color scheme.

A short dedicatory service as a part of the morning service will be conducted by the Reverend John Goddard, pastor of the church, and the Reverend E. M. L. Gould, the assistant pastor. The Brookline Society of the New Church will unite with that of Newtonville for this occasion.

It is anticipated that a large number of old and new members, as well as many friends of the church will be present to enjoy the service.

The Society is to be congratulated in this new and beautiful development of its growth.

At the close of the morning service the sacrament of the Holy Supper will be administered. The public is cordially invited to attend.

The organ, built by the Hutchings Organ Company, is the finest of its size and kind ever made in this country. It is a model of the latest and best in organ-building. Its entire action is electro-pneumatic. The organ is composed of three parts, choir, swell and echo, the latter having a beautiful set of chimies. The tone of the whole organ or in part combines power and richness, delicacy and dignity; that of the full organ is massive and brilliant.

The specification of this organ will show the composition of the instrument, a few words of general description may add interest and give a more complete idea of its unique system of mechanical accessories, etc.

The entire action is electro-pneumatic and is the result of the most

Statements made by various interested parties that the preferential voting plan at the last city election virtually disenfranchised many hundred voters, who refused to vote thru disgust at the arrangement of the ballot, are evidently based on the fact that the number of blanks recorded for some of the offices are approximately 1700 to 1800. This is not a fair statement, for two years ago when the old form of ballot was used the blanks ran from 1400 to 1500 and it is usually the case that many voters will not take the trouble to even mark their ballot for uncontested offices. As the editor stated last week, the figures show that about 160 voters carelessly marked their ballots in the second and third columns, instead of in the first column, and as there was but one or two candidates, these votes were not effective. To this extent therefore and to this extent only, the preferential ballot caused certain careless voters to lose their possible right to have their ballots counted.

We again urge every good citizen to give some consideration to the choice next spring of able and suitable men to represent this city in the coming Constitutional Convention. We made a few tentative suggestions last week, but the list is by no means limited to those names. Boston papers have suggested the names of Judges Marcus Morton, Robert F. Raymond and William F. Dana of the Superior Court, Mr. William F. Garcelon, Mr. Charles S. Ensign and Mr. James P. Richardson. All of these are excellent and we hope there will be a still larger list in the near future in order that the best possible selections may be made.

It seems to be an accepted fact in this community that the physical training which the school committee is giving our high school boys is almost a waste of time. The committee has a splendid opportunity to meet the wishes of a large majority of parents and citizens by taking immediate steps towards a training which will approximate what the Boy Scouts are now receiving. The establishment of this kind of training under competent instructors will go far towards satisfying many of those who are now favorably inclined towards military drill.

Let us hope that the teachers will be able to convince the city government, as well as the school committee, that they deserve the ten per cent increase in salaries which they now request. While many will oppose the almost reckless increase of school maintenance costs which has been the custom for the last ten years, almost everyone knows that the cut in expense should be made in the curriculum, and not in teachers' salaries. Fewer teachers at better salaries is the solution of the problem.

The city of Newton has done well to recognize the long and faithful service of Mr. Frank E. Judkins, for 42 years the engineer of Company 1 of the Newton Fire Department. Mr. Judkins certainly merits the pension which has just been awarded him.

The new rule of the Boston Elevated Company in excluding drunks from all their cars and trains will be greatly appreciated by the travelling public of this city which has constantly been annoyed by those who make a practise of visiting Brighton for the liquid refreshment.

Friends of Mr. O'Connell are loud in their comments of what they would do with the preferential voting plan in this city, if their candidate, had by any chance received a majority of the total vote.

The selection of Alderman Early as president of the incoming city government is a deserved tribute to his hard and faithful work for the city during the past six years.

Carelessness among our election officers is so rare that there is considerable comment on the recent action of certain ward 2 officials.

Dr. Lowe's appeal for old shoes has always brought a generous response, and is more needed this year than ever.

Giving, not getting, is the only way to realize the true spirit of Christmas.

$30,000 FOR TEACHERS

The last meeting of the School Committee for 1916 was held Wednesday evening at the Technical High School, Newtonville. Delegations from the Teachers' Associations and a committee of the school janitors appeared before the committee and made a strong demand for increase in salaries. The committee has had this matter under consideration for some time and were not unprepared for this request. It was subsequently voted to recommend to the mayor and aldermen that $2600 additional be appropriated for salaries of janitors and that $30,000 be used for increasing salaries of teachers.
The annual payroll of the department is about $330,000 and these figures indicate an increase in pay, if granted, of about 10 per cent.

Seven members of the teaching staff appeared at the hearing, nearly all of whom based their arguments on the fact that teachers were obliged to pay $10 to $12 per week for board and with other necessities, exceedingly high, they found it hard to get along with a salary of $800 and up per year.
Samuel P. Paul, principal of the Masson School, Newton Centre, acted as the head spokesman.

Other speakers were Mr. Davis of the High School, M. W. Murray of the Vocational High, Maynard Maxim of the Technical High, Mrs. Spooner, representing the grade teachers; Miss Boyce of the Bigelow School and Mr.
Winslow of the Stearns School.

This was the last meeting the chairman, Mr. William H. Rice, will attend, after ten years of service and his annual report contained a summary of educational matters during

PHILLIPS BROOKS MEMORIAL

A memorial service to Bishop Phillips Brooks was held Sunday evening at Trinity Church, Newton Centre, similar to the Kitchener service at the cathedral last summer. Rev. Edward Taylor Sullivan, pastor of Trinity, conducted the prayer service. A large choir under the direction of Lansing
G. Putnam, organist and choirmaster, gave several special hymns and at the recessional the entire congregation sang "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," the hymn the vast multitude sang in Copley square at the open-air service at the Phillips Brooks funeral.

Rev. Frederick B. Allen, for 25 years superintendent of the Episcopal City Mission, now financial secretary of the Mission and secretary of the Theological Library, preached an eloquent sermon on Bishop Brooks. Rev. Mr.
Allen spoke of his intimate knowledge of the late bishop gained during his years as assistant at Trinity with Dr.
Brooks. At the conclusion of the service the congregation stood and Mr.
Putnam played the Dead March in "Saul." A copy of the rare Regent street portrait of the late bishop was given to every person at the service.

MILITARY DRILL AT HIGH SCHOOL

Small Attendance at Public Meeting on the Subject Held in Players Hall

Less than a hundred ladies and gentlemen attended the public meeting held last night at Player's, Hall, West Newton on call of a committee of the board of aldermen, to obtain the settlement of the city on the re-establishment of military drill in the Newton High School.

President Blanchard of the board of aldermen presided and on the stage with him were Mayor Childs, Aldermen Forknall, Allen, Winslow, Angier, Clement, Harriman, Col. George H.
Benyon, Col. W. W. Stover and Capt.
H. D. Cormerais.

Mayor Childs was the first speaker and stated that he was there as Childs
'95 and not as mayor of the city. He favored compulsory drill because he had tried it himself and believed in its moral effect, and for its physical and mental improvement. He was of the opinion that if the judgment of the young men who had graduated in the eighties and nineties was obtained they would agree that they had learned to be gentlemen under the care of Mr. S. Warren Davis and had learned obedience in the High School battalion. The drill teaches prompt obedience, without wanting to know
"Why?" and Mr. Childs thought that "Why?" was asked altogether too often nowadays by our young people in the home, and the school. He favored drill not because of blood thirstiness, nor because we were lovers of war or haters of peace, but because its revival means a finer citizenship later and it will be well worth all its costs. He also suggested that it should be received because most of those who took it years ago wished it and because most of the present pupils don't want it.

Col. Benyon gave an interesting talk of military drill in the Boston schools, saying that it now covered 9 schools, with 6 regiments, 18 battalions and 50 companies. Drill was compulsory, giving 8 credits towards graduating marks and included setting up exercises, study of the history and uses of the flag, drill and military and personal hygiene. The setting up exercises took 10 minutes each day under direction of teacher and cadet captains and there were two 45 minute periods each week on the drill. Formerly only a reckless disregard for become corporals, the second year, sergeants the third and officers in the fourth year, if they showed evidences of reliability, reached a passing mark in studies and failed in none, as well as having initiative, accuracy, appearance and a spirit of co-operation.

Capt. H. D. Cormerais said that as a member of a state commission now about to report on the matter, he favored compulsory drill in order to teach discipline. In his work as a military officer he had found that recruits do not know what the word
"obey" means and the place to teach them is in the school.

Col. W. W. Stover of the Fifth Regiment said there was nothing in military drill to give anyone any uneasiness for many of us had experienced it and it was only a mystery to those who did not understand it. He was certain that boys would not become professional soldiers because of it. He quoted several employers who had noted a great improvement in their men after their recent service on the border. He believed that drill created a higher respect for property rights and had noticed a reckless disregard for law and order especially among the younger element and he believed that even Newton boys needed some discipline. He defined the three divisions of military training were mental and moral (thru discipline and personality) physical (by correction of defects and increasing strength) and a tactical training thru the study of a soldier and he believed the military part was the best way to reach and include all the others. He warned the audience that it would not be safe for the nation to allow all knowledge of the military art to be lost and now was a favorable time to establish this plan on sensible lines.

Col. E. H. Haskell did not believe in compulsory drill and wanted a national army of 300,000 men at $25 a month pay. He read an article he had recently sent to a Newton paper favoring military drill.

Mr. J. C. Irwin believed in some form of discipline and training but would cut the manual of arms to a minimum and follow the training of the Boy Scouts.

Mr. A. M. Lyon of the school committee in reply to questions stated that physical culture in the high schools recovered but two classes with two periods of 45 minutes each in every week.
Mr. G. F. Spalding said that ten years ago he was not in favor of drill but the physical training in the school is entirely inadequate. He noted a great improvement in his own son after a few weeks of Plattsburgh training and favored placing drill in the high schools again.

Mr. Henry Whitmore said that he got more out of drill he had in the High School than anything else. Our present academic work is excellent but there is no esprit de corps, no pride in the school or its work.
He believed the boys ought to go into drill and be made to stay there and suggested that anyone who cared to study the matter would be surprised to find the large number of foreigners in this city who needed this kind of instruction.

Mr. Curtis Abbott told how his daughters had improved when the girls had had something like this form of drill and how his son had the misfortune to just miss it. He would have every American boy know the general principles of military science.

Mr. M. C. Tuttle said that if war breaks out our boys will go to the front anyway and we should see to it that they were not ineffective and that they knew how to take care of themselves.

Mr. Walter G. Barrows said he had four years of physical training at High School and four years of militia service. He contrasted the difference in discipline and criticized the manner in which physical training was handled in the high school, where boys went from playing basketball to their study periods perspiring and in heated condition.

Gen. James G. White was not opposed to proper discipline but 29 years in the militia had led him to observe that it was very hard to recruit from boys who had served in school regiments as they had become tired of compulsory drill. He wanted the boys to learn to shoot, make and break camp, map making and favored putting something of the Boy Scout training into the schools.

Rev. O. B. Hawes of the Unitarian Church, Newton Centre, who has just come here from Philadelphia, had evidently imbibed the Quaker spirit for he made an impassioned address strongly opposing military drill. He said he was surprised at the indictment of our Newton schools and Newton ought to be ashamed that it had not provided a good gymnasium with good facilities, rather than turn to military drill as an inadequate substitute for physical training. He believed the good discipline reason only lasted during the drill periods and did not make a lasting impression, and that schools should teach a child to think and not merely to do this or that when told.
He believed it to be a sacrifice for us to even consider military drill as a step towards preparedness and we should solve the problem in some other way. He thought that compulsory drill would be resented by many persons.

Mr. W. I. Fearing wanted every man to serve a year in the army, but military drill in the high schools as he had experienced it only served to disgust a boy with military life. He favored a Boy Scout training.

Mr. Richardson of Newton Centre said his boy had greatly improved by a summer at Fort Terry.

Mr. H. M. Holmes of Waban said that drill had been discarded by all but two high schools in the state and all educators were opposed to it. New York state had also discarded it in its secondary schools and as a measure of preparedness it was futile and silly.
Mr. G. N. Goddard said that drill as a preparedness measure was a delusion as it turns boys against military service. The best discipline should be obtained in daily work at school where every task should be some form of discipline. Physical culture in the school should be placed on a right basis.

Mr. E. J. Winslow called attention to the recent state report on the matter which opposes a close order of drill and the manual of arms and recommends setting up exercises as practised at West Point. He thought it an unfortunate time to re-establish drill in the high school.

Miss Mildred Clark asked if we wanted discipline thru blind obedience or as the result of intellectual perception, where each one should give up something for the good of the whole. She opposed any confusion of military law for the moral law.

Mr. F. H. Howes asked if the boys of Boston were any better in discipline or morale than the boys of Newton and stated that the highest educational experts of the country were proud of the Newton schools.

President Blanchard aroused a hornet's nest when he stated that the Newton Improvement Society had voted in favor of military drill. This was denied by Mr. Howes and Rev.
Mr. Lutz and when the exact resolution was read by Aldermen Forknall, it was shown that the Newton vote of 18 to 3 was principally against the "military" part of the plan.

President Blanchard also stated that a post card canvas of Waban showed 116 in favor and but 13 opposed to the drill.

Col. Benyon stated that 34 per cent of certain enlistment were by boys of the Newton schools and that the Boston boys at Harvard had shown splendid physical training.

Mr. Royal R. Heuter said that from advocate of military drill and said it ought to be taught earlier than it is.
He had lately visited 1500 industrial plants and had noticed that every good plant showed team work and the best team work was attained thru drill.
Mr. Brown of West Newton wanted the committee to obtain the views of the parents on the subject.

Mr. A. C. Farley gave his personal experiences with drill which he thought gave a practical and intelligent form of discipline and told how one of his sons had greatly improved physically and mentally in the Newton schools and sent to a military school. He was now in the French ambulance service, a remark that called forth applause from the audience. Mr. Farley told TWENTY FOUR—GRAPHIC

how a second son did not even get physical training at High School. He called attention to the fact that boys who get on the football team are only a small proportion of the whole and are usually the ones who need the training the least.

Rev. Harry Lutz emphasized the result of the vote at the Newton meeting. He suggested that a survey of all the conditions should be made with a view to obtaining the right sort of training in some other way.

Mr. Holbrook of Waban had visited many high schools and found none of the principals wanted it as they did not consider it a help in their work.

Mrs. Glendower Evans, alto, a non-resident was allowed to speak in opposition.

A vote was taken on the subject resulting in 31 in favor and 20 opposed to military drill in the high schools.

JOHN AND MARY

By HELEN MERRITT.

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Mary came running down the stairs, her face beaming. She had double cause to be happy—she was going out to spend the evening with her lover and she had a new and beautiful gown.
As she entered the reception room,
John rose to greet her. She paused before she reached him, and, letting the long cloak slip from her shoulders, stood revealed in all the bravery of the new finery.

"Don't you like it?" she faltered.
He might have been diplomatic in his reply. But that was not John's way.

So he blurted out bluntly, "No, I don't."

Tears rose instantly to dim the brightness of Mary's blue eyes.
"Why?" she asked, after a long pause.

But specific explanation was quite beyond John. He did not like the dress. He simply stood and gazed disappointingly at it, and under the shadow of that look Mary broke down and wept openly. Then, without another word, she ran from the room.

Then a half hour had passed and Mary had not returned to him. He rang the bell and requested the maid who answered it to say to Miss Mary that he was waiting.

When the maid returned she handed him a note. It was very brief. He read amazedly: "I am not going out with you—now or at any other time.
Mary."

Besides being straightforward to the verge of brusqueness, John was stubborn. He felt that he did not deserve the punishment.

And the breach thus opened widened steadily as time sped on.

Mary's maid went to her mistress one day and asked: "Miss Mary, what had we better do about the rough laundry this week? Old Mary hasn't been to get it."

Young Mary turned languidly from the book she was only pretending to read.

"Perhaps she's sick," she suggested. "I'll go over to her place and see about it."

It was a sad enough spectacle which confronted Mary when she reached the poor home of the laundress. The few bits of furniture were piled up ready for removal. Old Mary was sitting beside John, her rheumatic old husband.

The story was soon told. John's rheumatism would not permit him to work steadily any longer. It was starvation or the poorhouse.

Young Mary thought rapidly, and the end of her pondering brought glad relief to the face of old John.

"I'll take Mary home with me," she said authoritatively. "There's a little room over the kitchen she can have.
She can help the cook when she is able, and she'll be well looked after."

An hour or two later, leaning on his stick and shuffling his way to the road leading to the poorhouse, old John was halted by a cheery greeting:

"Hello John! What's up with you?
You haven't been around lately to do the lawn."

The old man repeated the tale of his misfortunes.

It was John's turn to take the role of good fairy. He knew how these old folks had always dreaded the poorhouse.

"You won't have to go to the poorhouse," he told the old fellow. "You come around to the garage with me.
There's a room there the under gardener used to have. You shall stay there. The cook will feed you. When you feel like doing a bit of work, why, do it."

So it happened that old Mary, comfortably ensconced in Miss Mary's kitchen, received a message which told her that old John had escaped the poorhouse. It gave her the address of the garage.

Time passed. One morning Mrs. Mary's maid came to her room with a serious face. "Old Mary's too sick to get up," she announced dolefully.

Miss Mary wrote a note to old Mary's dictation. It said: "Dear John, I am sick, maybe dying. I want you. Come at once, Mary."

The note was sent and when it reached its destination it threw old John into a panic. Mr. John was away, but the chauffeur advised the old man to go to his wife at once.

"Leave the note on the boss' desk," he suggested. "Then he'll know why you had to go in a hurry."

Mr. John came back from a business trip, tired and utterly discouraged.

But suddenly the whole face of the earth was transformed into a thing of joy! For there on his desk he found a note in Mary's handwriting. It bore a message which could only be answered in person. Mary was in trouble and had appealed to him!

When she came in answer to the unexpected demand, it followed, of course, that all doubts and misunderstandings were speedily cleared away.
When she realized just what had brought John to her house in such precipitate haste, Mary led him to the little room over the kitchen. Together they entered on tiptoe. Old Mary lay on the little bed, peacefully fast asleep. Holding her hand and with his old, white head nodding close toward hers, sat old John.

"They must never be separated again," John whispered. "They can live with us."

And Mary, her heart in her eyes, noddled assent.

PRICE OF COAL

Editor, Newton Graphic, Newton, Mass.
Dear Sir:

Some people are under the impression that my petition to Congress for an embargo on the exportation of coal from the United States is based solely on a desire to reduce the present retail price. This is a misapprehension as the coal business has only recently begun to feel the effects of the European War as expressed by the great demand for coal from South America, Europe, and Egypt which places were formerly supplied by England, Wales, Germany, France and Belgium. It is not so much the present prices which concern me as it is the prospects of very much higher prices in the future, if the great foreign demand continues.

The people of Newton should carefully consider the alarming fact that it has been impossible for the retail coal dealers of Massachusetts to replace their stock for the price at which they have been selling it at any time during the last six weeks. If these conditions continue it is very easy to see that either the retail price must advance or that the dealers, not being able to afford the present high wholesale prices, will not have coal to sell.

Yours very truly,
C. A. CHADWICK.

HOLIDAY DANCE

The annual Christmas dance on Saturday evening was the big holiday event at Mt. Ida School.

The Gymnasium was transformed into an evergreen bower, being entirely surrounded with Christmas trees, from the entrance. The lights were covered with red shades and school banners were hung in the corners and along the walls.

The hall was filled with gaily gowning dancers, and Knights Orchestra was present with a most up-to-date program.

Mr. Jewett, principal of the school was the patron, and the patronesses were Mrs. Jewett and Miss Nellie Davis.

There were about one hundred present and at the close a collation was served. The girls left this week on the annual Christmas vacation.

For The Children

Do you think Santa Claus will come this year?

They say he's very poor. And that he cannot afford a reindeer To draw his sleigh from door to door.

I'd lend him my pony if not so small, Then he would surely come this way; And then I'd ask him if he would please call.

On the little boy they named "Ray."

I'm going to be very, very good. For ma says Santa does not stop. We little boys and girls are bold and ruddy.

And do not do as they are taught.

And in our Sunday School the teachers say We must give to poor girls and boys. I think I'll lend him my pony, anyway. For he can carry lots of toys.

DELIVERY COSTS MONEY

That the public demand for the delivery of goods in small packages in place of the old bulk method is one of the main factors in the increasing cost of living, was the opinion expressed by Mr. C. H. Hood, President of H. P. Hood & Sons, in an address before the Wholesale Grocers' Association at Young's Hotel recently. This was particularly true in the case of milk, according to Mr. Hood, and he stated that the milk business of today is carried on with an extremely small and unsafe margin of profit, entirely out of keeping with the capital invested, if modern sanitary ideas are lived up to and due regard is paid to the welfare of employees.

"The reason for the declining dairy industry in Massachusetts," said Mr. Hood, "is due to the fact that this state is a great manufacturing one. Labor can receive higher wages and more of the comforts of life in the city than on the farm and the result is that the soil is not being tilled as it should be. There are vast opportunities here in New England for agriculture, but it is a difficult problem to develop it. The milk producer today receives a larger percentage of the consumer's dollar in the case of milk than almost every other product he raises, but he has been told so many times by so many people that there is no money in producing milk that he is selling off his cows in place of studying efficiency. The dairy industry in New England is such that if the babies had to depend entirely upon nearly by milk, what little they got would cost in the neighborhood of fifty cents a quart and many of them would starve to death."

In speaking of the distribution of milk, Mr. Hood stated that all of his delivery men average to earn over $25.00 a week under a profit sharing system and that nearly half of the employees are stock holders in the company. He stated that during the past year the profit on every quart of milk handled by his company was less than one-eighth of a cent or about 1 1/2 per cent on the sales.

CLASSICAL HIGH SCHOOL

On Tuesday morning, December 19, the upper classes spent the first recitation period in the hall, where the celebrated Ian Hay gave a remarkably interesting account of some of his experiences in the European War. He gave an outline of a typical day in the trenches, related a number of very amusing incidents which occurred while he was at the front, and contrasted the British and French methods of repelling attacks upon the trenches. Throughout his talk he laid considerable stress upon the cheerful manner in which the English soldiers are carrying on the war. To show their appreciation of this excellent opportunity for real information from the front, the students cheered the noted author at the close of his address.

The annual Christmas Meeting of the English Club was held in the Assembly Hall last Friday afternoon at the close of school. An interesting program, consisting of appropriate exercises, was presented by several members of the club.

The boys of the upper classes assembled in the hall during the regular period Wednesday morning. Mr. Adams took this opportunity to give out information concerning Harvard scholarships. After completing his explanation, Mr. Adams commented upon the recent high standing of Newton High School students at Harvard.

The members of the school football squad, together with Coach Dickinson, spent a very enjoyable evening at the home of Mr. George B. H. Macomber on Highland avenue last Friday. A number of speeches were made by every member of the squad.

Bradford Storey, who has been an assistant manager of the football team during the past season, has been appointed football manager for 1917.

Track candidates will be called out early next week, and will hold practice during the Christmas vacation. Practice will be held on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday mornings of next week, and then regularly on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons. Manager Gerald Henderson has announced the following schedule:

January 26, Interclass Meet in gymnasium; February 2, Huntington Dual Meet at Huntington School; February 9, Triangular Meet in gymnasium; February 17, Greater Boston School Meet at Boston Y. M. C. A.; February 24, B. A. A. Schoolboy Meet at Mechanics Building.

The boys' interclass basketball games have progressed rapidly during the past week. Monday afternoon the Sophomores defeated the Seniors 20 to 1, while the Juniors won from the Freshmen, 12 to 5. Wednesday afternoon the Juniors won the decisive game of the series by defeating the Sophomores, 20 to 12, in an exciting contest. The Freshmen defeated the Seniors on the same afternoon by a score of 19 to 4. The Juniors can win the interclass championship by defeating the Seniors this afternoon.

The date of the girls' interclass basketball series has not yet been decided. Practice is being held in the gymnasium on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

TECHNICAL HIGH SCHOOL

At the regular Senior Assembly last Friday morning, Mr. Stanley of the Science Department gave an instructive talk on the properties of liquid air. Among other demonstrations, he made ice cream upon the platform.

The Freshmen were entertained by the Seniors at their regular assembly yesterday morning. Several of the upper classmen presented Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol." This presentation will be repeated at the regular Senior Assembly today.

The annual Christmas Exercises were held in the hall Wednesday morning. The program consisted of selections by the School Orchestra, Christmas Carols, and recitations by a number of the pupils.

A candy sale and dance was held in the school library last Friday afternoon, and was very largely attended by students of all the schools. The proceeds will be used to purchase magazines for the library.

The rooms on the lower floor of this building are being wired for electric lights by members of the Senior Class on the Electrical Course in the Vocational School. This improvement is being made in order that the classes of a night school may be transferred from the Horace Mann School to this building.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The foreign work of the Association is taking first place in the interest of the members during the closing months of the year. One thousand dollars have already been raised for the support of our Secretary in China, Mr. Goldart; five hundred more have been pledged and there are five hundred more to be raised before the first of January. We invite all members of the Association and the many men and women in the community who may be interested in the young men of China to help in this good cause.

The Pilgrim Publicity Association of Boston has been sending a number of speakers for the Fellowship Club which meets on Monday evening of each week. The last speaker was W. D. Townner, the secretary of that organization, who spoke on Store Management. On account of the holiday season, the meetings of the club are postponed until Monday, January 8.

Considerable interest has been manifested in a salesmanship class which we hope to start soon after January 1. A number of Italian young men are coming every morning to the Association to learn English. These young men work all night and cannot attend the evening classes conducted by the city.

Great interest has been taken in the bowling this year. The team from the Immanuel Baptist Church is now leading in the church league, having lost only one point. In the house tournament, a group of Waltham young men, comprising Team 7, and Team 4, whose members are Kane, Richmond, Wheeler, Smith and Libby, are tied for first place. The high average of 95 is held jointly by I. B. Jaquith and L. Bills. J. H. Freeman holds the high single, 129, and L. Bills holds the high three string, 320.

During the whole year just closing, most every room in the dormitory has been occupied continuously. Thirty-eight young men are now living in the dormitories. Most of them will go home for the Christmas season. Those who remain here, however, are planning on having a Merry Christmas.

N. H. S.

Newton High School had some first-class hockey material last winter and the team was beaten by Melrose in a play-off for the league championship. This year Captain Alphonse LaCroix at goal and Hughes in the forward line provide an excellent nucleus for a team, but there are to be counter attractions in the athletic line for Orange and Black athletes. Henry Garrity, who has been re-elected football captain, was honored with the track leadership, but he may resign in order to devote his efforts to hockey. He is a fair 600-yard runner and feels that he would be of greater value to the school as a candidate for the hockey team. Alfred Dickinson will coach the track team, which will compete in the following meets:

Jan. 22—Interclass meet; Feb. 2—Huntington at Boston Y. M. C. A.; Feb. 9—Triangular League meet (Brookline, Cambridge Latin and Newton) at Newton; Feb. 17—Greater Boston interscholastic meet, at Boston Y. M. C. A.; Feb. 24—B. A. A. meet at Mechanics Building.

NEWTON VOCATIONAL SCHOOL

Dr. George B. Nasmyth, Secretary of the Massachusetts Branch of the League to Enforce Peace, addressed the pupils of the school at their Monday Morning Assembly, Dec. 17th, upon the subject, "Peace Among Nations."

A PLAIN STATEMENT OF FACTS

There never has been a time when the demand for shoes by the poor of this City has been as insistent as now. A pair of shoes for a child ten years old costs today at least $3.00. This price insures a pair of shoes with only reasonable wearing qualities. The shoes which have cost $1.50, the price often paid in the past, give no adequate return in wear for the money invested. At present the Charity Department of the City is entirely without shoes. Calls for aid in this line are coming in thick and fast. Children in many cases are staying home from school because they cannot get covers for the feet. There are one thousand homes in this City today that have shoes which have remaining in them considerable wear. We need these shoes more than a hungry man needs a dinner. Isn't it possible for you to make a present to the poor of these very shoes which are at present in your way and doing no one good? Shoes of all kinds and sizes will be most thankfully received.

Please send them marked Charity Department, City Hall, or if not convenient, send a card stating where they can be found.

Yours very truly,
F. M. LOWE, M. D.,
City Physician.

MISS GRACE M. BURT, Editor.

What makes Christmas the happy time that it is? What is it about the Christmas spirit that it should find a place in every heart and make us desire the person in whom it is found wanting. To be sure the mad rush of Christmas shopping and the vain search for the impossible gift may obscure for the moment the real Christmas spirit, yet deep down in the heart of every one lie the eternal verities which make Christmas dear to each and all—the love of home, the love of kindred, the love of children, of friends, of our fellowmen, of our country, and in loving these, comes the love of God. For a brief season is put aside that ever increasing desire for some new sensation—a desire as real in the days of ancient Athens, when the Athenians "spent their time in nothing else but either to tell or to hear some new thing," or when Alexander the Great went for more worlds to conquer, as it is today, when the person who is not dressed in the latest fashion, who has not read the latest "best-seller" nor seen the latest production upon the stage has no place in society. It is beautiful indeed to leave all this behind and to return for a time to the simple abiding things of life and to find pleasure in things because they are old, in singing old carols, to remember the old friends and to find joy in this old world, merely because we love them. This, it would seem, is the real answer to the question.

Local Announcements

The Newton Parliamentary Law Club will hold its regular meeting on Tuesday, Dec. 26, at 10:15 A. M. in the Newton Library.

On Tuesday morning Mrs. Leila C. Pennock will give the monthly talk on current events before the class of the Newtonville Woman's Guild.

There will be no meeting of the Social Science Club on Wednesday.

Mrs. William C. Gordon will be hostess for the meeting of the Aunburndale Review Club at her home, 89 Grove street, on Dec. 28.

On Friday afternoon Mrs. Mabel A. Crawford lectures on current events before the Brighthelmstone Club.

The Newton Highlands Shakespeare Club meets at the home of Mrs. H. S. Drew on Dedham street, Dec. 30.

Local Happenings

December 15 Mrs. Albert Billings was hostess for the Progress Club at her home in West Newton. The business session was followed by Mrs. Billings' paper on "Our Philippine Question" with accompanying illustrations. The latter part of the afternoon was devoted to a book review by Mrs. Olin Dickerman and Mrs. J. R. McLean. The next meeting will occur on Jan. 5, at the home of Mrs. J. W. Messenger of Aunburndale.

The Newton Highlands Shakespeare Club met with Miss Newhall on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 16. Miss McCann had charge of the quiz on Act III of Henry IV, Part I. She showed the development of the political situation with its foreshadowing of the future, indicated by the quarrelling of the usurpers and the reconciliation of the King with Prince Hal.

On Monday afternoon the Newton Highlands C. L. S. C. met at the home of Mrs. W. Scott Richards. Mrs. C. Peter Clark presented for the consideration of the club "Drake and Other Poems" by Alfred Noyes. As the poet himself had been discussed in the course last season only a brief review of his life was given and the time was devoted to the reading and study of fragments from this particular volume of his works.

The gentlemen's night announced in the calendar for Jan. 1st has been postponed until Jan. 8th, so that there will be an interval of three weeks between meetings.

At the meeting of the Newtonville Woman's Guild on Tuesday, Mrs. W. S. Higgins was once more in the chair. A very enjoyable musical program under the direction of Mrs. A. L. Wakefield was rendered by Miss J. Barbara Werner of Brookline, violinist, and Mrs. Minnie Little Longley of Boston, pianist and singer. It consisted of a Suite for violin and piano, a group of French songs, a violin solo by Miss Werner, a group of MacDowell selections for the piano, English songs by Mrs. Longley, violin selections from Kreisler, another group for the piano and closed with the song, "There's a Bird in My Heart," by Krogmann with violin obligato.

Mrs. Longley and Miss Werner, at the close all adjourned to the tea room where refreshments were served by the Hospital committee. The customary donation of jellies for the Newton Hospital was received at this time.

The Aunburndale Woman's Club met on Tuesday in the Congregational Chapel. Mrs. H. A. Wentworth, vice-president presiding. The resignation of Mrs. C. A. Brown, the president was read and accepted with sincere regret. Mrs. Brown has worked most loyally for the club during its pioneer years, sparing neither time nor labor in serving the club, and goes out of office with the best wishes of every member for her future welfare.

After business session Mrs. W. G. Sampson gave two piano solos. The special feature of the afternoon was a lecture by W. S. C. Russell, on "Iceland,"

He described Iceland as the best land on which the sun shines. The Icelanders are the most hospitable and religious people on the face of the world. They are very poor, fishing and bird catching being their chief industries. The women clean, split and cure all the codfish, tilling industriously to help their husbands.

The climate the year round is better than in New England, and only once in twenty-five years has the temperature gone below zero. Cattle can graze practically all the year. Thirty-seven varieties of flowers grow seven miles below Arctic Circle. They have a beautiful Parliament House, built of lava, containing many fine carvings and paintings. There are 80,000 volumes in the library. Books in every language. The people the highly educated and the University of Iceland, while a very poor looking place, has turned out some of the brightest men in the world of letters.

DEATH OF MRS. HICKEY

Mrs. Gertrude Elizabeth (Morse) Hickey, wife of James A. Hickey, and formerly a resident of Newtonville, died on Monday evening at her home at 121 East 52nd street, New York city, following a brief illness. Mrs. Hickey appeared to have rallied so well, since the beginning of her illness, that there was every encouragement for her recovery, but the end came with an unexpected hemorrhage.

Mrs. Hickey was born in September, 1872, in Hyde Park, and she was a daughter of the late George W. Morse, a Boston lawyer, and of Clara R. (Boit) Morse, who now resides in Newtonville. Mrs. Hickey was one of their six children—two sons and four daughters—and her death is the first one among them. She received her education in part at Radcliffe College and since residing in New York had taken special courses of study at Columbia University. Her marriage to James A. Hickey, a New York lawyer, took place in June, 1902. She was prominent as a member of the Society of Daughters of the American Revolution and frequently attended, as a delegate, the annual Continental Congress of the society, held always in Washington, D. C. She belonged also to the Society of Colonial Dames.

Mrs. Hickey is survived by her husband, and by her mother, Mrs. George W. Morse, three sisters and two brothers, as follows: Mrs. Nicholas Richardson (Harriet C. Morse) of Newtonville, Mrs. Walter Lowell (Bessie Morse) and Miss Genevieve Morse also of that place; Henry W. Morse of Los Angeles, Cal., and Samuel S. B. Morse of San Francisco, Cal.

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon at the home of her mother, Mrs. George W. Morse, 120 Court street, Newtonville.

The services were conducted by Rev. Canon Tilly Morse, a cousin, rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church of West Newbury, and the interment followed in the family lot of Shawshen Cemetery, Bedford.

MR. GUILD DEAD

Henry F. Guild, who was identified with the jewelry trade in Boston, died Monday at his home at Newton Highlands. He was born in the South End, 66 years ago the son of Henry and Louise (Probbisher) Guild. His father was the oldest manufacturing jeweler in Boston. Mr. Guild was associated early in life with the firm of Guild and Delano, which, in 1884, became Henry Guild & Son, with Mr. Guild as junior partner. On the retirement of his father, in 1894, Mr. Guild became the head of the firm and retired from business in 1901. Mr. Guild was interested in yachting and in photography. He was a member of the South Congregational Church in Boston. In 1903 he was married to Miss McLaren of Canada, who survives him.

The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon at his home on Elm street, Newton Highlands. The services were conducted by Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham, pastor of the Arlington Street Unitarian Church, and Rev. Thomas W. Davison, pastor of the Atlantic Congregational Church. A male quartet sang "Abide With Me," "A Perfect Day" and "I'll Go Where You Want Me to Go." The interment was in the Forest Hills Cemetery.

DEATH OF STUDENT

James T. Tarrt, a junior at the Newton Theological Institution died Friday morning at the Newton hospital as a result of an operation. He was 26 years of age.

Mr. Tarrt resigned his pastorate at Alpine, Tex., last September, and made the journey from El Paso to Newton Centre by automobile. He was accompanied by his wife and two daughters. He made an admirable impression on the faculty and students at the seminary and intended to stay for the full three years' term.

Dr. George E. Horr, president of the institution, conducted the service, and also paid a tribute to the life of the young man. The members of the student body, who were present in a body, sang "Jerusalem the Golden" and "O, Mother Dear, Jerusalem." Dr. John M. English offered the closing prayer. The body was sent this noon to his home in Alpine, where the interment will take place.

NONANTUM COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS TREE

Preparations are being made for the Community Christmas Tree at Nonantum. The tree is a gift of a friend in the neighborhood. For the lighting the community itself and its friends are being responsible. The lights are to be turned on by Mayor Childs at nine o'clock Christmas Eve, Sunday. His Honor will also give the Christmas welcome. The carol singing is to be of unusual interest this year in that the French Choir will give a Christmas Carol in the French language. There will also be an English Carol sung by an American choir of the neighborhood. There will be general carol singing also, led by a chorus of over a hundred voices.

The tree is to be on the lawn of the Stearns School on Faxon street, Nonantum.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Men and women are often capable of greater things than they perform. They are sent into the world with bills of credit, and seldom draw to their full extent.—Walpole.

TABLE DELICACIES.

The tough ends of steak are often a problem in good serving. Cut the tough end from the steak and chop rather coarsely; cook it in a little butter with a little pepper and salt until it is well heated; add two tablespoonfuls of milk, dredge with browned flour, toss it well in one-fourth of a cupful of cream and serve with baked potatoes.

Queen Pudding.—Take three eggs, three-quarters of a cupful of milk, one-half cupful of hot water, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, two of gelatin and two of chopped raisins, with vanilla to flavor. Heat the milk to the boiling point; add the beaten yolks of the eggs with the sugar dissolved in warm water. While still warm add the whites thoroughly beaten and flavor with vanilla. Put into a mold and add the raisins chopped.

Mashed Carrots.—Scrape the carrots and let them stand in cold water for half an hour. Cook until tender in boiling salted water, then drain and wash, season well with butter and a dash of lemon juice; garnish the dish with parsley and serve very hot.

Orange Preserves.—Wash oranges and slice them in quarter-inch slices; cover with cold water and let them stand 24 hours. Cook them in the water until they are tender, but not soft; add a pound of sugar and the juice of one lemon for each orange and cook them until the fruit is transparent. Put the slices in cans in layers, pour over the sirup and when cold cover with paraffin. Serve with ice cream or as a garnish for various desserts.

Marshmallow Parfait.—Make a sirup by boiling together two cupfuls of sugar and a cupful of water until it spins a thread. Then pour boiling hot on the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs; beat until thick and creamy, gradually beating in a pint of whipped cream; flavor with rose extract and put into the freezer; after five minutes when it is frozen to a mush add a cupful of nutmeats, chopped, and marshmallows cut up. Freeze until firm and let stand for two hours to ripen.

After you've been two weeks in the house with one of these terrible handy men that ask their wives to be sure to wipe between the times of the forks, and that know just how much raising bread ought to have, and how to hang out a wash, so each place will get the best sun, it's a real joy to get back to the ordinary kind of man. Yes, 'tis so! I think a man should have sense about the things he's meant to have sense about, but when it comes to keeping house, I like him real helpless, the way the Lord planned to have him.—Youth's Companion.

Nellie Maxwell The KITCHEN CABINET

It is far easier to prepare made dishes for entrees, salads, or even main dishes, but the ingenuity of the cook is taxed to use bits of left-over desserts in attractive ways.

If one has served a plain rice pudding one day the rice may be combined with a custard for a dessert the second, not the following day. Another attractive rice pudding may be prepared by packing the remnants into a mold and when time to serve, turn out and cover the mold with sweetened whipped cream and surround with any fresh, well-sugared berries in their season, or muskmelon, cut in dice, sprinkled with sugar, salt and a bit of nutmeg makes a most attractive and appetizing combination.

If cottage pudding is served, bake a layer or two in a jelly cake tin and have it with a rich filling for a cake to serve with a little dish of fruit for dessert the following day. Or if the pudding itself is left, drop the pieces in a paper and reheat or steam in a steamer and serve with a custard sauce.

Left-over baked custards may be carefully dipped into sherbet cups, a layer of nuts or fruit between, and garnish with cooked egg, white or whipped cream. Cornstarch pudding or rice may be served in the same way.

Pieces of pie may be each covered with a meringue and browned, making a very pretty dessert.

Apple sauce may be placed in ramekins, cover with a rich pastry and bake; serve hot or cold.

Blanc-mange when made molded in individual molds, if any is left over, may be cut in two and served with a different sauce, adding variety without waste.

Steamed chocolate pudding, cut in slices and put together with an orange filling, may be served in small cakes with a cup of tea for luncheon.

DONALD MacDonald

Donald MacDonald, a pioneer and long leading figure in Boston in the manufacture of stained-glass windows, died December 14 at his residence in Highland avenue, Newtonville, following illness prolonged through about two years. Up to that time, he was active in business at his Boston manufactory on Northampton street.

Mr. MacDonald was born seventy-three years ago in Glasgow, Scotland, and as a young man went to London, where he gained his knowledge regarding the making of stained-glass, especially in the application of the art to memorial windows. He came to Boston nearly half a century ago, having been urged from this side of the Atlantic to leave London for America, where his knowledge of his business was needed. Since coming to this country, Mr. MacDonald had always made his home in or near Boston. His wife, who was formerly Miss Sarah Newton of London, came here with him.

The work turned out from the MacDonald factory is found in all parts of the country, in churches, libraries and other public buildings, in the form of important memorial windows, as well as in many fine private residences. Mr. MacDonald was himself an artist whose work as a painter has been notable and he designed the work executed at his factory. Examples of his work are found in the windows in Trinity Church, the South Congregational, familiarly known as "Dr. Hale's" and in other churches in Boston.

Mr. MacDonald belonged to the Boston Art Club. He was a member also of the Boston Curling Club and was considered as most competent in curling and also at bowling on the green and he had won several cups, offered as trophies in these sports.

Surviving Mr. MacDonald are his wife Sarah Newton MacDonald, five daughters and a son as follows: Miss Flora MacDonald, who is known as an interior decorator in Boston, and lecturer; Mrs. Donaldson Hopkins and Miss Ruby MacDonald, all of whom live at the family home in Newtonville; Mrs. J. Henry Kuhn, formerly Miss Sarah MacDonald, who resides in Melrose Highlands, and Mrs. John Ballard of Seattle, Wash., who before her marriage, was Miss Jessie MacDonald. The son who has succeeded his father in business, is Donald Newton MacDonald.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at his late residence on Highland avenue.

Rev. John Goddard, pastor of the Church of the New Jerusalem conducted an impressive service at 3 o'clock. There were many beautiful floral tributes and the interment was in Mt. Auburn. The funeral was private.

CITY HALL

Dr. Francis George Curtis, chairman of the Newton Board of Health, has entered into an agreement with the authorities of the Newton Hospital whereby that institution will care for the after-treatments of patients in Newton who have been afflicted with infantile paralysis. The after-treatments, in the opinion of Dr. Curtis, are the most important, because the patient needs proper treatment for many weeks after, before the full strength of the part afflicted becomes fully strong again. The first patient under this agreement was taken to the hospital Saturday. The city will only pay the cost of those unable to raise the necessary money for the carrying out of this work.

B. U. FRATERNITY PARTY

The Delta Delta Delta Fraternity of Boston University, College of Liberal Arts, held its annual Christmas party and dance at the Newton Club House, December 18th. One of the novel features of the evening was a "conversational dance order." Among the topics were the "Billy Sunday Gallon," the "Boston American Slide," and the "Safety-First One-Step."

The first part of the evening was spent in merriment and games. Then the refreshments were served in the dining room, which was elaborately decorated in the fraternity colors; silver, gold, and blue. At the table of honor the guests were much surprised to see a large illuminated beautifully decorated and illuminated with candles; this was in honor of the birthday anniversaries of five of the young ladies.

After the refreshments a Delta prophecy was read by Elise Brecker of Lawrence.

The last part of the evening was spent in dancing; the first dance being the old-fashioned Virginia Reel, in which all participated.

Among those present were: Pres. and Mrs. L. H. Murlin, Boston; Prof. and Mrs. Wm. Newton; Prof. Talbot, Boston; Miss Johnson, Melrose Highlands; Dr. Hopkins and Dr. Florence Belyea of Brookline; Misses Nies, Elliot, Jenks, Schubert, Thomas, Smyth, Ritchie, Boice, Murray, Gibson, McAllister, Emsey, Eastham, and Mr. Longueil, Anderson, Bennett, Lombardi, Frye, Sanford, Phipps, Burrill, Jones, Burdick, Hearn, Hussy, McAllister and Shepard.

Miss Blanche Berry of West Newton was chairman of the committee. She was assisted by Elise Brecker, Lawrence; Mary Stothart, Malden, and Rena Ward of Somerville.

"There are thousands to tell you it cannot be done. There are thousands to prophesy failure. There are thousands to point out, one by one. The dangers that wait to assail you; But just buckle in, with a bit of a grin. Take off your coat and go to it; Just start in to sing as you tackle the thing. That cannot be done, and you'll do it."

"But, Santy, there are limits." Babette pushed back her white sunbonnet belligerently. Down on her knees, she was diligently weeding out the sweet pea rows. Her hands were soiled and unseemly looking, her face was flushed and freckled, and altogether she looked absolutely unrepresentative, as her mother would have said.

"It isn't everyone who has such a lovely mother. Can't you appreciate that?" asked Santangelo, amusedly. He leaned over the fence from his side of the garden, a large flexible Panama shading his dark, strongly-lined face. "How old are you, Babette—fourteen?"

"No, I'm sixteen, going on seventeen. And I'll never have the ghost of a chance, Santy. She takes every last fellow away from me that comes to this house."

"You mean your youthful companions admire your mother more than your own self?" Santangelo's eyes were brimming with enjoyment of her indignation. "You know the remedy for that—marry her off."

Then a gray and silver car slipped into the curving drive around the house and Babette jumped up.

"There she is now. And Doctor Romley with her. He's an explorer, Santy, with medals all over him and scads of money."

He watched the slim figure in the linen skirt and middie speed away to the car. His eyes glowed, watching her alight, the lady mother, as Babette loved to call her. She was hardly older than thirty-four, slender and beautiful as an artist's mind counts beauty. Santangelo had painted her portrait twice, and yet he felt unsatisfied. He had never caught the infinite, tender charm of her after all. It eluded him even as she herself always had in the years of her long widowhood.

And now her child Babette was growing into womanhood. And the time was drawing near the limit that he had imposed upon himself when he would ask her mother again for her love.

The shadows were beginning to fall along the far horizon line of the sea when he heard Nathalie call him at the little opening between the two gardens.

"Are you very busy?" "Never, never too busy!" he called back cheerily.

"You know I am almost tired to-night," Nathalie said.

He glanced at her quickly. Once long ago she had told him half in jest, half in earnest, that if she ever accepted him it would be when she was very tired. Why? Because he rested her and gave her a sense of peace and well-being.

"Let us walk down through the garden to the beach," he said taking her lightly by her wrist. And he knew suddenly that she wanted to break some news to him.

"Do you like Doctor Romley?" "Very much," he said heartily. "He is a splendid chap."

"He is twenty-six," she hesitated, "but he never thinks of his age. He is a leader now in all lines of scientific research."

"Undoubtedly," agreed Santangelo. "And he is well liked and prosperous and very good looking. What else, Donna Nathalie?"

"I wonder if he will make a good husband, Santangelo," she said softly. He drew in a deep full breath of the keen air and smiled at her.

"And I was just considering how I could warn you in the tenderest manner that I should ask you but once more, and, lo, comes the conqueror and bears you right out from my sight, ah, my Nathalie."

"You mean the doctor seeks me? Oh, Santangelo, how funny; yes, how droll. That I should even think of such a boy—oh, my dear—"

She held out her hands to him laughingly. "He has asked me for Babette, and I can't say yes. She is so young."

Santangelo looked down at her, holding both her hands in his, his dark eyes full of whimsical reproach.

"And I have been betrayed," he cried. "I have asked you again, or at least, I have once more showed you how patient I am and how I dare always to hope."

"Always," she repeated, smiling. "Do you remember when I first met you in Rome years ago, and you wanted to paint my portrait? Those days on the coast at the quaint little old villa? And afterward, four years after that, when you came here, and painted me again, and you liked the location, you said, and the island air, so you built your studio only next door—"

"Babette begged me to help her with her gardening."

"And I begged you to help with everything—the flowers, the rearing of Babette—was there anything I did not trouble you about?"

"Then perhaps you may even miss me. Ah," as she tried to speak, "a man, even a man like myself, cannot stand it always to gaze at the star he may not reach. I shall sail this summer for home."

"Not this summer, Santangelo, or next," she laughed softly.

THE INCOME TAX

The interest taken by our citizens in the new income tax which goes into effect in 1917 was strikingly manifested Wednesday evening by the large attendance at the Hunnewell Club, where Mr. Philip Nichols was announced to give an informal talk upon the subject. President Warren F. Gregory introduced Mr. Nichols in a most happy manner and led up to the subject of the evening with most appropriate language.

Mr. Nichols who drafted the original bill of the Massachusetts Tax Association and which with slight modifications was passed by the Legislature gave a most interesting talk on the provisions of the bill and the necessity for its passage.

Mr. Nichols said in part that while the bill contained many provisions and had some sections which were very much complicated, its main principle was quite simple, and the few exceptions which required elaborate construction did not apply to the average case.

The bill was in three parts, a 6 per cent tax on incomes from intangible property, a 1 1/2 per cent tax on salaries, etc., over $2000 and a 3 per cent tax on income or gains from stock transactions. Mr. Nichols gave a brief history of the tax laws of the state since 1640, showing that personal property had greatly changed, particularly in the last century, the attempts to remedy double taxation and the ease with which present intangible property could be concealed from the assessors.

The new law he admitted was not drafted to obtain additional revenue, but was intended to reduce taxation on certain classes of property now taxed, when taxed at all at a prohibitive rate. He called special attention to the fact that after a citizen has made his return of income to the state tax assessors, he should also make a return of his tangible personal property to the local or Newton assessors, for the law especially required the Newton assessors to tax every personal in 1917 who failed to make a local return on the same amount of personal on which taxes were paid in 1916. So that a citizen who was paying the city a personal tax on say $10,000, of which $3000 was for automobile or furniture, and who made his income return to the state assessor next March, would still be taxed on the $10,000 valuation of 1916, if he failed to make a further return to the Newton assessors as of April 1st. Everyone is compelled to make a return even if all his income is in the exempted class.

Mr. Nichols answered many questions at the close of his talk after stating that while there were doubtless many defects in the new law, it was the duty of every good citizen to give all possible aid in enforcing it.

MUSICAL

A social event of special note in West Newton was the musicale on Monday evening given by Mr. and Mrs. William E. Crosby at their residence on Lenox street. A most delightful program was given by Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, pianist and composer. It included "A French Suite" and "Tyrolean Valse," the latter published from original manuscript not yet published.

Mrs. Beach was assisted by Mrs. La Fayette Goodbar, soprano soloist, who sang with pleasing effect, a group of songs.

Mr. and Mrs. Crosby were assisted in receiving their guests by Mrs. Crosby's mother, Mrs. R. L. Greene. A large company of friends numbering one hundred and fifty were present from West Medford, Boston, Brookline and the Newtons.

PAN AMERICANISM

Explained at Meeting of Newton South Community Forum

On account of the illness of Mr. Ivy L. Lee, the speaker at the meeting of the Newton South Community Forum at Lincoln Hall, Newton Highlands last Sunday afternoon was Prof. G. H. Blakeslee, professor of History and International Relations at Clark University, who spoke on Pan Americanism. Mr. Fred I. Brown presided and there was a large attendance.

One of the most striking facts in our foreign relations is the recent increase of interest in this country. One evidence of it is the interest the people take in Latin America. Two thousand educational institutions are giving instructions in Spanish where ten years ago there were perhaps fifty colleges teaching it. There are history books written about Latin America and there are the people's Universal moving picture shows, showing the American people the life in Latin America. In the minds of most people our interest centers on trade and I presume every person here has heard it stated or read it in the newspapers or magazines that the United States does not have its share of the trade of Latin America. The last year before the war, the United States had a total trade with Latin America of eight hundred million. Europe had six hundred and forty million and Germany four hundred and ten millions, and in that year, we sold more than any other nation in the world and bought more. The United States has sold almost twice the value of goods that Europe has. Even in normal times we were selling more manufacturing goods than we are led to believe.

Take a well-to-do Latin American business man when he gets up in the morning he will put on a pair of United States shoes. At the breakfast table he will take up a North American newspaper, he will ride to his office in a North American automobile. In his office he will use a North American desk and a North American typewriter and a North American fountain pen. He files his letters in a North American file. The farmers there have machines which come from the United States and practically all the farming tools come from the United States. You will get some idea from that that the United States is actually doing in trade and commerce and of the vast sum of money that is being invested in Latin America. It is only during the past few years that the beef trusts have built great beef packing companies in Latin America. It is only in the past three or four years that steel companies have bought iron-ore mines which are purer than any found in the United States and mining experts say that there is so much of it that there is a million dollars worth of cargo to go through the Panama Canal for a hundred years. It is not a question of our international trade I wish to discuss with you, it is a question of our international political relations with Latin America. This question is going to be more important in the future as the Latin American countries are increasing in strength and power and after the war the European nations will try to recover the lost ground in Latin America. Most people base Pan-Americanism on trade, but the policy of Pan-Americanism must be based on common interests, common ideals and friendly competition in joining and realizing that purpose of ideals. It was stated that if there had been an organization like this Pan-Americanism in Washington, Europe before the war that there would have been no war. This war has taught us that we must have something more than a Hague, we must have some kind of international organization or league or union. Pan Americanism must be built on a strong firm basis.

Practically every constitution of Latin America is copied more or less from the constitution of the United States and their ideals of Government also, they do not realize their ideals, neither do we. If you go to Europe you can tell the difference from a Frenchman and a German in their speech and many other ways but in Latin America, I do not think you could tell the difference between any class because they are all fundamentally alike. They have common democracy co-operation, common beliefs and ideals and common interests and they are free from the great causes of the war which make it so difficult to form an international relations in Europe. There has been a very strong sentiment in the United States and Latin America in favor of closer relations between the two. Pan Americanism is older than the Monroe Doctrine and today Pan Americanism in some form or other is in both the Democratic and Republican parties. Everything should be done to make the people of the United States better acquainted with the people of Latin America and you cannot do that by selling them more goods. Let us send educated men to the leading countries of Latin America to study what the United States might do to be of assistance to Latin America. Then let us make our league to enforce peace. Now looking into the future think of the centuries to come and the increasing number of Latin American citizens and cities, it is clear that the form of American competition is the only international organization that will save this hemisphere from treading this path of blood shed. The only way for the United States to work for it, to make concessions for it and if necessary to sacrifice minor issues in order to obtain it.

QUESTIONS.

If the trade of the United States is one third more than that of England and the invested money, English money, is ten times more, what value does England receive for the other nine tenths? Answer. If trade balanced investment, England doesn't get the trade it ought to. Of course the trade of the United States and Great Britain with Latin America refers to Latin America as a whole. The fact is that the United States has both the greatest trade with Latin America as a whole, in fact almost all of the trade, because they are the nearest. The United States sells to Mexico 60 per cent of what Mexico uses and Latin America 40 per cent. Our trade with Latin America is less when we get down to Argentine and Chili because of the distance. About 11 or 12 per cent of our trade with Latin America varies as to the distance of the country.

Question. Is Canada in this Pan American Union? If not, why not? Answer. Canada is not, but probably will be an honorary member. A friend of mine went to find out if the leading English authorities would object to Canada joining the union and they say that it seems likely after the war and after Canada has gotten over her present feelings towards the United States that Canada will probably come in as an honorary member.

Question. What was the attitude of this country toward the A. B. C. meddators when they came north? Answer. I never heard any criticism of the fact that they were treated otherwise but I do know that they felt that the American people and newspapers did not give sufficient space to the proceedings there at the conference.

Question. Would the sympathies of Latin America be with Germany in case of war with Germany? Answer. I think it would depend on what we were fighting for. In the present war the sympathies differ, they vary from section to section. But the feeling in Chile as a whole is not German.

Question. Have our military preparations caused any distrust on the part of the Latin Americans? Answer. I have not seen any hostility because of our military preparations.

advanced principles of electricity as applied to organ action. The console is detached and placed in the chancel at the right hand side about fifteen feet distant from the main organ.

It is a model of compactness and convenience, in scales, style, relation and position is accord with what is recognized as the latest and best methods, all being arranged to afford the greatest facilities to an organist.

The Pedal Keys are concave and radiating according to the American Guild of Organists' standard and can be adjusted to give any degree of stiffness to the touch.

One specially unique feature of this instrument is the double system of combination action, adjustable-movable, and adjustable-immovable. It is the first organ in this country that has both actions. The adjustable-movable pistons may be "set" at the organ desk, or the adjustable-immovable pistons can be "set" to any combination of stops at the will of the organist and can be changed as often as desired by means of thumb-buttons on a recorder just inside the door of the organ.

The organ is divided, the swell organ being over the pastor's study, the great, pedal and choir organs in the enclosure where the old organ stood and the echo organ is located in the upper part of the vestibule at the opposite end of the church from the main organ.

The Swell and Choir boxes are made of cement and are so constructed as to give the greatest range of expression. The double swell shades are laminated and rabbetted and heavily felted, and seal the bearings.

The wind chests are constructed on the very best principles, each pipe having an individual and separate valve. It is constructed with greatest care to allow each pipe its proper supply of wind and to provide ample speaking room.

The wood pipes are made of thoroughly seasoned white California pine, of first class quality so as to secure the best volume and quality of tone.

A large independent blowing plant is placed in the basement, and a five-horse-power electric Orgoblo, slow speed, with an extra fan, supplies the wind to all the reservoirs of the organ.

Particular attention has been paid to the voicing of the instrument. The tone of many of the stops and combinations is beautiful and oftentimes unique in its character.

The tone of the whole organ or in part combines power and richness, delicacy and dignity. The tone of the full organ is massive and brilliant without being harsh.

The diapasons are particularly rich and sonorous. The flutes are varied and of pure quality. The string-toned stops, some of which have been constructed on new scales, are one of the features of the instrument. The reeds on which so much of the beauty of organ tone depends are varied and evenly voiced.

The chimenes are placed in a separate swell box inside of the echo box.

DEATH OF CAPT. DAVIS

Captain Charles E. Davis, a well known former resident of Newtonville died at his home in Meredith, N. H., on Tuesday night. Mr. Davis was born in Laconia, N. H., in 1853 and was appointed a member of the Newton police force in 1878. In 1887 he was promoted to sergeant, and in 1888 became captain, serving until his resignation in the summer of 1895. Later he was employed as a special claim agent of the Telephone Company and about 12 years ago bought a fine farm at Meredith and engaged extensively in raising fancy stock. On the evening of Dec. 5, as he alighted from a buggy, he reined caught in his feet. He was thrown to the ground, struck on the back of his head and was severely injured. This accident caused his death. Capt. Davis is survived by a widow and two children. Edward, at home, and Cora, who resides in East Boston. The funeral will take place this afternoon at his late home in Meredith.

ing the meeting by the report of the City Clerk regarding the carelessness of the election officers of Precinct 2 in Newtonville in placing the cancelled ballots in the wrong box and carefully sealing up the unused ballots in the box to be used for cancelled ballots. This fact was discovered in connection with the recount of ballots last Friday for ward alderman in ward 2, the cancelled ballots being subsequently found in the bottom of the cancelling box. Mr. Grant filed with his report affidavits from everybody who had anything to do with the affair and as the only question appeared to be one of carelessness the matter was referred to the Mayor for his action, the election officers being his appointees.

The Registrars of Voters reported the result of their recount of ballots for ward aldermen in ward 2, giving Carter, 368 first choice votes, 3 second choice and 10 other choices, O'Connell had 303 first choice, 26 second choice and 61 other choices.

The board then passed the usual order declaring the result of the election as given in the Graphic of last week.

After the regular business had been transacted there was a long and informal discussion with City Solicitor Bishop on the matter of legislation for compulsory retirement of police and firemen on account of age.

The board adjourned at 11:20 P. M.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—At the Majestic Theatre, Boston, beginning next Monday, with a special Xmas matinee, Taylor Holmes, a light comedian, facile and pleasant of deportment, will appear for the 4th week in "His Majesty Bunker Bean," which has come here direct from a phenomenally successful engagement of six months at the Cort Theatre, Chicago. The play was constructed from Harry Leon Wilson's story of like title published in the Saturday Evening Post. It is rather a satirical treatise on the control of mind over matter. It tells the story of a young man who makes his way to success because he becomes imbued with the thought that he is reincarnate one of the great men of the world. In fact, not only has he in him the spirit of one of these great men, but a series of them. In the original the theme was handled with such delicacy and so keen a sense of humor that it could not fail to make an appeal in any one in whom there is the slightest sense of humor.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—That successful musical comedy triumphed Arthur Hammerstein, Otto Hauerbach and Rudolph Friml, who are responsible for "The Firefly," "High Jinks," and "Katinka," three of the best-known musical productions of the past decade, will take their fourth and what is promised to be their greatest musical comedy success, "You're in Love," which has been crowding the Shubert Theatre, Boston, for three weeks, around the corner to the Plymouth Theatre, next week, opening with a special Xmas Day matinee. A cast consisting of Florine Arnold, Marie Flynn, May Thompson, Burrell Barabretto, Al Roberts, Richard Tabor, John Raffael, Albert Pellaton and near three-score associates, give animation and verve to the tinkling numbers, the exquisite dances, the bright melodies and clever comedy situations with which the piece is said to be well supplied. John McGhie, a musical director of renown, with an orchestra of 30 pieces culled from among the best of this country's symphony players, has been selected by Mr. Hammerstein to render the artistic musical accompaniments.

WILBUR THEATRE—The seventh week of the very popular engagement of "The Cinderella Man" at Ye Wilbur Theatre, Boston, will begin next Monday, with a special Christmas matinee. This delightful comedy is particularly appropriate at this holiday season, for its story concerns a Christmas event, with all its accompanying spirit of good cheer and yuletide merriment. As clean and sweet as a mountain rill is "The Cinderella Man," the Oliver Morosco success, with the same cast of players that interpreted this delightful romance at the Hudson Theatre, New York, including Shelley Hull, Phoebe Foster, Frank Bacon, Frank Gilmore, Bertie Churchill, Reginald Mason, Hubert Wilke, Theodore Babcock, Louise Rial, Percival Moore and others.

THE INCOME TAX

Summary of the New Law Authorized by the State Tax Commissioner

The new law leaves unchanged such parts of our present tax system as the assessment of real estate and tangible personal property; the taxation of corporations, inheritances, wills, and the various license and similar taxes. In the future, as in the past, shares of stock in Massachusetts corporations, deposits in Massachusetts savings banks, mortgages on real estate taxed in Massachusetts will be exempt from taxation as will be also income derived from such property.

The new law taxes the income from certain classes of property, the net income from earnings, and the net profits from the purchase and sale of securities. It exempts from further taxation the property from which such income is derived.

It differs from the Federal Income tax in that it taxes only income from certain sources and not from all sources, and it has only flat rates instead of progressive rates which increase with the size of the taxed income. It differs also in the details of its deductions and its administration but in adopting the calendar year as the taxable period and in the forms of returns required and in all other ways, it follows the Federal system so far as is possible so as to cause the minimum of additional inconvenience to the taxpayer.

The new law was designed to correct certain evils which have developed in the present system. The rate of taxation is uniform throughout the state, thereby removing the chief incentive, as far as evasion of taxes is concerned, for the wealthy people to relocate in a few towns with low tax rates. The new law is to be administered by the state in a centralized manner insuring uniformity of assessment and collection, and removing the possibility of misunderstandings between local assessors and wealthy residents which have usually resulted in gross undervaluations and inequality of justice. The new rates compare favorably with those of surrounding states and should check the alarming emigration of capital from the state. The new law substitutes just and reasonable taxation in place of previous confiscation. It puts a premium on honesty instead of deceit. It provides for compulsory returns and backs up that provision by severe penalties and by obtaining information at the source. It abandons April first as the sole test of taxable citizenship and taxability. Instead, the tax is measured by the income received during the entire calendar year next preceding, and makes taxable every person who is an inhabitant of Massachusetts at any time during the first half of the year.

Perhaps most general interest is attached to the tax of one and one-half per cent on the excess above two thousand dollars of the net income derived from professions, employments, trade and business. The law provides in detail the method by which such net income shall be computed and requires a return to be made by each person whose gross income exceeds two thousand dollars even though by exemptions and deductions the net may be reduced below the taxable limit. For those with dependents the exemption may be as high as three thousand dollars.

A tax of three per cent is imposed on the profits from the sale of securities with directions for determining the amount of the profit.

A tax of six per cent is levied on the income from bonds, shares in corporations and partnerships, money at interest and other debts due the taxpayer with exceptions which may be stated broadly by saying that no such income is taxable which is derived from sources which heretofore have been non-taxable, except in the case of partnerships having transferable shares. Under some conditions, a small exemption may be obtained as to income from annuities and as to income taxed at the six per cent rate.

Partnerships, minors, estates of deceased persons and in general all persons or organizations, except corporations, receiving taxable income are taxable, and all are entitled to the provisions relating to abatements and appeals.

Chief interest centers in the requirements that returns are compulsory and must be made within the first two months of the year—i. e., on or before March first. In case of persons becoming inhabitants after March first, or by reason of absence, etc., being unable to make the return, other provisions apply.

Returns may be made at the State House or to the Income Tax Assessor or Deputies in the district where the inhabitant lives. The division into districts, the names and office addresses of the Assessors and Deputies will be announced later. Blanks for the returns will be available on application to the Tax Commissioner or any of his Deputies, or from banking institutions throughout the State.

Returns as to real estate and tangible personal property should be made to the assessors of each city or town as heretofore, and if a taxpayer fails to make such return, he will be obliged, in addition to his state tax, to pay locally not less than he paid last year.

Tax bills will be sent out and the tax payable October 15, 1917. The proceeds will be distributed back to the various cities and towns and the

GO GET 'EM—GINGER TALK

Do you know a fellow in Newton Highlands who sings... well?

Do you know a fellow in any of the other Newtons who sings... well?

Do you know a fellow in the immediate vicinity of Newton who sings and sings well?

If so, why aren't they in the HIGHLAND GLEE CLUB?

If the musical standard and reputation of the club is raised materially these better singers will be drawn to it as to a magnet.

But the only way to raise that standard and improve that reputation is to build up our present membership with more good voices. We can improve some without additions. We can't change materially without new blood.

Get after your singing acquaintances, tenors especially, BUT DO NOT forget that no longer can a member be elected by slipping in his name at one meeting and having a perfunctory vote on him at the next.

There is that "voice friends what a good club we have, what a corker it is going to be. Ask them if they would like to sing with such an organization, tell 'em that as a favor you will suggest their names and arrange to have their voices tested.

Go get 'em.

The new tax is expected to reach nearly five billions of property which has heretofore escaped taxation, to produce more revenue, and to be administered at a cost of less than one per cent of the revenue produced.

THE CORRIDOR OF TIME

Another Auburndale Article by Mrs. H. R. Turner

In a previous article by some accident I called the Seckel pear a "Sickle" pear, and I have received the following interesting note about it, from Mr. Warren of Boston, which I am glad to have.

"Referring to the NEWTON GRAPHIC of Dec. 1st, and on account of the suggestion attached, it may be a matter of interest to know that our well known pear sickle should really be called Seckel. This pear, like many other pears, being named in honor of the person through whom the first of this kind was originated. His home was in Riverton, N. J., on the Delaware River, opposite Philadelphia, about the year 1840.

This is rather an immaterial correction, for the common error by long custom may be quite right and perhaps easier understood at least in New England where almost everybody knows this fruit as the sickle pear."

The pear trees are so old that these may have been planted soon after the variety was introduced. They were full sized bearing trees ever since I have known them and have had loads of fruit. Nothing gives more pleasure than the culture of fruit and flowers.

One day a little girl came down the hill across lots and stopped to speak to me in my garden. She said, "Don't you want a lily Mrs. Turner?" and I said yes, I wanted a lily very much. She had a fleur de lys root in her hand, and she gave it to me.

She was Helen Noyes, daughter of Albert F. Noyes, since then an honored member of the Mycological Society, and always a lover of flowers.

I planted the lily and it proved a fine yellow kind with brown markings and I have given away bushels of its roots. Wherever it goes it gives continued pleasure and when I see its waving plumes I think of the little black eyed girl who wanted to give me a lily.

Mrs. Millar who lived in our house before we took it, was passionately fond of flowers, and brought many from her home at Roberts Crossing. Especially I am reminded of her with the lilacs and the dark red bee balm which comes in midsummer under my windows, so fragrant. Almost every flower I have, has a special meaning to me: some I brought from distant places, some were given to me. They make no show but there is a constant procession of one thing after another from early Spring to heaviest frost, and each one speaks to me in the voice of a friend. About 25 years ago, my father came bringing me a basket of garden violet roots, from Taunton. He said he thought they would be pretty for me.

A WORLD FLAG

Auburndale Residents Point the Way to a World State

Auburndale residents are evidently looking forward to the far, far future in presenting to the local Congregational Church a proposed flag for the coming "world state." The flag was accepted in an eloquent address by Rev. Dr. W. C. Gordon, the pastor.

The design and meanings of the flag were set forth in the presentation letter, in part as follows:

"Will you accept as a companion to our national flag, the accompanying flag of a green world on a white field—until other influences shall decide otherwise—as a symbol and a promise of the coming world state, the political unity of all nations and peoples? This seems especially suitable for this church, for, during the last 15 years, it has repeatedly and with practical unanimity supported various efforts to promote the world state as a fitting and efficient means of extending the kingdom of God on earth. This cause has made wonderful progress under the educating influence of the European war. Many people are looking in this direction, believing that it is the only permanent preventative of all war. The outlook has much encouragement and practical results seem probable in the near future.

"A worthy world flag must be simple, symbolic and sympathetic. It must be distinct from all others and be quickly recognizable at a distance. This field of white represents the blending of all national colors, as all prismatic colors blend to make white. Here are the red, white and blue of our national flag and all other colors of all other nations. White, too, is a symbol of purity and light. Here it symbolizes the purity of our loyalty to human brotherhood and to the world government as the organ and embodiment of that brotherhood.

"The green world is the earth covered with verdure, the scars of war grown over and forever effaced, and all lands beautiful with grassy fields, fruitful orchards, artistic parks and cultivated forests, a world of peace, plenty and prosperity. The green world, in peace and joy, robed with the white light of truth, justice and liberty—this is our world-state flag.

MRS. SUNDAY HERE

A large audience of Newton women attended a service led by "Ma" Sunday at Eliot Congregational Church in Newton Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. She exhorted her listeners to be more faithful to the cause of Christ; to work harder for the Sunday campaign by attending more of the Bible class meetings and by doing individual work; and to do everything in their power to further the work which she and her husband are doing.

The Eliot Church was nearly filled and between 700 and 800 women were present, many of them leaders in society. Preceding the service, Everett Truette, the organist, gave a recital. Miss Martha Gifford played the piano at the song service.

RAPID DEVELOPMENT

The property on the north side of Newtonville known as the Bemis estate and extending from Silver Lake westerly on both sides of California street has been the scene of unusual building operations the past year, with permits for building 23 new houses valued at $132,000.

AN OLD FASHIONED CHRISTMAS

With Snow, Carol Singing and Community Christmas Trees

Christmas had an old fashioned observance in this city, the program including excellent music in all the churches on Sunday and Monday, and a very general illumination of private residences and Community Christmas trees in many sections of the city. Holiday business was never better seemed to be the general opinion of the storekeepers and many persons who waited until the last minute for holiday decorations, provisions and gifts found only empty counters on Saturday night.

A community tree is the established custom now in Newton Highlands and the tree, open for inspection and special activities in all the departments will be arranged. The gymnasium will be used during the evening by both men and boys in group games. An exhibition of swimming will be staged in the natatorium. The Boys' Wireless Club will give a demonstration during the evening. The bowling alley will be used by two teams in the house team league. Other games will be thrown open to visitors and guests. The Association Orchestra under the direction of Mr. C. L. Ellison will play in the lobby. This affair will be open to both men and women and it is hoped that a large number will visit the building during the hours from 7 to 10 P. M.

POLITICAL NOTES

District Attorney-elect Nathan A. Tufts and his assistants Messrs. Fossdick, Harvey and Hoar are making an inspection of the State Prison and all the county institutions this week. The theory of the new District Attorney is that the office force who have a hand in the sentencing of prisoners convicted of crime should be thoroughly familiar with the various institutions to which they are sent. On Wednesday the State Prison, Concord Reformatory and House of Correction at Cambridge were visited.

EDITORIAL

The close of the year 1916 marks the retirement from public life of five members of the city government. Aldermen Fred M. Blanchard, George F. Malcolm of ward 2, John S. Alley of ward 3, Sumner Clement of ward 6 and Leverett D. G. Bentley of ward 7, and one member of the school committee, Mr. William H. Rice, the chairman.

President Blanchard has given four years of faithful service and has been the presiding officer of the board for two years. He has been a most valued member of the Finance committee and has initiated many matters of advantage to the city. As a presiding officer he has set a standard of graceful ease, calm and cool judgment and fairness to everybody, which will be hard to equal.

Alderman Alley has also given four years of splendid work on the important committee on Public Works, where his sound business ability has been a large factor in the action of that committee as well as in the board. The city is honored when men of Mr. Alley's type are willing to serve in its board of aldermen.

Alderman Malcolm has given three years' service where the minor tasks assigned to him have been done well, and there is no question of what his success would have been had he been given a wider opportunity.

Alderman Clement retires on account of removal from ward 6 to ward 5 and there is no doubt whatever that ward 5 owes it to the rest of the city to return Mr. Clement to City Hall at the first opportunity. Mr. Clement has been keenly interested in the work and alive to the best interests of the city throughout the year.

Alderman Bentley retires of his own volition after but one year of service, where he has had but little chance to show his real ability.

Mr. William H. Rice, chairman of the school committee, retires after ten years' of faithful and interested work for our schools. During Mr. Rice's service the school system has grown tremendously and in this growth he has been a potent altho a modest factor. While the GRAPHIC has differed with the policy which has dominated the school committee for a number of years, it is glad to pay a high tribute to the devotion and interest in the school work of Mr. Rice.

In conclusion, let us emphasize once again our appreciation of the public service of the men who serve our city government. So long as the present type of the men are willing to devote their time and talents to the business affairs of Newton, just so long will this city continue to stand at the head of the best governed municipalities in the entire country.

The growth of the good old custom of placing candles in the windows on Christmas Eve should be carefully encouraged by the various village societies. It is a beautiful sight and indicates a warmth and hospitality which is characteristic of the holiday season.

With proper legislation for the sanitary improvement of the Charles river having the unanimous endorsement of all the cities and towns in the valley, something ought to be done by the next Legislature in making a start in this most important work.

The community Christmas tree is evidently coming to stay with the South de leading the way, with three village celebrations to two on the North

Don't forget to give the selection of prizes to the coming convention a part of your time for the next few weeks. The effort to send our very best talent because the most radical measures of the day will be prominent in the discussion and the action of that convention.

THE LOST PIN
By SHIRLEY MORRIS.
(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The girls, six of them, looked cautiously up and down the squalid little street before venturing forth. The house they were leaving bore on a door plate the portentous words, "Mme. Cecile, Psychologist. Your Future Foretold."

"Wasn't it a lark!" cried Catherine Barr. "I'm terribly anxious to know who the light-haired Adonis is I am to meet this summer, and, Peggy, wasn't it wonderful what she told you about the pin you got for Easter, and how you'd lose it and have it returned by your future husband?"

"Yes," shivered Peggy. "I can't get over it. While she was describing it I felt as though her eyes were looking clear through me. You see, I have it on, pinned to my waist."

The crowd separated.

"Come along with me, Lois," begged Peggy. "I have to stop in Tukki's to see about a brass candlestick for mother."

"I can't today, dear! I've got to dress and go to Graystone's to tea."

Tukki's seemed to be deserted, but finally an old man appeared, and after Peggy stated her errand, he retreated into the mysterious region in the rear of the store from which he had emerged.

Peggy, still feeling uncanny from her recent experience, had a sensation of unreality among the assemblage of ancient and oriental curios. She came to an old mirror and stopped, regarding herself intently.

"You big goose!" she said to the reflection in the glass, "to believe in such nonsense as that old faker told you! Take a long walk before you go home, and get it all out of your system."

She drew the pins out of her sailor hat and started to gather in some of the stray wisps of hair.

The street door opened and a man came in. Looking around hurriedly for a salesman, he saw nobody at first, then, spying a girl in a recess patting her hair, he gave a curt order:

"Please tell Mr. Tukki to deliver the lamp I ordered to this address." He held out a card and Peggy took it impassively. Of course he thought her a saleswoman, but what difference did it make.

The customer turned to leave, but he hesitated, and looked deep into the serious blue eyes. The eyes returned the look calmly and coolly.

There was no excuse for staying, so he went, but, passing the chair in which Peggy had been sitting, he stopped and picked up something.

Peggy looked at the card and read: "Mr. Cyrus Harding—Riverside drive."

The old man returned just then. Peggy delivered the card and message, completed the business upon which she had come and left the store. Outside, she slipped her hand under her jacket to reassure herself that her new diamond pin was safe. But to her dismay it was gone.

Then it popped into her head that the customer who gave her the message had picked something up and put it into his pocket.

At the Riverside drive house, a Japanese servant answered her ring. Mr. Harding had just returned.

She was ushered into a sitting room, a wonderful combination of black, old gold and blue.

And then Mr. Harding pulled aside a portiere and stepped into the room. He recognized her instantly, but if he was surprised he gave no sign.

"How do you do?" he said courteously—interrogatively, for her visit puzzled him.

"Good afternoon," choked Peggy. "I've—I've come for the pin you found," with a little deprecating gesture.

"Pin?"

"Yes. The pin you picked up in the shop."

He frowned. "I don't seem to understand. I didn't find a pin."

"But you picked up something. Don't you remember—right in front of that teakwood chair?" earnestly.

"Yes, I see now. But I didn't know you wanted it so much or I should have returned it. I really didn't think it so very valuable and—I wanted it. No matter why! I didn't know what you meant when you spoke of a pin. I would have given it another name. Here it is!"

His hand went into his pocket and he held out a tiny tortoise shell comb, the mate of one in her hair.

Peggy flushed furiously.

"Is that what you found?"

"Yes. Isn't it what you came for?"

"No! You see—I lost a pin, a diamond pin today. I don't work in the store. You made a mistake. I was in seeing about a candlestick, and I lost my pin. Then I remembered seeing you find something, and recalling your address, I came right away. I am very sorry and I beg your pardon. Good afternoon."

"But," he intercepted hastily. "I'd like to help you find your pin! You're sure it's gone?"

"Why, yes! I think I am," running an investigating hand over her waist. Then something dropped to the rug, and Cyrus Harding picked it up.

"The pin," cried Peggy with delight.

"What a goose I've been."

"A very charming goose, whose misfortune has been my gain."

And as it turned out the fortune teller was right, for Peggy did marry the man who returned her pin.

HIS CONSCIENCE
By ARTHUR PEACH.
(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The convention during the afternoon had been a busy one, and the men were glad to gather for a comfortable smoke and chat in one of the smoking rooms of the hotel. They were mining engineers and had come from different parts of the West. Naturally, while the cigars were going, stories began to appear of experiences that ranged from the tragic to the ludicrous. Finally, they swung, under the guidance of the spokesman of the group, Granger by name, to a consideration of what might be called the meanest act they had ever witnessed.

After various experiences had been related, a man who was known to be a friend of Granger spoke:

"Suppose you picture yourself driving up a winding road in New England, up among the hills, and coming to a lane that leads to a house set some distance back. It is almost twilight, and as you approach you see a figure at the entrance. Driving nearer, you find the figure is that of a girl. And, then, suppose you recognize her as the girl who had been waiting there at dusk for ten years for a chap who had never returned."

"That is what I experienced one early evening last year. I was going there to see a man of the name of Upson, who owned a small right in a stream that we were planning to dam. There I heard the whole story."

"I found Upson to be a grim sort of fellow, in a way, and yet friendly enough after he thawed out, and that night, after the rest had retired, he and I smoked a pipe together. In the midst of our conversation, I happened to think of the young woman at the entrance, and I asked him about her."

"Upson smoked in silence for some time. Then he said slowly:

"Ten years ago, I had quite a little money, and I was looking around to invest it, and wrote in to a Boston firm. Well, it was not long after I had written that a young fellow came from the city and explained a proposition to me. He seemed to be a fine sort of chap in every way. The boys took him off for a fishing trip, hunted with him a little and all the time he was talking to me about the proposition."

"Well, I fell for it. But I wasn't the only one who fell. That girl seemed to find in him just the man to love. They were together a good deal, and many times alone, and the upshot of it was—she came to me one night in this very room, with him following close behind her, and told me they were engaged."

"She was so happy that her happiness went all through the house."

"They made preparations for the wedding and the wedding day. He talked about it as much as, if not more than, she did."

One day he departed, taking my money and her love."

"Everything moved on smoothly until I could see her beginning to be troubled. Finally, I got the truth. He had not written. My suspicions were aroused, and I wrote to the company."

"The information I got was like a bomb in our quiet home. It seems he had left the employ of the company to go West, had vanished so far as they were concerned, and had never reported the money I had given him."

"She recovered from the shock, for she comes of stern stuff; but the girl still believes that he will return."

"She goes down to the road about the time you saw her, for if he came back he would arrive about that time. It used to make my old heart ache to see her standing there in the dusk, waiting for a scamp and a scoundrel; but, some way, I have come to see a meaning in it. It has helped my faith in humanity after the jar he gave it. She is serene and sensible through it all. It's a case of a splendid woman having an undying trust in man, without her soul being wasted."

"That, gentlemen, is the story as Upson told me," said Granger's friend, "and I have always thought of it as a story of the meanest man and the meanest act within my knowledge."

Suddenly a tall figure arose, and in a voice that was strained with emotion said:

"Gentlemen, that was the meanest act—it is more than that—but I tell you that the chap who did it has suffered for those years. He stands right here—I'm the man. I thought I had forgotten, but I can't forget. I give you my word that I shall take the next train for New England and, God giving me the chance, I shall reappear there. I did not think she could be so faithful. I did love her, and I have always in my way. I hope I may yet be worthy of her. I'm sorry."

Without another word, the tall, thin figure passed from the room.

The silence that followed his withdrawal was broken by Granger: "You did a good job in telling that story, Mason. You gained your end."

"What do you mean?" someone asked.

"Why, the facts are these," said Granger's friend: "I recognized him just before I came in. I had sort of looked him up. I told Granger to steer the conversation so that I could tell the story. I thought if the man had any conscience it might be touched."

"I should like to be about when he drives up in the evening and she—well, she"—said one of the men, and not one waited for him to finish the sentence.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Every failure teaches a man something if he will learn.

There is no situation in life so bad that it cannot be retrieved.

It is a poor heart that never rejoices.—Dickens.

DAINTY DISHES.

Some of these delicate concoctions would not wear for every-day living, but an occasional slipping from the beaten path makes these sweets all the sweeter.

Nesselrode Pudding.—Take three cupfuls of large chestnuts, shell and remove the brown skin, cover with water and simmer until thoroughly tender. Drain and press through a sieve. Take a fourth of a pound of candied fruit, cut in pieces, cover with a half cupful of pineapple sirup. Boil a cupful of sugar and a half cupful of water until it spins a thread. Add to it the beaten yolks of four eggs, stir until the mixture is thick, then beat until cold. Add the chestnuts and a teaspoonful of vanilla and one pint of cream whipped. Put into a freezer and half freeze, then add the candied fruit. Pack and stand at least two hours to ripen.

Frozen Cheese and Preserved Figs.—Beat two good-sized cream cheeses with half a cupful of stiff cream until smooth, sweeten to taste and put into a covered mold. Pack in ice and salt for four hours. When ready to serve slice in pieces two inches thick, then cut in rounds, or, better, pack in baking-powder cans and it will be all ready when sliced. Make a slight depression in the center and put in a preserved fig, stem end up.

Biscuit Glace.—Put two cupfuls of sugar and one cupful of water in a saucepan over the fire. Cook carefully until the sirup spins a thread. Beat the yolks of six eggs very light; pour the sirup upon them slowly, beating all the while. Return to the fire and cook one minute. Strain into a bowl and beat until cold. Add a teaspoonful of vanilla, one-fourth of a cupful of orange juice and very finely chopped nuts. Turn into the freezer, and when thoroughly chilled add one pint of cream, whipped stiff. Fill paper boxes, sprinkle with chopped nuts or macaroons and pack and freeze.

Elizabeth Burham and William North gave readings and Dudley Rhodes violin selections with accompaniments by Winthrop Rhodes.

—The gathering about the Community Christmas Tree was a pleasant feature of the Christmas celebration in Waban. Rev. James C. Sharp of the Church of the Good Shepherd and Rev. Charles H. Cutler of the Union Church participated in the service about the tree and Mr. Lester Cardell, cornetist, accompanied the singers in the following selections: "Hark! the Herald Angels Sing"; "O, Little Town of Bethlehem"; "Joy to the World"; "Holy Night"; "Away in a Manger"; "O, Come, all ye Faithful"; "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear." USES FOR MARSHMALLOWS.

Marshmallows as a confection dipped in peppermint fondant, are a delightful after-dinner mint. A marshmallow dropped in a cupful of hot cocoa at the children's parties will please them better than whipped cream, and is so easy to do.

A marshmallow placed on salted wafers, the small, round ones, and put into the oven to brown, makes most attractive margarites.

Marshmallows cut in quarters with sharp shears and mixed with pineapple and whipped, sweetened, flavored cream, and served in sherbet glasses is a dainty dessert.

A most delightful fruit salad may be made with pineapple, strawberries, marshmallows, and two or three tablespoonfuls of a good boiled salad dressing stirred into a cupful of whipped cream. Serve very cold in a pretty glass dish.

Marshmallows cut up and added to the boiled frosting while it is hot is a favorite filling for a cake as well as a good icing.

Marshmallows.—Dissolve one package of gelatin in 14 tablespoonfuls of water. Boil together four cupfuls of sugar and 14 tablespoonfuls of water until it forms a thread. Pour the sirup over the gelatin in a deep dish and beat until thick; flavor as desired, and beat into a pan of powdered sugar to coat each marshmallow.

Marshmallow Frosting.—Melt one cupful of white fondant, add the white of an egg, beaten stiff, and stir over the fire two minutes; remove from the heat and beat for two minutes, or until stiff enough to spread; flavor with any desired flavoring. This is especially good on chocolate cake.

Marshmallow Paste.—Put a fourth of a cupful of sugar and the same amount of milk in a saucepan, heat slowly to the boiling point, and boil six minutes. Cut a fourth of a pound of marshmallows in pieces and melt in a double boiler; add two tablespoonfuls of hot water and cook until the mixture is smooth; then add the hot sirup gradually, stirring constantly. Beat until cool enough to spread, then add a half teaspoonful of vanilla. Use either for filling or frosting.

HILDRETH-GLAZIER

A romance that began in Japan led to the wedding in Dorchester this week of Miss Alice Glazier of 128 Ashmont street, to Mr. Theodore A. Hildreth of 129 Ashmont street. The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Willard Glazier. Her father was an author and arctic explorer. The groom is secretary of the New England Deaconess Association.

The couple met about two years ago somewhere in Japan, and the meeting in the Orient was reflected in the ceremony by the presence of little Constance Hardwick, attired in a Japanese costume. The bride was attended by her sister, Helen G. Glazier. The groom was unattended. Rev. Peter Black of the Newtonville M. E. Church officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Hildreth will make their home at 128 Ashmont street, Dorchester.

ONE MAN'S HOBBY

By SUSAN E. CLAGETT.

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Elizabeth Yeaton laughed as she walked around the beech tree and examined the markings on its trunk—two hearts pierced by an arrow and encircled by the legend, "Pansies for thoughts, rosemary for remembrance."

"Were we ever so foolish as that?" she asked herself. Then the laugh died in a sigh as she walked on, pushing her way through the tangle of ragweed that obstructed her path. Below her, Cabin branch rippled with a soft murmur. Everywhere were memories and mingling with them a soft whistle, once so familiar a sound it occasioned no surprise when she reached the farm gate to see a man stretching out a hand to open it.

"I thought you would come," he said quietly. "The years have made no change in you. You are not one day older. Your eyes are sparkling and your mouth has the same adorable kink at the corners that—"

He came through the gate and stood beside her. "You received my letter?"

"No. Did you write?"

"Then I owe my good luck to Providence. I asked you to meet me here. But I had hoped for a different reception. Elizabeth, won't you give me a word of welcome?"

"I have first to forget years of absence and silence," she said slowly.

She smiled at him with unconcerned eyes. "What have you been doing all the years you have forgotten friends and country?"

"Working hard. I wanted a home. When I needed recreation I cultivated flowers. You should see my garden."

"That would indeed be pleasant. And your wife?" she asked courteously.

"You are still an adept at fencing, Elizabeth," he interrupted. "Are we to continue the same old game?"

"I do not understand. We are too old to play pussy wants a corner and hide and seek. Those are the only games I remember. Perhaps I will recall others later on," she said.

"It will be pleasant to rummage among old memories," he laughed shortly, "but at present I am interested in knowing when you received my wedding cards."

"They never reached me. But a home suggests a wife, doesn't it?"

"Not necessarily. The purchase was the result of a settled purpose. May I trespass upon your hospitality? For the first time in years I can treat myself to a short vacation."

"You are most welcome," she replied cordially. "You have been sadly missed."

"Thank you. Your voice then held its first note of friendliness. I was beginning to feel homesick. Elizabeth, will you let me give you lessons in gardening during my stay?"

She threw back her head and laughed heartily. "It would be wasted effort. Plants never thrive for me, so I leave the borders to Uncle Pink."

"Perhaps you have never tried hard enough. I want to talk and I am curious. Are you really as indifferent about that letter as you would have me believe?"

"I had forgotten it."

"Then, I presume, since the letter is so easily forgotten, memory will be at fault in regard to several things I have been hoping you would remember."

"I remembered you," she replied pleasantly. "Ten years is long to keep one in mind, especially—"

"Especially?"

"When one tries hard to be forgotten."

She brushed the litter from her dress. There was a finality in the movement that made him stretch out a detaining hand.

"Don't go. It is very pleasant here even if I am disappointed in the warmth of my greeting, and I do so wish to tell you of my garden."

She shook her head even as she paused. "I am afraid you ride an old man's hobby. Come to the house and tell me in the freights. The air is getting frosty."

"No. I must tell it here." He hesitated a barely perceptible instant. "It is a hobby. Dear, you should see my beds of pansies and rosemary."

The color flared into her face. "You had prepared me for a garden of orchids, but even old-fashioned flowers can be an outlet for surplus energy. You always did throw yourself body and soul into whatever you undertook to do."

"Why not, Elizabeth? This is Monday. I must be in my office Thursday morning. Important business requires my attention, else I would remain here and begin at the beginning of things. Ten years is a long time, but you have never been absent from my thoughts. I would have written, but there was nothing to say. I had nothing to offer you. The best I could do was to work for a home for you. It has taken me ten years. Will you accept it? Will you go back with me Wednesday?"

Her eyes swept the fields. She paused so long that the man beside her caught his breath and grasped the rail of the gate until his knuckles showed white. Then she turned to him.

"It will be a delight to see these old-fashioned flower borders," she said simply.

FROZENSTAR'S SCHEME

By JANE OSBORN.

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The society columns and the Frozenstar department store ads, in the daily papers had been full of it. Girls from the stores going home at night had discussed it. According to some it was "grand and perfectly elegant for those swell girls to do it." To others, more critical, it was either a case of wanting to get into print by doing something out of the way or a deliberate scheme to rob the poor girl who needed work for her daily bread.

To Filbert Frozenstar, junior partner of the dry goods firm of Frozenstar Brothers & Co., it had a still different significance. It was part of his carefully laid plan to make an entrance into the hitherto closed portals of the city's most exclusive circles.

The proposition was this: The society women in question were to enjoy all the realism of the task. They were to punch the time clock with the other thousand employees of the store. They were to be allowed to sell goods in whatever department they chose, and for their sales they were to receive a 25 per cent commission for their favorite charity.

The scheme worked better than he had expected, and on a certain Monday morning in late winter the ranks of ten of the largest departments in the store were increased by the presence of ten new employees.

In the neckwear department was the debutante, Wilhelmina Sedgwick. In the millinery department young Mrs. Sturtevant Shawger floated around in a new bouffant morning costume especially imported for the undertaking from war-ridden Paris. In the blouse department, was the bearringer Mrs. Tom Bradleigh, who was a great drawing card because of the rather piquant details of her recent divorce proceedings.

Most attractive of all, was Corinne Delacroix, at least from Filbert's personal viewpoint. She had chosen the more arduous task of selling furniture because, as she argued, furniture was more expensive even than French millinery, and 25 per cent of her sales there might really be worth while.

Although Corinne herself was not especially well known—indeed she had made her debut only a few weeks before—as far as family and fortune went she was the most valuable acquisition of them all.

This debutante saleswoman, simply clad in a neat little frock of black, guileless of a single ornament save for the brilliant sash she wore across her slender body was "on the floor" ahead of time that first morning and Hall Bingley, head of the department, was giving her instructions about her work when Frozenstar appeared. He had intended to get there in time to explain to Miss Delacroix in person just what her duties were to be.

Of course, thought he, it was absurd for him to be jealous of a man like Bingley, who, in the eyes of Corinne, was probably no more than a butler or footman. That she had been talking with apparent ease to him and that she spoke to him again frequently during the day, was nothing to irritate Frozenstar.

Still the irritating thing about it was that he was decidedly ruffled and that as the hours passed he became more and more so.

Delightful little woman that she was, Frozenstar noticed that Corinne treated him with something more than frigid formality. She told him more than once that she admired the spirit of philanthropy that had prompted him and she actually asked him to act as patron for a post-Lenten charity bazaar. This would mean a check for several hundred dollars, but Frozenstar accepted eagerly. She really was delightful, charming, bewitching.

And her sales were phenomenal. Corinne's commissions amounted to an amazingly large figure, larger by far than those of any other one of the "society saleswomen." What a pleasure it would be, thought Frozenstar, to hand that check to Miss Delacroix. He would take it in person to her.

Just as he was meditating this in his private office, the advertising manager slouched into the room.

"Have you heard the news?" he asked. "One of the men from the Morning Post just told me. But of course it isn't going to get into print. That would never do. That Corinne Delacroix you thought you had up in the furniture department is really loafing in seclusion at her father's place at Palm Beach. You see, she thought it wasn't fair to rob some girl of a job; yet she didn't want to miss getting the commissions for charity. So she got hold of a pretty little salesgirl who needed work and got her to take the place. She happened to know a guy in your store, too, engaged to him, I think—and so she came around in Corinne's place and arranged to be in the department of this man she is going to marry. Of course, no one is any the wiser except a few of us that heard the story. And it can't make a bit of difference to you so long as the people have been fooled. I think it was quite a shrewd idea, don't you?"

Frozenstar had a momentary vision of the check he had made out in order to be a patron of the charity bazaar.

"Yes, it was rather clever," was all he would say.

Wanted: 16 Million Business Women for the Running of 16 Million Homes

By J. R. HAMILTON

Former Advertising Manager of Wanamaker's, Philadelphia

What America needs today above all things is business women. And where we need them most is not in business offices but in the homes. What we want is not so much a woman who can run a kitchen as a woman who knows how much it costs to run a kitchen. If we do not get our domestic science up to the standard of our commercial science we are going to start an epidemic of household insolvency that will startle the world. Ninety per cent of our matrimonial unhappiness is due not to temper nor temperament, but to common, ordinary domestic bankruptcy.

There is no money in the family till; the books won't balance; the cash is overdrawn; and the partners are at war. That's the story; that's the whole story. And in most of such cases, even Reno becomes an unbearable expense.

Nearly every tug at the heartstrings begins with a tug at the purse-strings.

If the women of America have the brains to maintain many of the equalities which they now enjoy, they must also have the brains or acquire the science to run their homes along commercial lines.

The chief problem of domestic science is how to take a certain income of money and live up to it; not over it, and not necessarily under it, but how to make all of your bills balance that certain amount of cash.

Naturally the only way to do this is to plan your expenditures. And the only way to know the cost of what you are going to buy, is to compare the prices at which other people are selling. These comparative prices are published in the advertising columns in every issue of this paper. No shrewd merchant hides his light under a bushel. Whenever he has anything good to offer you, he puts it over his signature in these columns.

So the first thing you gain by following the advertising is a choice always of the best that is being offered in each line. And when these merchants realize that so many of you are using their advertising day by day as the basis for your buying, you may depend upon it they are going to stretch every possible point to maintain your interest.

If you will follow this plan for a short time, you will find that you are merchandising your home in the same way that these business men merchandise their stores. You will become as shrewd at buying as they are. Your books will begin to balance, and you will discover that you are the head of a big, successful institution known as a Prosperous Home.

Curiosity Killed the Cat but Saved the World

By J. R. HAMILTON

Former Advertising Manager of Wanamaker's, Philadelphia

One of the finest little jokes we men have in stock is about the curiosity of women and cats.

We smile indulgently at our wives and sisters and mothers. We wag our finger at them and tell them in our ponderous humor, "Look out, my dear, 'Curiosity killed the cat.'" And we do not seem to realize that if it weren't for curiosity we, in this twentieth century, would still be living like pigs and dying like flies.

Here are some of the things curiosity has done:

Archimedes prying up a stone with a stick was curious at the ease with which he moved a great weight. He discovered the law of the lever, which has made possible most of the mechanical wonders of the present day.

Galileo, curious about the rising of the sun and the movement of the stars, discovered that the world was not flat. Newton was curious about the apple that fell. Watt about the cover of his mother's teakettle. Harvey about our blood. Pasteur about the elements of our blood. Howe about the tedious stitching and mending of patient women. And so on down the endless list of famous names.

And yet we laugh at the curious mothers of such curious men.

Curiosity? Why a man ought to be ashamed to wag his finger at the most idle curiosity in the world.

You people who are reading this paper now are simply curious. You women who turn to your advertising to find out where to go before you begin your shopping would probably spend many times more money than you had to if you were not curious.

Don't waste a moment's thought on the banter of men. Read your advertising, satisfy your curiosity, see the merchandise that appeals to you. Do not hesitate because the name of some advertiser is new. Let your curiosity have its fullest play.

It is time we laid this curiosity joke to rest.

Heaven help the son of the woman who isn't curious.

If You Only Knew the Labor That Goes Into Every "Ad," You Would Never Skip Another One

By J. R. HAMILTON

Former Advertising Manager of Wanamaker's, Philadelphia

Every little three-line item you read has turned the wheels of some great factory. Every time you see a cut price the number of gray hairs in the world has been increased.

Many an advertisement is planned a year before it ever finds its way into print. One advertisement in Philadelphia a few years ago opened up the copper mines in Colorado six months before it ever appeared. A thousand miners began digging copper on a contract of brass beds that were going to be made that were going to be advertised.

You see perhaps some piece of muslin wear advertised here whose trimming is pretty, or some gown whose design is elegant. The chances are that a hundred styles were discarded or changed to get this one for you. And all the while the buyer of your favorite store was picking and choosing he had you in mind. He was building the advertisement that would catch your eye and please your fancy and your pocketbook.

If you had been there you would have heard him telling the manufacturer, "My customers are particular. They must have the best that there is at the lowest price that can be made. You've got to give me something better than you give to anyone else."

Every one of these buyers is fighting for you, and it is up to you to show your loyalty to them.

The store that advertises to trick its customers is almost a relic in this present day.

Many a time you find a bargain that turns out better than the advertisement claimed it to be, and you think somebody, somewhere, has made a mistake. But there was no mistake. It was put there purposely to win your confidence.

Every ounce of human ingenuity is brought to bear upon the advertising of the present day. To write the real story of a single item would be to write a chapter in the history of commerce.

These merchants who have figured on costs till their eyes gave out; these buyers who have studied every angle of their work, are trying to tell you through their advertising just what they have done for you. And the least you can do is to read what they have to say.

The report of all their efforts is in this paper today. The advertising news to you should be interesting news after this.

SANTA CLAUS PARTY

Miss Christine Strachan, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Duthie Strachan of Chestnut Hill, entertained a large party on Christmas Day at her home on Waban Hill road. It was a Santa Claus party, and the occasion was also a celebration of Miss Strachan's birthday.

A large Christmas tree was arranged in the living-room which was resplendent with Yuletide decorations, and the festivities were enjoyed by more than forty guests.

Mr. Strachan in the role of Santa Claus was a capital entertainer and told a number of touching stories of the sufferings of the orphans of the French Army. Contrary to their usual custom of receiving gifts, the children this year, brought gifts to Santa Claus to be sent to the orphans of the Army of France. The children had a wonderful time and enjoyed games, music and dancing in the exhibition room, downstairs. Among the many pleasant features of the entertainment was the solo dancing by Nell Devi which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

The party was one of the most delightful holiday events of the week, and was a great success.

ENGAGEMENT PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Hardy Eaton of Auburndale, announce the engagement of their daughter Miss Eleanor Johnson Eaton, to Mr. Joel Kelsey of Baltimore, Maryland. The announcement was made at a bridge party given by Miss Eaton on Wednesday afternoon at her residence on Centre street.

Six tables were arranged, and the guests included a number of Sargent School friends.

The dining-room was very beautifully decorated in a pink color scheme and on the table was a centre-piece of pink roses. Suspended from the chandelier was a novel arrangement of pink hearts containing the announcement, and attached to pink ribbons extending to each cover. There were about thirty young ladies present.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—And now that notable and latest Arthur Hammerstein musical comedy hit, "You're in Love," moves to the Majestic Theatre in Boston, the third in its succession of playing various theatres in Boston in order that its great success in Boston might be continued. Its fifth week in Boston will begin next Monday afternoon with a special New Year's matinee. This musical comedy triumph had its metropolitan premiere in Boston four weeks ago at the Schubert Theatre, and achieved instantaneous fame. After three weeks there, other engagements at the Schubert prevented its remaining longer, although the public demand for more of it was very pronounced. Then a single week was arranged for its appearance at the Plymouth Theatre, and as no more time could be secured there on account of previous bookings, still another move will be made to the Majestic Theatre, Boston, but for one week only, next week.

DEATH OF MR. FELLOWS

Mr. Otis D. Fellows, a resident of Newton Centre for about 25 years, died last week Thursday night after an illness of a few weeks at his home on Homer street. He was born at Weathersfield, Vt., July 28, 1839, and was engaged in the flour and grain business all his life. He was one of the early members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and took an active part in its work. He was a member of the Newton Centre Unitarian Church and was always alive to everything that interested the village and the city.

He is survived by a widow, one son, Mr. O. D. Fellows, Jr., of Houghton, Mich., and two daughters, Mrs. Fred G. Melcher of Indianapolis, Ind., and Mrs. A. B. Hastings of Concord, N. H. Funeral services were held from his late home on Sunday afternoon in charge of Rev. O. B. Hawes of the Unitarian church and the Adelphi Quartet sang several selections. The interment was at Forest Hills.

In the Matter of the Petition of the Members of the Newton Veteran Firemen's Association, a Corporation, for Voluntary Dissolution.

PETITION.

Respectfully represent your petitioners, John Hagedorn, Fred T. Burgess, James R. Condrin, John Purcell, Charles H. Stacy, John Ryan, George S. Holmes, Walter B. Randlett, Maurice B. Coleman, William Cahill, George S. Noden, James H. Saunders, Asa C. Jewett, Bernard D. Farrell and William H. Mague, all of Newton in said County of Middlesex; Wilbur H. Howard, Andrew F. Nutting and Joseph S. Mackin, all of Watertown in said County; Charles W. H. Boulton of Waltham in said County; and George Cushing of Hingham in the County of Plymouth and said Commonwealth:

1. That they are all the present members of the Newton Veteran Firemen's Association, a corporation duly organized under the laws of said Commonwealth and located at Newton in said County of Middlesex and that said corporation was established for the purpose, as stated in the Certificate of Incorporation, dated April 4, 1893, of "the establishment and maintenance of places for social meetings;" that the charter members of said corporation were persons who had been connected with the fire department of the Town and City of Newton in former years, when the fire apparatus was operated by hand power and when practically all members of the department were volunteers; that all who were added from time to time to the membership of the corporation were persons similarly interested in the old-time fire-fighting; and that one of the chief activities of the association came to be the attendance at and participation in competitions of hand fire engines at firemen's musters.

2. That through the death of nearly all the original members and the decreasing interest in the community in the objects and purposes of the association, the membership had dwindled to its present number, twenty, and that the said objects and purposes can no longer be effectually and successfully carried out.

3. That said association has property and personal, amounting to about one thousand eight hundred dollars ($1800) over and above any indebtedness.

WHEREFORE your petitioners pray that this Honorable Court

(1) appoint a receiver to receive and take, and to sell the property belonging to said corporation, and to distribute among your petitioners, being all the members thereof, the net proceeds of such sale, after the payment of all expenses connected with this proceeding;

(2) order the dissolution of said corporation; and

(3) give such further relief as to this Honorable Court shall seem meet and proper in the premises.

LAWRENCE BOND,
Attorney for Petitioner.

This advertisement is one of a series designed to effect closer co-operation between the company and its subscribers. There are three parties to a telephone call—the person calling, the person called, and the operator who connects them. The quality of service rendered is determined by the spirit in which all three work together, rather than by the individual effort of any one or two of these three persons. We will gladly send complete sets of the series to those desiring them.

Are You Ready to Talk?

Mr. Jones wanted to talk with Mr. Thomas and asked his clerk to call him by telephone.

When Mr. Thomas answered, he was told to "wait a minute."

A few moments later when Jones got ready to talk, he found no one on the line. Thinking the operator had cut him off, he asked his clerk to put in the call again.

That happened three times; then Jones got mad and put in the call himself.

Mr. Thomas answered and Mr. Jones said, "What the deuce is the matter with your telephone, Charlie? This is the fourth time I have called you."

To which Mr. Thomas replied, "Oh! it was you that was calling? I did answer the telephone three times and was told each time to 'wait a minute.' I could not see any reason why I should waste my time holding the line for someone else, so I hung up. If you yourself had been on the line, ready to talk the first time I answered, you would have saved each of us a lot of time and bother."

Jones was cured.

When answering the telephone, it is aggravating to be told to "wait a minute," and yet hundreds of people impose in just that way on those they have occasion to call.

It may be easier for the busy man to save time by asking a clerk to put in a call, but the other person should receive due consideration and not be unnecessarily inconvenienced.

MISS GRACE M. BURT, Editor.

The close of the year is a time when the thoughts of all turn inward a little more soberly than ordinarily, when we mentally take account of stock of ourselves and of things in general. What do we see at the close of this year of 1916? A world still enmeshed in the coils of war with no immediate prospect of a permanent peace. In our own country a sort of ephemeral prosperity dazzling the eyes of those who see but the surface with the prices of necessities still continuing to soar. With such conditions staring us in the face we cannot expect the millennium to come in any brief space, and ere it arrives, all the devotion of loyal hearts and the combined wisdom of the ages will be needed to meet the test of the great re-adjustment which awaits us. May the New Year be one of aspiration, of renewed effort and one in which there may be some realization of our highest and noblest ideals.

Ten years ago this coming spring the Newton Federation issued in connection with the Clafin Bazaar a magazine known as "The Mirror of Newton," which it will be remembered, contained historical and literary articles of more than passing merit. There was also an account of the various social, educational, civic, philanthropic and religious activities of the city. The publication received favorable comment on all sides and has since been used in the high schools as a textbook in the history of Newton. The bringing of this book up to date is now being considered by the Federation. There are about 2000 copies of the original on hand and it is proposed to complete the story of the ten years which have elapsed and bind the two together in cloth, thus putting the whole into permanent form. In order to do this it will be necessary to dispose of 500 copies at least at one dollar each and the co-operation of the clubs is being asked. A large number of people have moved into Newton since the book was first published and it is especially to them that the appeal will be made, although, of course, all club women will want to own the complete history of the Federation and of the kindred organizations. The committee who are considering it feel that it is in no way a money-making scheme, but rather a valuable piece of civic work to bring together in one volume a complete account of all the activities of Newton. The clubs are asked to undertake to dispose of in their own communities, not necessarily among their members, a number of copies equal to one-third of their membership. Anyone not a club member desiring to further the cause by ordering a copy may do so by addressing the secretary of the committee, Miss Grace M. Burt, 94 Charlesbank Road, Newton, before Jan. 8, 1917.

The day and hour of meeting will be arranged to suit the majority of the class. Application for membership should be made to Mrs. Harry Beal, 58 Auburn street, Auburndale.

The regular meeting of the club will be held on Tuesday, Jan. 2, in the Methodist Parish House, and will be "Federation Day." Mrs. P. B. Local Happenings

On Thursday morning the Auburndale Review Club met at the home of Mrs. William C. Gordon. Miss Ellen C. Williams was in charge of the program, she herself giving a sketch of Tolstoy's life. Mrs. C. E. Kattelle discussed the author's "War and Peace." Mrs. S. W. Dike outlined the story of "Anna Karenina" and read extracts from it. Mrs. W. J. Spaulding added much to the pleasure by singing two songs from Rachmaninoff. The morning closed with an informal discussion of the various topics.

Because of the recent decision to make January 1st a legal holiday the meeting of the Waban Woman's Club, scheduled for that afternoon, will be held in the Union Church on January 8th. Members who have daughters of high school age may invite them to attend Miss Nevin's recital "Lohengrin," at 3 o'clock. Tea will be served.

On Thursday, December 28th, the Newton Centre Woman's Club had a program by home talent of unusual variety and interest. Daughters of club members were guests of the day.

Miss Phyllis Brooks played two charming piano solos, "Le Concon" by Daquin and "Die Lorelei" by Liszt. Miss Eleanor Kidger read several humorous dialect poems and two of Eugene Fields' delightful "Poems of Childhood." She also read two acts of "Prunella, or Love in a Dutch Garden," by Laurence Hartman and Granville Barker, a dramatic fantasy that is a gem.

The Woman's Club chorus sang two selections, "The Water Nymph" by Rubenstein, with Mrs. Marie Kaula Stone as soloist, and "The Lady of Shalott," by Bendell, with solos by Mrs. S. W. Wilder and Miss Marion Haskell. The club is justly proud of this chorus, which under the direction of Mrs. Stone and accompanied by Miss Mary Curtis has achieved a high degree of success.

Afternoon tea was served from a table glowing under a tiny Christmas tree.

Don't Be a Critic.

It requires very little ability to find fault. That is why there are so many critics.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

The man or woman that makes character makes foes.—Young.

The ideal life, the life full of completion, haunts us all. We feel the thing we ought to be beating beneath the thing we are.

FOOD SUGGESTIONS.

A pressed meat which will be found appetizing for picnics or luncheons on hot days is prepared as follows: Boil together a pound of round steak and two large pork hocks. When done, mince the meat with a fork but do not put it through the meat chopper as it makes it pasty. Put into a mold and pour over it the liquor in which the meat was cooked.

Salmon With Tomatoes.—Prepare tomato cups by scalding the tomato, remove the skin, then hollow out the form cups, using a sharp teaspoon. Turn upside down to drain and place on ice to keep them firm. Fill with salmon and chopped celery with a good boiled dressing that is highly seasoned.

Prune and Rice Meringue.—Boil and drain one cupful of rice, then add two tablespoonfuls of butter, three of sugar, one well-beaten egg and one teaspoonful of ginger extract. Spread some of this mixture on a platter, cover it with a layer of stewed prunes; continue alternating the layers until all the rice is used. Sprinkle lightly with sugar, and cover with a meringue made of the whites of two eggs, one-half cupful of sugar, and brown in the oven. Serve cold, decorated with whole stewed prunes.

Apricot Tapioca Pudding.—Cover one and a half cupfuls of tapioca with cold water and let it soak for three hours; then drain and add three cupfuls of boiling water, one-half a teaspoonful of salt and one cupful of sugar; cook in a double boiler until transparent. Skin and stone twelve apricots, put them into the bottom of a buttered baking dish, pour over the tapioca mixture and bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. Serve hot or cold with sugar and cream.

Pickled Cherries.—Select sound large cherries and to every quart of cherries allow a cupful of the best elder vinegar, two cupfuls of sugar, one stick of cinnamon, broken in bits; a blade of mace and six whole cloves. Pit the cherries, pack them in jars and pour the boiling vinegar and spices over them. Cork and set away; they may be used almost immediately.

Nellie Maxwell The KITCHEN CABINET

Tuesday's child is full of grace;
Wednesday's child is merry and glad,
Thursday's child is sad and sad;
Friday's child is loving and giving,
Saturday's child must work for his living;
But the child that is born on the Sabbath day
Is blithe and bonny, and good and gay.

GOOD THINGS.

To make ripe olives more delicious soak them over night in olive oil in which has been placed a small clove of garlic.

Beet Salad.—Cut in small pieces six cooked beets, the same quantity of cold potatoes and celery. Mix the yolks of five hard-cooked eggs, with two tablespoonfuls of anchovy sauce; then press through a sieve and add very gradually six tablespoonfuls of olive oil, two of vinegar, one tablespoonful of made mustard, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of pepper and the whites of the eggs, cut in rings. Mix well and serve cold.

Corn Salad.—Allow half as much each of chopped celery and walnut meats as of grated cooked corn; season with salt, pepper and one finely chopped onion. Mix with a good boiled dressing to which whipped cream has been added.

Supper Dish.—Place eggs in a granite pie plate and sprinkle generously with cheese and bread crumbs, with salt and pepper to taste. Place in the oven and bake until the eggs are set. A little cream put into the pan before the eggs are broken into it is an improvement.

Cafe Parfait.—Take a cupful of strong coffee infusion, add two eggs yolks beaten, one-half cupful of sugar and cook in a double boiler until thick. Beat a pint of cream until thick; add to the coffee mixture when cool; pour into a mold and let stand in ice and salt three hours. Unmold and serve.

Buttermilk Cake.—Take two cupfuls of buttermilk, one-half cupful of brown sugar, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one teaspoonful of soda, dissolved in the buttermilk; two-thirds of a cupful of wheat flour; two cupfuls of graham flour, unsifted, and one-half cupful of walnut meats, coarsely broken. Bake one hour. This makes two loaves. The nuts may be omitted and a sour cream and nut frosting may be used to ice the top.
